Senate Request Is Denied Again.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—President Hoover today issued a formal statement praising the London naval treaty as a constructive move toward international good will and asserting its ratification by the signatory powers would end naval competitive building and slash the costs of American naval defenses.

The Hoover pronouncement marked the second administration move within twenty-four hours to gain popular support of the treaty and bring about its prompt ratification by the senate in the face of increased opposition. Like Secretary of State Stimson in his radio address of last night, Mr. Hoover stoutly defended the pact from criticism and warned of the dangers to international good relations of unrestricted naval construction.

Follows Demand for Secrets.

The Hoover and Stimson declarations were interpreted as an answer to the delay of the senate foreign relations committee pending the result of the controversy over whether the secret London naval treaty correspondence should be turned over to the senate by the state department.

Both in his statement and in a letter sent to the foreign relations committee today by Secretary Stimson the administration made it clear that the correspondence touching on the negotiation of the treaty, demanded by Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.] will not be supplied to the senate foreign relations committee. The Hoover position is that the documents are not needed by the senate and the foreign relations committee should base its action on the treaty on the language of the treaty and not upon the correspondence surrounding its conclusion.

President Hoover denied in his statement that there are any secret understandings back of the treaty, asserting that it contained no obligations not stated in the text.

Says Competition Real Issue.

"The real issue in the treaty," said President Hoover, "is whether we shall stop competitive naval building with all the destruction and dangers to international good will which continuation on these courses implies; whether we shall spend an enormous sum in such a race to catch up with competitors, with no assurance that we will reach parity and proportionate strength even with such an expenditure, and whether the present agreement gives us a substantial parity and proportionate strength and therefore, with our army, absolute defensive power, and accomplishes this by an agreement which makes for good will, for decrease in the naval armament of the world and puts our program of naval renewals and cruiser construction at a cost far less than would otherwise be required.

"The treaty revises the battleship program of the Washington arms conference in such fashion that we reduce the battleship tonnage of the world by 230,230 tons, in which the United States scraps three battleships, Great Britain five battleships, Japan one battleship, and, in addition to this, postpones the enormous construction program of the Washington arms treaty until after 1936. We attain parity of our battleship fleets almost at once instead of ten years hence. We accomplish it without building a single new ship. The aircraft, destroyer and submarine programs of the treaty are fair and meet with substantially no criticism and represent a decrease in destroyers and submarines.

Cruiser Clause Disputed.

"Against the great battleship saving our cruiser program increases from 300,000 tons to 320,000 tons. The point at issue in the cruiser program is whether or not we should have 32,000 tons more of cruisers with 8 inch guns advocated by the navy board, or 38,500 tons with 6 inch guns provided by this treaty. Upon the merits or demerits of these alternatives as to this very small part of the fleet of about 1,125,000 tons our naval advisers are sharply divided.

"The senate, through two of its members upon the delegation, has had a practical participation in every step in the making of the treaty. There

Illinois Is 7,640,000; County 3,989,069.

With 99 of Illinois' 102 counties reported in the census count, and with conservative estimates for the remaining three counties, population figures show that Cook county has 338,138 more residents than the whole of the downstate counties. This figure exceeds the most liberal estimates of Cook county's excess in population over the rest of the state.

With final figures for Kane, Henry and Fulton county missing the estimated population of Illinois is 7,640,000. This indicates an increase of 1,154,720 since 1920. While one district yet uncompleted is holding up the final figure on Cook county, the estimate of 3,989,069 for its population is believed to be within 1,000 of the correct figure. This would indicate that the population of Cook county is 169,069 greater than half the population of the entire state.

PROF. MICHELSON AND PROF. TUFTS RETIRE AT U. OF C.

Retirement of Prof. Albert A. Michelson, head of the physics department at the University of Chicago since its foundation in 1892, and of Prof. James H. Tufts, teacher of philosophy at the university for the same period, was announced yesterday.

Both men are past the retirement age of 65 years, Prof. Michelson being 77 and Prof. Tufts 68 years old. Both plan to go to California. Prof. Michelson intending to leave on Monday for Santa Ana to repeat his famous experiment which determined the speed of light.

Prof. Tufts, head of the philosophy department since 1905, will continue at that post until the end of the fall quarter. Thereafter he will go to Los Angeles to deliver a series of seminars at the University of California, southern branch. Prof. Tufts was from 1924 to 1925 vice president of the University and was acting president in the interim between the presidencies of Ernest De Witt Burton and Max Mason.

RIGHT OF NEGRO TO VOTE UPHELD IN CIRCUIT COURT

Asheville, N. C., June 13.—(AP)—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today ruled the Democratic party of Virginia had no right to bar "Negroes and other races" from its primary.

The ruling was contained in the court's opinion affirming a decision of the District court at Richmond, Va., in the case of James O. West, Negro, vs. A. C. Bliley, William Boltz, and William Richer.

West was refused the right to participate in the Democratic primary for selection of nominees as city officials of Richmond on April 3, 1928, on the grounds that the plan of the Democratic party, adopted June 11, 1924, limited the right to participate in its primaries to white persons.

The opinion was written by Judge Elliott Northcutt of Huntington, W. Va.

"If all the political parties in the state of Virginia incorporated the same qualifications in their rules and regulations as did the Democratic party," he wrote, "nobody could participate in the primary except white persons, and other persons would be deprived of a material right guaranteed to them under the constitution as amended."

It was believed that Yorkey had come into contact with a live wire and the shock had tumbled him into the river.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Cardinal Mundelein granted an interview yesterday in which he discussed the attitude of the pope toward Americans, and gave a little picture of the character of Pius XI. and his methods of criticism.

The occasion for this was to make specific denial, coming from the pope himself, that he had criticized the youth of America in his pre-Lenten address to the preachers of Rome this year, as reported by THE TRIBUNE correspondent in Rome on March 5 last.

This report of the address was made the subject of an editorial in THE TRIBUNE on March 7, in which the pope was represented again as having warned against the laxness of juvenile morals as a new and threatening development in American life.

Has Letter from Pope.

Cardinal Mundelein displayed an envelope addressed to himself in the handwriting of the pope, the first letter of this kind, he said, which had ever been received in Chicago. It contained the assurance that the pope had not spoken of America in his address, did not have this country in mind at the time, and felt hurt that such a version had been printed.

The address, it appears, was intended for the Roman clergy to use in their own churches, in the nature of a suggestion or keynote for them, and referred to their own people.

Cardinal Mundelein knows the pope and his methods well, and made an investigation as to the basis for this story.

"I was away from home at the time the news item appeared," he said. "The editorial later was called to my attention.

Tell of Audience with Pope.

"My memory went back to four years ago when I was in Rome on the Monday before Lent, for the purpose of taking up with the pope the details of the Eucharistic congress. My audience began at 10 a. m. He was greatly interested and, although such an audience is usually terminated in half an hour, at the signal of the pope's rising, he kept me until 11:30.

"As I went out I found that the cardinal vicar and a number of the Lenten preachers of Rome had been kept waiting and I stopped and apologized to them. It was then I learned of the annual custom of these preachers receiving the keynote of their Lenten discourses from the pope.

Know Nothing of U. S.

"This story, I knew, was based on the same kind of a discourse, and I was positive the information was wrong. This pope is exceedingly practical and to the point. It would be a sheer waste of time for him to make any allusion to America at such a gathering. These were men who knew nothing about America, were not interested in America. The Romans generally know more about Africa than they do about this country.

"Moreover, it is not the pope's custom to stray from his subject. His criticism is always constructive, not destructive. He does not scold, even in private. If he disagrees with you he does not argue, but simply changes the subject.

"An English magazine in a recent editorial says of him:

"'He is what may well be termed a "Strong Pope." Not since Leo XIII. has there been so dominant a representative of St. Peter, so aggressive and strong in character.'

Address in Vatican Paper.

"I first obtained a copy of the official Osservatore Romano, the Vatican daily newspaper, which always carries a correct if somewhat condensed transcript of the pope's addresses and conferences, which are always read by him.

"This was enough in itself. It was merely an address to Romans and spoke first of the foundation of the child's education being in the home. It went on to discuss the failings of the Roman youth, and said it was error to give up every right and control over sons and daughters. These youths, he said, often go where they believe they can go, at hours and times fixed by themselves, without parental control. In fact, this is spoken of as 'excess baggage.' It seems something incredible, the pope said, yet it is true, and warned that these forms of moral ineducation ought not to be found, especially in Catholic countries.

American Tells His Views.

"Next I received an assurance from Msgr. Francis Spellman, an American, who was present, that America was never mentioned by the pope in his address, nor was any allusion made to this country, and that even by a stretch of the imagination he could not construe any remark of the holy father as being meant for the United States.

"Msgr. Spellman is a priest from the Boston diocese, who some years ago was assigned as an American assistant in the department of the cardial secretary of state. He was present in the audience because he was the Lenten preacher in the church of

Report Jamie Is Slated for Dry Chief Here

Fire Sweeps Brewery

The Garden City brewery, formerly property of Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake, was swept by fire of undetermined origin last night. Ten thousand spectators were attracted to the scene as flames swept from the second to the fifth and top story of the old brick and stone structure, which covers nearly a block at 21st street and Albany avenue. Fire Marshal Corrigan, who took charge at the sounding of a 4-11 alarm, said the damage would not exceed $10,000. It is held by the United States government.

Alexander Jamie, chief special prohibition agent, is slated to become Chicago's dry enforcer after the transfer of the prohibition bureau to the department of justice July 1, it was ascertained yesterday from sources in close touch with headquarters at Washington.

This report followed the raiding of a huge Capone brewery at 2108 South Wabash avenue by Jamie's men, who are assigned to investigate interstate conspiracy cases.

According to those who have been to Washington recently, it is not certain yet whether Jamie will become director for the judicial circuit comprising Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana, or a deputy enforcement officer for the Chicago area, but it is well established that he will be retained here in a strong position.

Yellowley in Capital.

It is also regarded as certain, according to the federal building gossip, that Yellowley will not be retained here and that he will be assigned to some post at Washington. The administration is at Washington now, and it is reported that the imminent reorganization of the prohibition unit took him there.

There have been rumors that Yellowley is mentioned for prohibition commissioner under the attorney general, but his associates deny that he wants this job.

"He has constantly stated he would not have it," one of his close associates quoted him as saying. An alternative for Yellowley at Washington is the director of permits for the diversion of alcohol, which will be under the joint supervision of the treasury and justice departments.

May Get New Post.

If Doran doesn't get the alcohol job, it is believed that Yellowley will, for he has been in the government service for thirty-one years and has a national dry backing, particularly among the southern dry Democrats. Another suggested possibility for Yellowley is the post of adviser to Howard Jones, assistant attorney general, who is slated to become the prohibition director.

Jamie's raid on the Capone brewery, where 200,000 gallons of beer and mash was found, was praised by District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson as the type of work needed here. The revenue from such a plant is estimated at more than $5,000 a week. Bootleggers have boasted, according to attorneys who represent them, that they will pay $50,000 for immunity to operate a 1,000 gallon still thirty days. At the end of this time the still would be turned over and three Sicilian cookers left for the raiders to arrest. The operators figure on a clear profit of $50,000, deducting $25,000 for equipment, $25,000 for operating expenses and the defense of the cookers arrested, and $50,000 for protection. The still would turn out 30,000 galons of alky, which sells at $5 a gallon, or $150,000.

Estimate 10,000 Speakeasies.

Federal officials estimate that there are 10,000 speakeasies in Chicago which buy six barrels of beer at $55 a barrel each a week. This would mean a weekly revenue for the gangs of $3,500,000. In addition to this the speakeasies buy approximately two cases of booze a week at $90 a case, bringing in $1,800,000 more for the gangs. The beer costs about $4 a barrel to make, and the booze about $20 a case.

HUGE THEATER GROUP TO RISE IN MANHATTAN

New York, June 13.—[Special.]—A huge theatrical venture which will exploit television, music radio, talking pictures and plays will be erected, it was disclosed tonight, on the site owned by John D. Rockefeller Jr., between 5th and 6th avenues and 48th and 51st streets.

Plans for the new project, which involves a real estate investment of nearly 200 millions, call for the erection of three giant skyscrapers which will form the central buildings of a group.

BILL LIKELY TO BECOME A LAW NEXT TUESDAY

Farmer Favored in New Rates.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—The senate completed action on the long pending tariff bill today when it approved the conference report by a vote of 44 to 42. The house will take similar action tomorrow.

The only formalities then remaining before the bill goes to the White House will be the affixing of the signatures of Vice President Curtis and Speaker Longworth, which will take place Monday. President Hoover will have the bill by Monday afternoon or Tuesday, and is expected to sign it without delay, despite persistent efforts of various groups to induce him to veto it.

The bill as it will reach the President contains the highest average duties in the history of tariff legislation. The average of the rates in the bill, as computed on an ad valorem basis, is 40.08 per cent, compared with 33.22 in the present bill.

Agriculture Especially Favored.

The greatest increases have been in agricultural schedules. In these the average rate in the new bill is 34 per cent, compared with 19.86 in the present law.

While increases in industrial rates are less on the average, opponents of the bill insist that the farmer will not be benefited because many of the farm duties will be ineffective and farmers will be compelled to pay higher prices on industrial products which they must buy. Defenders of the bill declare that agriculture has been given enormous increases in protection and that such added protection as is afforded industry will tend to provide a better market for farm products.

The 96 members of the senate lined up exactly as had been forecast. Counting five sets of pairs, the senators lined up 49 to 47. The scant margin of two votes was barely enough to prevent a tie.

One Senator Leaves Sickbed.

The vote was so close that Senator Duncan Fletcher [Dem., Fla.], who has been absent on account of illness for several weeks, came from his sickbed to vote for the bill after he had learned that Senator Thomas D. Schall [Rep., Minn.], with whom he had paired, had returned from his campaign for renomination to be recorded against the measure. Senator Roscoe C. Patterson [Rep., Mo.] who was threatened yesterday with an attack of appendicitis, also was on hand to vote for the bill.

Five Democrats joined with 39 Republicans in support of the conference report. Besides Senator Fletcher there were Senators Park Trammell [Fla.], J. E. Ransdell and E. S. Broussard [La.], and J. B. Kendrick [Wyo.]

Eleven radical Republicans were recorded with 30 Democrats and one Farmer-Labor member against the bill. Another radical Republican was paired against it, making twelve on record in opposition to the measure.

How Radicals Voted.

The eleven Republicans voting against it were Senators Robert M. La Follette and John J. Blaine [Wis.], S. W. Brookhart [Ia.], T. D. Schall [Minn.], L. J. Frazier [N. D.], Peter Norbeck and W. H. McMaster [S. D.], G. W. Norris and R. B. Howell [Neb.], W. B. Pine [Okla.], and W. E. Borah [Idaho]. Senator G. P. Nye [Rep., N. D.] was paired against the bill.

Senators from central states voting for the bill included Charles S. Deneen and Otis F. Glenn [Ill.], James Couzens and A. H. Vandenberg [Mich.], and Arthur Robinson [Ind.]. Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.] was paired for the bill with an absentee Democrat. Senator Daniel Steck [Dem., Ia.], who was absent, was paired against the bill.

Intense excitement prevailed as the roll was called. Nearly all senators were in their seats and the outer edge of the senate chamber was lined with house members who had come over to see the finishing touches applied to the much debated bill. The galleries were more crowded than on any other occasion this session.

Debate Entertains Crowd.

The gallery crowds were greatly entertained by the debate which preceded the final vote. Senator Watson, majority leader, held the floor for more than an hour before the vote was taken, refusing to give it up for fear one of the Democratic or radical Republican opponents would utilize the closing minutes for an attack on the bill. Watson yielded the floor just a few seconds before 2 o'clock when the vote was taken under a unanimous consent agreement.

Senator Watson, with his usual good humor, parried questions put to him by Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.] and other opponents of the bill. Quoting from various celebrated members of congress of former years who assailed previous protective tariff bills, Senator Watson sought to show that the same sort of attacks had been made then that are being leveled against the present measure and that the predictions of dire distress to follow had not been fulfilled.

One Sharp Exchange.

Senator Harrison at one point asked Senator Watson to tell the senate what had happened to the Republican party following the passage of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law.

"The tariff had nothing to do with what happened then, except in this way," retorted Senator Watson. President Taft was for Canadian reciprocity. The farmers of the west wouldn't stand for it. President Taft got on the side of the senator from Mississippi on the proposition and naturally the people rose up in their might and smote him hip and thigh."

Senator Harrison inquired of Senator Watson if he had not voted for Canadian reciprocity.

"I most certainly didn't," replied Senator Watson with vigor. Senator Harrison sat down, but sent out for the Congressional Record of the time of the consideration of Canadian reciprocity during the Taft administration, Senator Watson at that time being a member of the house.

A little later he again interrupted Senator Watson to call his attention to the record, showing his vote for Canadian reciprocity.

"If I voted for Canadian reciprocity it was in the days of my infancy, when I didn't know any better," answered Senator Watson, joining in the general laughter at his expense.

Senator Watson predicted that within 30 days following the enactment of the bill "this nation will be on the upgrade financially, economically and commercially."

Opponents Have Innings.

Final denunciations of the bill were made by Senator J. T. Robinson [Dem. Ark.], the minority leader; Senator F. M. Simmons [Dem., N. C.], ranking minority member of the finance committee, and by Senator W. E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] on behalf of the radical Republican group.

Senator Robinson said that the bill would "leave agriculture in a worse condition than at present," and that the benefits promised from the upward revision of rates on farm products "are likely to be more than offset by the enhanced costs of manufactured commodities." He contended that costs would be increased to consumers by more than three-quarters of a billion dollars annually.

More specifically, the burden upon consumers will relate to increased costs of clothing, wool and cotton fabrics, hats, gloves, shoes, and other articles and materials of wearing apparel," said Senator Robinson. "Construction material and housing costs will be augmented by the duties on lumber, cement, brick, wall board, paint, flooring, and tiles."

Shouse Adds His Word.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, in a statement tonight said that "enactment of the Grundy tariff demonstrates the not very surprising fact that a Republican President, with a party majority of fifteen in the senate and 103 in the house of representatives, is able, after a 16 months' battle, to get a tariff bill through by a majority of two votes."

Mr. Shouse said that approval of the bill "does not alter the circumstance that the bill is an economic crime, a political blunder by the party that jammed it through, a monument to the incapacity of President Hoover to lead his party, and a demonstration of the ineptness of his administration."

GIVEN APPROVAL HERE.

Chicago manufacturers generally yesterday expressed satisfaction that the senate had passed the tariff bill. "Business was forced to remain stagnated as long as the bill was pending. The senate's action has removed all uncertainty, provided President Hoover signs the bill," said James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association. "On the whole, I believe the bill is satisfying to large manufacturers of the middle west."

EUROPEANS FIGHT U. S. TARIFF.

(Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.)

PARIS, June 13.—What authorized American observers look upon as the first tangible evidence of Europe's "hitting back" at the new United States tariff bill was disclosed today, when it was learned British, German, and Belgian copper interests have just entered an agreement to withdraw large purchases of copper and non-ferrous metals from the United States and place them elsewhere. The companies involved in the deal are the British Amalgamated Metal corporation, the Frankfurt Metals company, and the Belgian Société Generale des Minerals of Brussels. To this group will be added French and other European companies.

The announcement states the agreement is, in effect, "revolution" against American dominance of copper prices and the accord is hailed as the "emancipation of European nonferrous industries" from American control.

European disagreement with American price and production policies on copper, lead, and zinc has already led to a partial failure of the world lead pool—dissolution of the international zinc cartel as well as a movement against the policies of Copper Exporters, Inc., of New York by individual representatives of electrical companies which take half the world copper production, and by metal working groups in Germany—the greatest single consumer of copper after the United States.

TORNADO KILLS 5 IN WISCONSIN AND MINNESOTA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Menomonie, Wis., June 13.—Four persons were killed and at least a dozen injured, three perhaps fatally, when a tornado struck near here and then swept on toward Eau Claire, smashing virtually everything in its path.

The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wolbert, Mrs. Carl Kaiser, and an unidentified man. The injured are Clarence Kaase, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Iverson, Raymond Wolbert, Mr. Kaiser, a Mrs. Payne, Cole Leon Roach, Lorraine Roach, Charlotte Roach, Jack Roach, and Louis Ford.

Three May Die.

Mr. Iverson, Lorraine Roach, and Raymond Wolbert were reported to be the most seriously injured. They may not live. All those dead were killed at the Wolbert home west of here.

Boats at Pine Point, north of here, were blown from the water and smashed against the trees on the shore.

At the Sam Blume home, four miles east of Menomonie, the barn was lifted from over the family while they were milking.

The wind was preceded by a hailstorm, which was the worst ever encountered here. At least a fifty per cent loss in all crops but hay is anticipated.

Eau Claire Damage Heavy.

Eau Claire, Wis., June 13.—[Special.—A tornado which struck at Menomonie, Wis., 24 miles west of here, hit this city about dusk tonight. Twelve persons were injured here.

In Eau Claire destruction was confined mainly to the Ninth ward. The abandoned sawmill of the Dells Lumber company was demolished, the roof ripped off the Beauregard hotel and flung against the Security State bank.

The dwelling of Peter Cole was twisted off its foundation, the porch and eaves being scattered about the yard. Cole, his wife, three children, and his mother-in-law were injured.

The total damage was estimated at $400,000.

Rain accompanied the gale and kept under control several fires which broke out.

Other communities in western Wisconsin also suffered. Alma Center, Sparta, and Whitehall were reported to have been damaged, besides farmhouses in La Crosse county.

Ellsworth Area Hit.

Ellsworth, Wis., June 13.—(AP)—Live stock was killed and about a dozen barns were destroyed in the territory southwest of Ellsworth by a tornado late today.

The tornado lifted slightly just before striking Ellsworth and damage in the town was comparatively light.

In the vicinity of Diamond Bluff and the Trinbelle valley, near the Mississippi river in western Wisconsin, roofs were blown from a number of buildings.

Minnesotan Killed.

St. Paul, Minn., June 13.—(AP)—One man was killed and many were injured late today in a series of tornadoes that hopped across southern Minnesota. Numerous farm and other buildings were destroyed before the twisters swept into Wisconsin. The damage was heavy.

TO HANG FOR DOUBLE MURDER.

Franco-Russian Break Near Over Revolt in Indo-China

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 13.—Franco-Russian relations are strained virtually to the breaking point tonight following new disclosures in the chamber of deputies this afternoon how Moscow agents are fomenting revolution in the French colony of Indo-China.

Last week disclosures were made by various deputies of the right, who are all bitterly opposed to communism. Today they were formally confirmed by a member of the government—the colonial minister, Francois Petri, former aid to the late Georges Clemenceau.

M. Pietri's address was not rashly uttered. He took a week to work it out. Yesterday he submitted it to the council of ministers and it was approved.

Denounces Soviet Government.

M. Pietri said communist propaganda is the principal cause of the trouble in Indo-China, and in guarded but severe terms he denounced the soviet government.

When M. Pietri had finished a sensation was created by the announcement that Premier Tardieu, himself, will speak before the chamber next Friday on the deliberate plots of the bolsheviks to undermine French authority in Indo-China.

It was reported in official circles tonight that in this address M. Tardieu will deliver an ultimatum to the soviets, and if solemn assurance is not offered that agitation in Indo-China will be discontinued, diplomatic relations with Russia will be broken off immediately.

House Cheers Attack on Reds.

There was no doubt today about the feeling of the deputies in regard to the bolsheviks. M. Pietri's speech was vigorously applauded by all benches except the communists. Even the galleries, which were crowded, were loud in applause.

M. Pietri has been under fire for some time owing to the seeming powerlessness of the government to check the revolt in Indo-China. Opinion in political circles tonight is that he has saved his job and probably the government by his speech, which clearly and boldly placed the root of the trouble on the communists and promised quick action by the government to stamp out the Reds.

M. Pietri was preceded on the rostrum by Communist Deputy Andre Berthon with an interpellation on the expulsion of 30 students from Annam who had demonstrated in front of Elysee palace recently. He declared the government had violated the traditional hospitality of Paris.

Greeted by Howls.

Howls rose up from the various benches, and Jean Ybarnegaray, deputy from the Pyrenees, interjected:

"What happened to Parisian hospitality when Gen. Koutiepoff was kidnaped by the Cheka?"

M. Tardieu smiled approvingly at the heckler and added:

This drew a riotous burst of applause from the right benches, and President Buisson had difficulty in restoring order.

M. Pietri, in describing the growing communism in Indo-China, said that the organizers came from Canton, are working directly under orders from Moscow, and are receiving Russian gold.

RAID MONMOUTH MAYOR'S FACTORY AND FIND BOOZE

Monmouth, Ill., June 13.—[Special.]—A various assortment of liquors, including wines, gin and whisky, was seized today in a raid by four prohibition agents upon the business offices here of Christian C. Marilatt, mayor of Monmouth, while Mr. Marilatt was entertaining five hundred or more road supervisors from Illinois and Iowa. Mr. Marilatt is head of a road machinery manufacturing concern, and annually invites the highway officials to a "convention" at his plant.

Mr. Marilatt was entertaining his guests in a restaurant across the street from his plant when the dry sleuths, said to have come from Springfield and Peoria, swooped down. Marilatt, who recently was elected mayor upon a law enforcement platform indorsed by Monmouth churches, was instructed to appear tomorrow, along with three of his employés, before a U. S. commissioner.

A week ago Mr. Marilatt and other Monmouth officials made a series of booze raids in this community.

Motor Trouble Forces Down Plane with 6 Passengers

Six passengers, including two women, of a mail plane inbound to Chicago, were stranded temporarily upon the Louis F. Swift estate at 30 East Westleigh road, in Lake Forest, last night when the pilot was forced to land because of engine trouble and strong winds.

LICENSES TO WED SOLD TO 276 ON FRIDAY THE 13TH

Cupid conquered superstition at the marriage license bureau yesterday when 138 blushing couples laughed at the suggestion that the bad luck attributed to Friday the 13th had any influence on marital happiness. Nevertheless, Chief Clerk Sidney Summerfield attributed a marked decrease in the usual daily number to superstition.

Lawrence A. Bowman, 3100 North Western avenue, who appeared with Miss Gertrude Lecomte, 18 years old, 916 Willow street, heralded the day as his lucky one. He said that he was born on Friday, April 13, 1906, and had chosen the day for his nuptials. Janice Ford, 27 years old, who came from Dallas, Tex., to marry John D. Kirby, 26, 1829 Estes avenue, said that the hoodoo couldn't stop her after that trip.

John W. Kelly, 29, 151 North Austin avenue, and Miss Mary McSwiggin, 29, 4946 Washington boulevard, refused to put off obtaining their license when they were reminded of the date. Clarence Latall, 30, 7452 Irving Park boulevard, averred that he had selected the day to marry his former wife, Mrs. Jennie Latall, as the first date had proved unlucky.

NINE ICE CREAM PEDDLERS FINED.

Nine peddlers who sell ice cream from wagons were fined $5 each yesterday when arraigned before Municipal Judge Clayton on charges that they sold their wares under insanitary conditions. The complaints against the venders were made by Health Commissioner Kegel after inspections of their equipment.

SCIENCE FINDS WAY TO DEFER ADVANCING AGE

Dr. Cutter Announces Medical Discovery.

Body ills hastening old age may be alleviated by treatment found successful in relieving a kidney condition known as oedema, Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of the Northwestern university medical school and superintendent of the Passavant hospital, announced last night at the hospital's alumni dinner in the Palmer house.

Research leading to this important conclusion was conducted in the closely associated wards of the hospital and the medical school, said Dean Cutter. His announcements of the intensive investigations now being carried on there also included reports of progress in curing certain types of heart disease and the results of thyroid study.

Great Boon to Patients.

Explaining to his audience that the experiments in oedema had led the researchers to believe that it "can be caused or relieved at will," Dr. Cutter added: "This study bids fair to be of the utmost importance in prolonging the lives of patients with certain forms of kidney disease, and at the same time give the patient the greatest possible comfort and the maximum of activity."

He described oedema as "an accumulation of excess fluid in body tissue, caused by factors closely paralleling those influencing the rapid onset of old age."

Control Kidney Output.

The experiments have shown that the retention of fluids in the body may be controlled almost at will. "This means," said Dr. Cutter, "that under a newly devised management by means of a careful bio-chemical blood analysis, certain chemical factors may be added or taken away to reduce or increase the output of water by the kidneys."

Clarification of various types of thyroid disease has been accomplished, Dr. Cutter said, the studies conducted at the hospital having clearly demonstrated the clinical difference between the toxic or dangerous type of the ailment and the nontoxic type. The conclusions reached relative to the dangerous types were arrived at through coöperation of clinical studies in the hospital and the laboratories of the medical school, he said.

Criticism Not Meant for Americans.

"Finally, I received assurance from the holy father himself quite recently that he had not spoken of this country, did not have it in mind, and felt hurt that such a charge had been made.

Would Make Direct Criticism.

"Even though this exposition of the real facts comes rather late, still I take this rather unusual course of letting the people of Chicago, particularly our Protestant neighbors, know that Pope Pius XI. is not the kind of a man who acts hastily or even inconsiderately. In a word, he does not talk behind people's backs about any faults. If he feels these should be criticized he would do so straight from the shoulder. If he wanted to point out any weaknesses of ours, individual or national, he would do so in an audience of Americans, through the American bishops.

"Above all he would do it in a fatherly and kindly manner.

"Whatever may be our differences in matters of belief, every intelligent and well meaning American looks upon the Roman pontiff as the greatest moral force and the foremost Christain teacher in the world today, and would respectfully listen to any admonition he might address to us all. But if he did find something wrong in our homes, in the management of our children, he would not speak in generalities and he would speak to the members of his own flock, and I can assure you that what he would say would be worth listening to and there would be no hidden sting to it.

Recalls Praise of U. S.

"Nobody who listened to his eloquent words on the occasion of the consistory six years ago when the archbishops of Chicago and New York were made cardinals, and the pope spoke in such glowing words of this country, its people, its past progress, its brilliant future, would believe that the present pope had uttered the words the newspaper carried or merited the criticism that it caused.

"No, the simple solution to be drawn is that in the plain parlance of the boy in the street somebody sold the newspaper correspondent a 'gold brick' of a story."

CHICAGO STIRRED TO END SOURCE OF GANG POWER

Police, Under Fire, Act to Oust Hoodlums.

$55,725 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter.

An aroused public opinion against gangs following the murder of Jake Lingle and the demand that hoodlums be shorn of their power by shutting off the riches they got from beer, booze and rackets, took form yesterday in several developments.

Police Commissioner Russell made an appeal to the courts for help. There were demands that Russell and Chief of Detectives Steege be ousted and that other policemen of known ability be put in command to see what they could do to kick the gangs out of Chicago.

Albert Leads Action.

The ouster movement was led by Ald. Arthur F. Albert [43d], who wrote a letter to Mayor Thompson asking that Capt. Thomas Condon and Capt. James Allman be put at the head of the police department, and that Russell and Stege be given vacations while the captains tried their hands. Failing in this, Albert said, there would be a council committee investigation of the police in which the civil service commission would assist.

There was evidence, however, that Mayor Thompson wanted Russell to be given a chance to go ahead with his own plans for warfare on gangland, and the commissioner said he had the mayor's support in keeping speakeasies and other sources of gang profits closed in the face of political pull. Russell said the first care of the department would be to keep the lid on all questionable places in the loop.

Appeal to Judges.

Further action to strengthen his warfare was taken by Commissioner Russell last night when he drafted an appeal to Chief Justice Normoyle of the Criminal court, Chief Justice Lewis of the Superior court, and Chief Justice Taylor of the Circuit court asking the help of the judges in habeas corpus proceedings. The commissioner asked for at least 24 hours to produce a prisoner in court after a writ is filed. He said such writs are usually sued out as a part of a well organized plan to assist prisoners to escape "showups" and scrutiny by all the members of the detective bureau.

There was evidence that Commissioner Russell had in mind a complete reorganization of his department to make it a more potent weapon against gangs. He conferred with members of the mayor's citizens' police committee and consulted the corporation counsel's office on his powers. First Assistant Corporation Counsel Breen informed the commissioner that he had the power to change the boundaries of police districts and divisions commanded by deputy commissioners without action by the city council.

Quiz Witnesses in Homes.

In tracing clews to the Lingle murder the police were maintaining strict secrecy and unusual precautions were being taken to protect witnesses.

Stege was following an entirely new procedure. Witnesses were being interviewed in their own homes to prevent general knowledge of the fact they may have important information. Persons believing they can contribute a thought, an idea, or evidence of any kind that might help in the solution of the Lingle murder were invited to notify Stege, who said if advisable he would go himself to the home of the witness to talk to him, or to notify Roche or State's Attorney Swanson or Commissioner Russell.

A person giving secret information would be protected also in the matter of the reward offered for the solution of the Lingle murder, which now totals $55,725, it was explained. The rewards offered were regarded as one evidence of public help to the police and additional assistance was pledged yesterday as follows:

The Foreign Language Press association, composed of fifty-five newspapers of Chicago, adopted the following resolution:

"We extend our sympathy to THE TRIBUNE for the assassination of one of its staff, Alfred J. Lingle, and pledge our support to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, other Chicago newspapers and law enforcing agencies in their efforts to stamp out crime and bring the guilty to account, which will restore the good name of Chicago and make safe the life and property in our city."

Medical Society Offers Reward.

The North Shore branch of the Chicago Medical society last night added $500 to the reward offered for the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Lingle. The action was taken by the board of governors and the offer was accompanied by a statement that "the slaying is a challenge to Chicago's decency, since it is the outgrowth of racketeering and extortion."

The Humboldt Park Community News, through its editor, Albert H. Atfeld, offered a $25 reward for information leading to the conviction of Lingle's slayer.

These are in addition to the $25,000 offered by THE TRIBUNE, $25,000 offered by the Herald and Examiner, $5,000 offered by the Chicago Evening Post, $100 offered by the Huntington Publishing company of Huntington, W. Va., and $100 offered by the Birmingham, Ala., Press club.

The Citizens' Association of Chicago held a meeting yesterday noon and came to the conclusion that the Lingle murder and many others were the result of gangsters in politics and of uninterrupted beer running operations.

The association adopted a resolution commending "the united action taken by the newspapers of Chicago in publicly pledging themselves to combined effort to end the present unbearable situation."

Publishers' Chief Speaks.

A statement with regard to the Lingle killing was issued last night by Harry Chandler, publisher of the Los Angeles Times, in his capacity as president of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, as follows:

"To the publisher of THE TRIBUNE, Chicago:

"The wanton killing by Chicago gangsters of Alfred J. Lingle, TRIBUNE reporter, assigned to investigate and expose their criminal activities for the information and protection of the public, is at once a challenge to society and an insolent defiance of law and order. The responsible charge imposed upon Lingle and which directly caused his murder made him more than an individual citizen and more than merely the representative of a single newspaper.

"The press of America constitutes the eyes, the ears and the voice of the decent, right thinking public in the unending warfare of society against those who would degrade and destroy it. At the post of duty where he was struck down from behind Lingle was a first line soldier in that war, his trust the trust imposed by the people upon the newspapers of America.

"As president of the American Newspaper Publisher's association, I know that I voice the sentiment of the great body of the nation's press in pledging its support and coöperation to THE TRIBUNE and associated Chicago newspapers and to the people of Illinois, not only in their efforts to capture and punish the slayers of Lingle, but permanently to end the conditions which made the atrocity possible."

Merchants Take Action.

The 75th Street Merchants' club and the South Shore Park Improvement association at a joint meeting adopted a resolution asking Mayor Thompson to put U. S. District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson at the head of a committee of outstanding Chicago leaders organized for the purpose of directing the fight to run gangs out of Chicago.

BILL TO INDEMNIFY FAMILY OF VIRKKULA APPROVED IN HOUSE

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—A favorable report was made today by the house claims committee on the Pittenger bill which awards the sum of $5,000 to three heirs of Henry Virkkula, confectioner of International Falls, Minn., who on June 8, 1929, was shot to death near his home by Emmett J. White, a federal customs patrolman assigned to prohibition enforcement.

Those who will share in the awards if the bill is passed by congress are Mrs. Selma Virkkula, the widow, and her two daughters, Alice Marie, 8, and Bernice Elaine, 10.

A few weeks ago the same committee recommended the payment of $5,000 to the estate of the late Jacob D. Hansen, prominent Niagara Falls (N. Y.) citizen, who was shot and killed when he failed to heed the command of coast guardsmen. The committee recently approved a bill granting George Charles Walther of Washington state a monthly pension of $150. Walther was shot in the back by a federal agent and is said to be a hopeless paralytic.

YOUNG HOOSIER MEETS 2 FRIENDS IN A GREAT CITY

Harley Walton, 25 years old, arrived in Chicago from an Indiana farm at midnight Thursday with $29.30. He had come to seek his fortune. Often during the bus ride from the Hoosier state he paused to count his money, he later told police. At the last counting before reaching the bus terminal at Roosevelt road and Wabash avenue he had two $10 bills, one $5 bill, three $1 bills, two 50 cent pieces, a quarter, and a nickel.

As he walked from the station to the street two men jostled him, smiled pleasantly, and apologized. It made Walton feel right at home.

The young man then confided in the strangers that he had been a little worried for fear Chicago would be an unfriendly place. He asked them if they knew a good place to go for the night, and they offered to take him to a hotel.

The two men led him south on Wabash avenue to the fifteen hundred block. There they dragged the wayfarer into a gangway and took his money. Walton then went to the South State street police and described the denominations of his loss.

Sergt. Harry Wright toured the neighborhood and arrested men who gave their names as John Cullen, 28 years old, 1600 South Wabash avenue, and Richard O'Hearn, 29, of 1742 Indiana avenue. In their pockets he found $29.30 in the denominations described by Walton. Walton identified them as his welcomers.

4 MEN QUIZZED AS SUSPECTS IN DOZEN ROBBERIES

Four men suspected of a dozen recent robberies were questioned yesterday at the state's attorney's office after their arrest in a raid Thursday night at 330 South Oakley avenue. They are held for investigation and possible arrest of other members of the so-called "42" gang.

The raid was the result of the confession of James Sassone, 1535 Polk street, who is now in the Bridewell hospital recovering from a bullet wound received last week when he was shot after a holdup.

WOMEN LAUNCH WARD CAMPAIGN ON DRY REFORM

Physicians Indorse Work of Organization.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

The Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, which has its Chicago headquarters at 700 North Michigan avenue, began to organize its work in Chicago wards yesterday. Mrs. Stephen Luby of 7709 South Peoria street, 18th ward chairman, was hostess during the afternoon to some forty women of the ward, inaugurating the Illinois organization's schedule of establishing a branch in every ward. Mrs. Luby was the first of the ward chairmen to be chosen.

Mrs. George Brennan presided at the gathering, and Alice Cudahy McCormick gave a report on the work accomplished. Mrs. McCormick read statements endorsing the work and the objects of the association, from Dr. Frank Billings, widely known physician, and Dr. Rachelle Yarros, for many years prominent in social service work of the city.

Drinking Increases, He Says.

"I am in full accord with the principle and purposes of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform," read Dr. Billings' statement. "For the eleven years of the administration of the eighteenth amendment of the constitution of the United States by the Volstead act and the amendments thereto there has been a progressive increase of alcoholic intemperance, disregard of law and order, crime of all types, including homocide, hypocrisy of politicians, death and insanity due to alcoholism, and other evils.

"The adoption of the eighteenth amendment was due to emotionalism stimulated by the world war and without that intellectualism which should be the guide of a government created for the people by the people. The Volstead act with its amendments is in principle and in its regulations irrational and even ridiculous.

For "Individual Liberty."

"If this government is to endure as our forefathers planned, individual liberty must be restored, and with it there must be fostered individual responsibility of the citizens in shaping local, state, and federal laws."

"We, the mothers of today, look with concern into the future," declared Mrs. William A. Sauer, the principal speaker. "Today our young people go out, and at every dance party liquor is served when such a thing would have resulted in our being locked in our rooms at their age. What we want is real temperance.

Urges "Real Temperance."

"This country was moving surely toward temperance when the Volstead act was enacted, and it wiped out all the temperance work that has been done in the last fifty years. Our forefathers who set up the machinery for repeal of part of the Constitution of this country if it proved unsuitable, realized that some day such a move as this might be necessary. Let us work hard to bring real temperance and liberty back to the United States."

MIAMI TO KNOW TODAY IF CAPONE GOES OR STAYS

Citizen or Hoodlum? Court to Rule.

Miami, Fla., June 13.—[Special.]—The case of the state of Florida vs. Alphonse Capone was in the hands of Judge Paul Barnes tonight, following the sudden resting of the state's case and the subsequent motion by Capone's attorneys to dismiss the case, which was brought in an attempt to padlock Capone's Miami Beach house as a nuisance.

State's Attorney W. V. Hawthorne rested his case without calling most of the state witnesses, including Al Capone. Mr. Hawthorne wound up his case suddenly after the court had refused to call John Capone, brother of Al, as a court's witness. Hawthorne said he refused to call John as state witness as he would try to protect his brother by false swearing, and asked that the court summon him to the stand.

Judge Barnes said that he would rule on the motion of the defense to dismiss the case at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Another Party Described.

Bert Riley, former attorney for Capone, told on the witness stand of a party given by Capone for newspaper sport writers at the time of the Sharkey-Scott fight. Riley said that he saw from 150 to 200 persons at the party, that three kinds of whisky, as well as champagne and burgundy, were available to all comers and "everybody got enough." Frankie Newton, Frank Gallat and others who had previously sworn during this proceeding that they were not at the party, and that they had seen little or no liquor at the Capone home, were present and assisted in serving the drinks, Riley testified.

At the morning session George C. Stembler, Miami insurance man, supported yesterday's testimony by R. B. Burdine, Miami store owner, about a champagne breakfast served by Capone when he gave Stembler and Burdine a check for $1,000 for the Miami community chest. The check later was returned.

Capone in Fifth New Suit.

Capone sat in court all day holding frequent whispered conferences with his lawyers. He continued to build up his reputation as the best dressed racketeer. Today he appeared in an entirely new ensemble, consisting of a crash gray suit, handkerchief and shirt to match, a dark blue tie with tiny white dots, and sport shoes.

During the five days of the court proceedings Capone has worn five entirely different outfits, with motifs of white, tan, blue, green, and gray, respectively.

Mother of Alfred Lingle, Slain Reporter, Collapses

Mrs. R. C. Darst of Kansas City, mother of Alfred J. Lingle, slain TRIBUNE reporter, collapsed yesterday on the street in Rogers Park. Grief over the death of her son caused Mrs. Darst's illness. She was assisted into the automobile of Dr. John L. Kirby by her husband, and Dr. Kirby drove the couple into the country to allay her nervousness. They then returned to the home of Alfred J. Hazle, Lingle's uncle, at 1933 Estes avenue, where the Darsts have been staying.

Again Denies Demand for Secret Record.

is not one scintilla of agreement or obligation of any character outside the treaty itself."

While there were indications today that the senators on the foreign relations committee opposed to the treaty will try to prevent action on the pact until the President forwards the secret correspondence, administration senators were confident tonight that the treaty will be reported favorably to the senate early next week.

Johnson to Press Demands.

Following receipt of the Stimson letter, Chairman William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] said he would call the foreign relations committee together Monday and call up the treaty for action. The Idaho senator is now ready to consider the controversy over the documents as a closed incident. Senator Johnson as well as several other senators expect to press the fight for the correspondence and especially that part of the negotiations touching on the recession made by this government in coming down from a demand for 21 eight inch gun cruisers to 18.

Stimson's Reply.

The Stimson letter was sent in reply to the action of the committee yesterday in adopting a resolution asserting the senate's right to all the correspondence touching on the negotiation of the London treaty and dissenting from the administration view that the treaty should be judged solely by its language.

"I did not in my letter to you of June 6," wrote Mr. Stimson, "attempt to define the duties of the senate or the scope of its powers in passing upon treaties. My statement in that letter that 'the question whether this treaty is or is not in the interests of the United States and should or should not be ratified by the senate must in the last event be determined from the language of the document itself and not from extraneous matter,' was intended to call attention to the fact that the obligations and rights arising from the treaty, as in the case of any other contact, must be measured by the language of the document itself."

Johnson Says Policy Upheld.

Replying, Senator Johnson said that while the explanation made by Mr. Stimson "may not be as clear and as bright as the noonday sun, I'm delighted that the declaration of policy enunciated by the foreign relations committee is neither controverted or defended."

"We may accept," he added, "as settled now the rights of the senate in the consideration of treaties as defined in the resolution of the committee on foreign relations."

Test Dry Law Repeal Sentiment Tuesday in New Jersey in Race for U. S. Senate

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Newark, N. J., June 13.—[Special.]—Wringing wet New Jersey will be the scene next Tuesday of the first test in the country of the strength of the movement for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, which has been gaining such noticeable headway in the last few months. The test will be afforded by the three cornered contest in the Republican primary for the nomination for United States senator.

Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico and member of the American delegation to the London naval conference, is seeking the nomination on a platform advocating repeal of the prohibition amendment and return to the states of the control of the liquor traffic.

One of his opponents is former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, who formerly was politically dry but is now proposing modification of the prohibition law to provide for government sale of intoxicants on the principle of the Canadian system.

Defends Prohibition Régime.

The third contestant is Congressman Franklin W. Fort, who with the backing of the Anti-Saloon league and the Methodist and Baptist churches, is defending the prohibition régime and fighting either repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment.

Morrow, Frelinghuysen and Fort are candidates for the nomination for the six year term beginning March 4 next, while Morrow is the only one of the trio who is seeking in addition the nomination for the short term, ending on that date, to succeed Senator David Baird, who was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Senator Walter E. Edge to accept appointment as ambassador to France.

The struggle precipitated by the growing trend of sentiment against the prohibition amendment has stirred the New Jersey Republicans to a pitch of excitement which presages the largest vote in a primary election in many years. The drys are rallying their forces in support of Fort with the battle cry that this is the time to scotch the repeal movement in its incipiency and to head off the presidential boom of Morrow, who is being put forward by many influential wet Republicans as a possible opponent of President Hoover for renomination in 1932.

Expect Aid from Democrats.

With the managers for Frelinghuysen admitting that their hopes of success are founded on the aid they expect from Democrats voting in the Republican primary, the contest is generally regarded to be narrowed down to Morrow and Fort. Morrow has the support of nearly the entire Republican organization, including such leaders as Senators Baird and Hamilton Kean, National Committeeman Dan Pomeroy, former Gov. E. C. Stokes, Ambassador Edge, "Nocky" Johnson, boss of Atlantic City, and John McCutcheon, boss of Passaic county. To overcome these disciplined political forces Fort is replying upon an outpouring of unorganized drys. With the wets divided between his two opponents and the Republican party in this state estimated to be 60 per cent dry, Fort is confident of victory.

Only one organization leader, Jesse Salmon, boss of this county, Essex, is supporting Freylinghuysen. The former senator, however, is widely known in the state. He is a gentleman farmer and president of the state board of agriculture and accounted a power with the farmers.

The most curious aspect of this struggle is derived from the influence which Democratic votes may have upon the result. There is no contest in the Democratic primary, wherefore the Democrats are expected to exercise the traditional privilege of participating in the Republican primary as "one day Republicans," as they are called in Jersey. The managers of each of the Republican candidates are making bids for the help of Democratic mercenaries.

Pastor Jumps Into Fray.

This is an old time political trick, hitherto resorted to surreptitiously by the Republican bosses, who, however, have been emboldened to come into the open this time upon finding that it is a highly moral proceeding. No less a person than the Rev. James K. Shields, superintendent of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon league, is publicly adjuring dry Democrats to enter the Republican primary and vote for Fort. Thus encouraged, Boss Salmon has admitted that in pursuance of a deal respecting legislation in the last session of the legislature, Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, Democratic boss of New Jersey, is obligated to throw the entire Democratic vote of the state to Frelinghuysen.

Recently, however, doubts have arisen that Hague will deliver to Freylinghuysen. State Senator Alexander Simpson, an extreme wet, will be named the Democratic candidate for United States senator without opposition Tuesday, and it is said that Hague is going to help nominate the Republican candidate he deems easiest for Simpson to beat in November. As both Freylinghuysen and Morrow are wet their managers are a prey to fears that Hague will order the Democrats to plump for Fort, whom Simpson might be expected to defeat with ease in a state so wet as New Jersey.

Morrow Puts Limit on Funds.

Both the Fort and Freylinghuysen managers are charging that immense amounts of money are being distributed among the organization workers supporting Morrow. This is denied at Morrow headquarters, where it is asserted that the ambassador gave instructions not to exceed the $50,000 limitation imposed by state law, refusing to take advantage even of the technicality that inasmuch as he is a candidate for both the short and long terms he would be entitled to spend double that amount. Investigators for the Nye committee of the senate are now here inquiring into the reports of excessive expenditures.

Morrow stated his anti-prohibition credo in his opening speech but has scarcely mentioned the subject since. While declaring for repeal of the eighteenth amendment he said he favors "generous appropriations" in the meantime for federal enforcement activities, chiefly to prevent importation and interstate transportation of liquor.

Both Fort and Frelinghuysen have assailed the Morrow platform as a proposal to bring back the saloon. Fort has spent a good deal of time explaining his speech in congress in which he said that home brewing is not against the law. This was recognized at the time as a bid for wet support in his congressional district, which has been growing wetter and wetter, and from which he stood little chance of return unless he made concessions to the liberal element. Since becoming the bone dry candidate for the senatorship, however, Fort is explaining that what he meant in his speech was that nonintoxicating home brew is lawful.

Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale is campaigning for Fort, defending prohibition as a success and an inestimable boon to the country. Wherever Fisher appears the Morrow managers distribute quotations from Fisher's latest book, "The Noble Experiment," in which the professor advocates not only home brewing but home distilling.

JAPAN WILL NOTIFY ITS SUN GODDESS OF NAVAL TREATY TODAY

TOKIO, June 13.—(AP)—The sun goddess, Amaterasu, divine ancestress of the Japanese race, will be solemnly apprised tomorrow of the conclusion of the London naval limitation treaty, in accordance with the ages old custom of reporting to her major events affecting the destiny of the empire.

Admiral Hyo Takarabe, minister of marine and one of the delegates to the London conference, representing both the delegation and the cabinet, left here tonight from Ujiyamada to worship at the great shrine of Ise, which is dedicated to Amaterasu.

On Sunday Admiral Takarabe will go to Momoyama, near Kyoto, to make a similar report on the conclusion of the treaty at the tomb of the Emperor Meiji, founder of the modern empire of Japan.

YOUTH ORDERED HELD IN BRIDE SLAYING CASE

Provided the grand jury takes action, William Putscher, 19 years old, will have to face a jury in Criminal court in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Mildred Helsing, a bride of a year, in the Helsing home at 5830 Lake street. Putscher yesterday, despite his denials after twice confessing the crime, was ordered held without bail on a murder charge by Municipal Judge Francis B. Allegretti in Boys' court.

Reuben Helsing, husband of the victim, told of finding the body of his young wife in the living room of their apartment when he returned from work. A velvet ribbon was knotted tightly about her throat. The apartment had been robbed.

Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne and Lieut. John Norton of the detective bureau told of the confessions and subsequent denials of Putscher, arrested on May 19.

"POWERS WILL RATIFY," DAWES SAYS, RETURNING

Treaty Assures Parity, Ambassador Asserts.

New York, June 13.—[Special.]—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, returning to the United States on the Aquitania today after a year's absence, expressed the opinion that all the powers concerned would ratify the London naval treaty.

The document, he said, represents the greatest step taken in naval reduction and limitation, and he insisted it assures parity for the United States, giving full protection in the Pacific as well as the Atlantic.

Mr. Dawes left the liner at quarantine and came in on the customs cutter. Later he left for Trenton, N. J., where he will attend the graduation exercises at Lawrenceville school at which his son, Dana, is a student. He is to leave for Washington on Sunday.

"The general public of the world," said Mr. Dawes, "in my judgment, realizes the vital importance of the ratification by the powers concerned of the naval treaty, and that in the outcome primarily lies a present advance or retardation of the cause of world peace. I am confident this treaty will be ratified.

Carefully Planned.

"The treaty represents the greatest step ever taken in naval reduction and limitation and at the same time secures parity for the United States which could only be attained by a fifteen years naval race and a cost of two billions of dollars, during which we would have naval inferiority and curtailment of other useful government activities. It protects us both in the Atlantic and in the Pacific."

"After six months of the most careful consideration by the naval experts themselves as well as their principals before the conference met, the British and American delegates were agreed that the gross tonnage of the two fleets to be equated in fighting effectiveness was 2,500,000. The only unsettled questions between them was the comparatively insignificant one of a difference in their respective cruisers class tonnage of 24,000 tons, and the equating of this small tonnage difference in terms of 8 inch and 6 inch cruisers.

"At the conference a treaty compromise on this remaining difference was effected under which the actual tonnage difference between the two cruisers was reduced to only 15,500 tons.

Hints at Senate Delay.

"Under these circumstances the average man must know that this treaty compromise arrived at in the conference results in parity of the American and British fleets on a fair basis. Nor will he be diverted in this view by the efforts of the opponents of the treaty before the senate naval affairs committee to start the ten months' technical argument all over again.

"Now as to Japan. The treaty settlement resolved a tonnage difference between what the United States wanted and what the United States received of only 50,000 tons in the smaller categories out of an aggregate tonnage of the existing Japanese and American fleets of 2,000,000 tons. Under those circumstances common sense should lead to the conviction that the settlement is fair and the differences do not involve the question of the national security of either Japan or the United States."

Accompanying Ambassador Dawes on the Aquitania was Sir Henry Cole, director of the department of foreign affairs for Great Britain, who comes here in the interest of the Chicago fair.

PROHIBITION IS LATE MINNESOTA PRIMARY ISSUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., June 13.—[Special.]—Prohibition made an eleventh hour entry into Minnesota's Republican senatorship campaign today in a leaflet mailed under Senator Thomas D. Schall's frank extolling the referendum principle. It was guarded in phraseology and made no mention of the wet or dry question, but the politicians regarded it as a move to head off modificationists and liberals from deserting the Schall camp for John F. Selb, who is running as a wet.

Both leading contenders for the senatorship in Monday's Republican primaries, Schall and Gov. Theodore Christianson, are rated as drys, and the liquor question has been given scant mention, except by Selb, who has no organized support.

Minnesota, the home state of Andrew Volstead, is as wet as the rest of the Mississippi valley, but the politicians hold that votes are still to be rolled up by taking the dry end.

If it is a close race the protest vote for Selb might determine the winner. In Minneapolis there is a wet and dry fight in the Fifth congressional district. W. W. [Pudge] Heffelfinger, the old Yale football guard, a personal dry, has come out for a referendum on the liquor question as a guide to congress. He is running against Congressman W. I. Nolan, who has declared in favor of the eighteenth amendment.

Some Farmer-Labor leaders today addressed a round robin appeal urging members of their party to go into the Republican primary and support Schall, so that in the final election there will be "only Progressives to vote for."

There are six Republican candidates in the primaries, the leaders being ex-Gov. J. A. A. Burnquist, R. P. Chase, state auditor, and N. J. Holmberg, commissioner or agriculture.

SENATORS CAST INQUIRING EYE ON CANNON BROKER

Hear Clemency Has Been Arranged.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—Publication today of correspondence between Bishop James Cannon Jr. and Harry L. Goldhurst, head of the New York bucket shop through which the churchman speculated, drew senate attention to persistent rumors that Goldhurst's five year sentence to Atlanta penitentiary for using the mails to defraud has been or shortly will be commuted to two years. Goldhurst operated Kable & Co., with Charles W. Kable as the nominal head.

Aroused by the disclosure that Federal District Attorney Tuttle in New York had suppressed the Cannon-Goldhurst documents for two years, Senator G. W. Norris [Rep., Neb.] announced that on Monday he will submit a resolution calling on Attorney General Mitchell to produce papers showing what action has been taken toward commutation of Goldhurst's sentence and who sponsored appeals for clemency.

Guilty Plea Surprise.

Goldhurst unexpectedly pleaded guilty to the fraud charge on Oct. 16, 1929, and was immediately sentenced to the penitentiary. Reduction of the sentence to two years would make him eligible to parole within the next two months.

The correspondence between Bishop Cannon and Goldhurst made public yesterday for the first time, revealed that the southern Methodist dry leader was not only plunging heavily in highly speculative stocks and options, but also secured advances on his salary as a bishop to meet the demands of the bucketeer.

Kable & Co. was forced into bankruptcy and Goldhurst was indicted for using the mails to defraud in April, 1928. The indictment against Goldhurst was assigned by Tuttle for prosecution to an assistant, Mrs. Ella Mary Fallor, an alumnus of the Blackstone college for girls, Blackstone, Va., of which Cannon formerly was president.

Correspondence Impounded.

Tuttle impounded the Cannon-Goldhurst correspondence and it was not until June, 1929, when an attorney the bishop was revealed as a customer of the bucketshop.

Goldhurst's trial was repeatedly postponed and up to the moment he pleaded guilty on Oct. 16, 1929, a few days after Bishop Cannon sailed abroad unexpectedly, it was generally understood he intended to fight the case.

Cannon was notified, it is said, that Goldhurst intended to call him as a character witness. Later, it was reported to the bishop that if he was not called in Goldhurst's defense he would be subpoenaed by the attorneys for Kable.

Hasty Conference Reported.

The result was, according to current reports, a conference a few days before the trial between Cannon, C. Bascom Slemp, Republican national committeeman from Virginia, and Goldhurst in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York at which the necessity for sparing the bishop the embarrassment of appearance in court was discussed.

Goldhurst's friends have asserted that he was persuaded to plead guilty and assured that in return he would receive a nominal sentence, which would be quickly commuted through powerful influences in Washington. The five year sentence came as a stunning blow to Goldhurst who, according to reports, has been complaining from his cell in Atlanta that he was "double crossed."

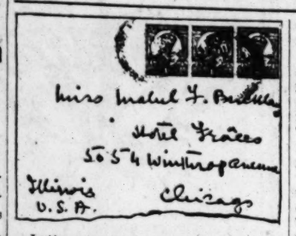
FROM AGRA, INDIA



Letter received by Miss Mabel F. Barckley, 930 Argyle street, Chicago.

Miss Barckley sends four letters from the far places, including Agra, India; Kokopo, New Guinea; Penang, on the island of Georgetown in British Malaya, and Fremantle, Australia. The first was chosen because it is the site of the famous Taj Mahal. The writer of this letter, Miss Barckley states, is a native of India and for about three years has been superintendent of the prisons at Agra.

Agra is one of the oldest of Indian cities and its fame is not entirely attributable to the location of the Taj Mahal there. Situated 841 miles north of Calcutta, it is an important railway center. The river Jumna passes the walls of its fort, and the city was a strategic point in the frontier defenses of the ancient Aryan people against the raiding bands from the hills of central India. The river gave it an additional advantage, not only as a means of communication and a natural protecting barrier for the fortress, but also because it provided excellent transportation for the produce of the rich Bengal delta.

Agra was the seat of power for Afghan chieftains for three hundred years, and in 1500 one named Sikandar, recognizing the value of its position, made it the capital of his kingdom. The Emperor Baber captured Agra in 1526. His grandson, Akbar, built the present fort, completed in 1665.

The Taj Mahal, on which the city's fame among tourists rests, has been called "the world's most beautiful building." It is a mausoleum, built by the Emperor Shah Jahan in 1632 for the remains of Mumtaz Mahal, his favorite wife. His own body also rests in it now. White marble forms the material throughout the building. A white dome crowns it in the center, with a smaller dome at each of the corners. Four tall minarets, also of white marble, rise from the marble terrace surrounding it at each corner.

BRITISH TROOPS MASS TO CRUSH INDIA REBELLION

Ready for Harsher Moves as Unrest Spreads.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, June 13.—With a battalion of 500 troops en route here from Poona and other detachments ordered here from other towns, the British government in India was preparing tonight to apply harsher methods in the suppression of the Nationalist movement for home rule. Meanwhile Liberal leaders and Indians of high influence are moving to end repression by appeals to the Nationalist congress and government officials.

Many Hurt in Clashes.

The police fired upon a Nationalist meeting in the Midnapur area today. Many were wounded.

Three hundred were wounded, 35 seriously, in a Hindu-Moslem clash near Nadiad.

Arrests at Lahore alone have reached 942 since the contest began, and the situation is becoming more serious in Punjab and all border states.

The Nationalist flag has been raised at Lahore. A tribal raid on the Baluchistan border is feared and precautions are being taken.

Today's news reports are endless tales of arrests and convictions of congress leaders. Increased prison terms are being applied everywhere, indicating that the magistrates are losing patience. The sentences are reaching from 18 to 24 months, which heretofore have been exceptional terms.

Officials in all provinces are expecting further orders from the viceroy, Lord Irwin, since otherwise there is a danger of the situation getting out of hand requiring further use of the military. The police require more urging owing to their being boycotted by the shopkeepers.

Jail Mutinous Soldiers.

The court martial of the 18th Garhwal Rifles for disobeying orders during the rioting at Peshawar recently has resulted in the conviction of 17. One was sentenced to transportation for life, another to 15 years prison, and the rest to three to ten years.

Nationalist congress bulletins continue to appear in mimeographed form The 19 year old editor of the Bombay Bulletin, Sayant Dalal, was sentenced to two years imprisonment today.

Troops Besiege City.

Licenses for carrying firearms are being revoked in many parts of India. Police efforts are tightening everywhere and are being aided in many places by the military. Soldiers are now blocking the entry to Sholapur, where 117 Nationalists are bent on carrying on a flag raising ceremony.

The situation is tightening in the Madras area, where a theater has been closed because a performer sang a Nationalist air. Also several shopkeepers have been arrested for refusing to sell provisions to the police.

Colleges in the Ahmendabad, Gujerat, and Surat districts are closed for the duration of the Nationalist fight.

Protest Picketing Ban.

Bengal continues to be the danger spot, owing to communal clashes. The Indian chamber of commerce at Calcutta has protested against the viceroy's picketing ordinance as tending to force the use of British goods and preventing the development of domestic industries.

The prohibition war is gaining impetus as a great number of licenses are just expiring. More than 350 drinking booths have been offered at auction without a single bidder.

CHICAGO WARNED OF URGENT NEED OF RELIEF BILLS

Strawn Statement Advises United Support.

An urgent appeal for support of the bills pending before the special session of the general assembly to meet the financial problems of Cook county and Chicago was issued yesterday by the citizens' committee, headed by Silas H. Strawn.

"The responsibility of government rests upon the citizens who enjoy its protection," read the closing paragraph of a press statement issued by the committee. "If the citizens of Chicago are to continue to have a government after July 1 they must do what they can to bring about the passage of the pending legislation which will enable the government to function."

Assembly Meets Tuesday.

The statement opened with a reminder that consideration of the relief bills is scheduled for resumption by the special session next Tuesday, together with the proposed amendment to the revenue article of the state constitution.

"Unless remedial measures are enacted without delay," continued the Strawn appeal, "Chicago and the other municipalities in the county, including Cook county itself, will be virtually unable to meet operating expenses.

"There will be no money to pay policemen, firemen, school teachers, or any other public employés. Unless the relief is obtained there will be a repetition on a more distressing scale of the conditions which existed last winter. Delayed pay rolls—in some instances weeks and months overdue—were met then by what amounted to popular subscription of a relief fund of $74,000,000 organized by the citizens' committee to permit the local governments to function until legislative aid could be obtained.

"By July 1 this fund will have been exhausted."

Minimizes Tax Relief.

The statement said that the relief measures will increase taxes, "but not to such an extent as many people expect."

"The chief source of public revenue is taxes," read the statement, "and the load under which the municipalities are staggering must be met by taxes. Obviously, the longer the delay in paying existing debts, the greater will be the burden the taxpayers must meet. The interest on the outstanding debts of the county and city is accumulating at the rate of about $50,000 a day. The citizens' committee, in the preparation of its measures, has endeavored to keep the taxes at the lowest possible amount that would meet the necessities of the situation."

Chicago Debts Outspeed Its Growth, U. S. Figures Show

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—The per capita net debt of Chicago's local governmental agencies jumped from $77.90 in 1927 to $96.34 in 1928, while it was only $28.30 in 1917, according to a report of the city's financial statistics issued today by the department of commerce.

The heavy increase in bonded indebtedness during the year representing a boost of $18.44 for each inhabitant as compared to an average increase of $3.96 during each of the previous ten years was an outstanding feature of the report which was compiled from official figures by the department's experts. Similar reports are made annually for other leading cities.

The figures were made to represent all the transactions of the city, school board, and park districts, 91.1 per cent of those of the county and forest preserves, and 92.5 per cent of those of the sanitary district, the percentage in each case being the ratio of tax valuation of the city to that of the entire district. The per capita figures for 1928 were based on an estimated population of 3,157,400.

Figures for Dec. 31, 1928.

The total funded or fixed debt outstanding Dec. 31, 1928, was $308,681,756 and the net indebtedness, that is the fixed debt less sinking fund assets, $304,194,520, divided as follows:

City, $97,332,353; county, $22,094,665; schools, $12,000; parks, $70,560,989; forest preserves, $12,799,802; sanitary district, $101,344,711.

"The increased per capita net debt reported for 1928 was principally due to bond issues for the sanitary district, parks, and for county purposes," the report stated.

The total expenditures by the six political subdivisions for 1928, according to the report, were $301,146,231, while the total revenue receipts were $241,748,819, which was $59,397,412 less than the total expenditures. Those payments in excess of the revenue receipts were met from the proceeds of debt obligations.

Compared with Property Taxes.

Property taxes represented 67 per cent of the total revenue for 1928, as compared to 65.9 per cent for 1927 and 56.5 per cent for 1917. The increase in the amount of property taxes collected was 202.4 per cent from 1917 to 1927, and 2.2 per cent from 1927 to 1928. The per capita property taxes were $51.30 in 1928, $51.08 in 1927, and $20.39 in 1917.

The taxable valuation of property in Chicago subject to ad valorem taxes was $4,250,437,799. The levy for all purposes was $266,170,603, of which 33.6 per cent was levied for the city, 9.3 per cent for the county, 31.3 per cent for the schools, 9.7 per cent for the parks, 1.6 per cent for the forest preserves, 8.2 per cent for the sanitary district, and 6.2 per cent for the state.

The per capita tax levy for the city, county, schools, parks, forest preserves, sanitary district, and state was $65.30 in 1928, $66.45 in 1927, and $26.24 in 1917. The valuation reported was for the fiscal year ending Dec. 31, 1927, there having been no revaluation of the property of Chicago at the time the report was compiled.

WHISPER LANDS $700 FOR ROBBER IN CHICAGO BANK

A smartly dressed young man, carrying a pistol in a folded newspaper, approached Fred Smoler, teller in the Superior State bank, 3500 West 16th street, twenty minutes before closing time yesterday, laid his concealed weapon on the counter and whispered:

"Shove out some money in large bills." Tellers in adjoining cages did not even glance up, but Smoler, eyeing the protruding muzzle of the pistol, obeyed with alacrity.

From the heap of currency the robber selected approximately $700 in bills of $20 and $50 denomination, pushed back about $300 in smaller bills, and fled before Smoler gave the alarm. Officials of the bank stated that insurance covered the loss.

STATE LIST CHANGES

Washington, D. C., June 13.—(AP)—The second shift of states in population ratings came with North Dakota's 1930 census report of 681,273, which put her lower than Rhode Island on the list.

The first reported change was when the District of Columbia passed New Hampshire for the first time in history.

Rhode Island, smallest state in area, this year proved she was still big enough to stage a comeback. In 1910 Rhode Island was passed by the comparatively young state of North Dakota. Simultaneously South Dakota outstripped Rhode Island. In 1920 North Dakota was 36th state, South Dakota 37th, and Rhode Island 38th.

But during the last decade Rhode Island gained 13.3 per cent over her 1920 population of 604,397; North Dakota gained but 5.3 per cent over her 681,273. They now stand: Rhode Island, 686,017; North Dakota, 681,273.

Cities Help Iowa Gain.

Des Moines, Ia., June 13.—(AP)—The population of Iowa by the 1930 federal census is 2,468,747, compared with 2,404,021 ten years ago.

The figure, compiled from the figures for each of the 99 counties in the state, made public by the 15 federal supervisors, is unofficial.

The state's gain was due entirely to increases in its city population. Des Moines, the state's only 100,000 city, contributed 16,001 toward the increase, while Cedar Rapids accounted for 9,813, Waterloo 9,739, Sioux City 7,804, Council Bluffs 6,362, Ottumwa 5,073, Newton 4,923, Davenport 4,001, and Ames 3,991.

Seattle Suburbs Gain.

Seattle, Wash., June 13.—(AP)—The population of King county, including Seattle, was announced today as 459,213, a gain of 17.99 per cent in ten years. The preliminary figures showed the population outside Seattle's city limits as 96,787, a gain of 31.5 per cent.

Newark Gains 29,646.

Newark, N. J., June 13.—(AP)—Newark showed an increase of 29,646, or 9.33 per cent in revised figures, placing the population at 444,170.

FOUR MORE DIE FROM DRINKING SMOKE BOOZE IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, June 13.—[Special.]—The trail of death from poison liquor moved from the east to the lower west side of Manhattan today. Three additional victims of the deadly drink known as "smoke" were found lying in the streets of New York, while a fourth fatality was announced from Brooklyn.

The cases of six men arrested when police found wood alcohol on their premises will be heard June 19. They are charged with maintaining nuisances.

BAR ASSOCIATION ASKS TO DISBAR PHILIP R. DAVIS

Unethical Action Charged in Divorce Case.

The Chicago Bar association yesterday filed information with the Supreme court for leave to institute disbarment proceedings against Attorney Philip R. Davis, whose offices are at 110 South Dearborn street. The attorney is charged with violating legal ethics and with conduct unbecoming a lawyer in presenting perjured testimony to obtain a Cook county divorce for a New York woman.

The charge was first made before Judge John J. Sullivan on Feb. 4, 1929, by Attorney George L. Schein. Davis obtained a divorce in 1928 for Mrs. Lillian Bowers Friedlander, 67 Park avenue, New York, from William T. Friedlander, a wealthy business man. The woman later began action to set aside the decree, alleging that she had been duped by her husband's attorney, a New York lawyer, and by Davis whom he retained to do the work.

Judge Sullivan recommended an investigation by the bar association. The association's grievance committee, after several hearings, recently recommended the institution of disbarment proceedings. The board of managers approved the report and the action before the Supreme court resulted. Similar proceedings were urged against Attorneys Vincent P. Page, Harley K. Legg, and Herman K. Barnett, who are charged with diverting clients' money to their own use.

STORE OWNER IS ROBBED.

Morris Altshuler, proprietor of a drug store at 1358 Webster avenue, was held up in the store yesterday by two young robbers, who escaped with $40 cash and $19 in checks after binding and gagging him in a rear room.

MANIU, RUMANIAN COUNTRY LAWYER, FORMS A CABINET

Defeats Carol's Demand for Coalition.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, June 13.—Iuliu Maniu, a small town lawyer and school teacher from the Transylvanian hills, and the man who drove the all powerful Bratianu interests from the lucrative positions they had enjoyed for 60 years, rode back into power tonight, triumphing in the end over King Carol's position that the new monarch's first government should be a coalition, representing all the parties of the nation.

M. Maniu, who has an overwhelming parliamentary majority behind him, insisted on a national peasant government. The king relented and the rural leader set to work today to form a cabinet. The new government, which was sworn in tonight, shows few changes from the one which resigned last Saturday.

Carol's Friend Gets Post.

Michael Manoilescu, who engineered the plot which brought Carol back, was rewarded with the ministry of communications. He is president of the union chamber of commerce and is regarded as one of the most brilliant economists in the country.

Gregory Junian, former minister of justice, who resigned a few months ago as a protest against the new laws restricting the liberty of the press, is back again at his old post, this ensuring foreign newspaper correspondents the right to tell the world the actual facts about the country's situation.

The formation of the same government, which in 18 months of rule wiped out much of the graft and corruption of the Bratianu régime, balanced the budget for the first time in post war history, abolished censorship, opened the doors to foreign capital and stabilized the currency, meets with the general approval of the country except the die hard Liberals and Prof. Jorga's party of one deputy, which is he, himself.

Jorga Expresses Himself.

Prof. Jorga, who was once Carol's tutor, cornered THE TRIBUNE correspondent at a street intersection tonight and roared:

"It is a tragedy that the king should come back to commence his reign with a small town lawyer and a bickering politician, like Maniu. I admire him for his genius, which can combine more error and system than any other living man."

Jean Duca, the brains of the Liberal party, said:

"I am afraid of the future. It looks very bad and everything is uncertain."

The makeup of the new cabinet follows:

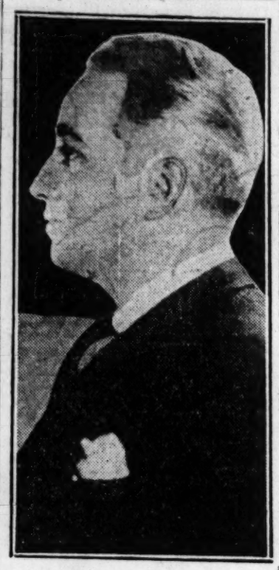
BEG YOUR PARDON!



THOMAS LAWLER.

Through a mixup between a caption referring to the robbery at the Garfield Arms hotel and another referring to the arrest of Ted Newberry, gangster, in New York City, the expression "freed after New York arrest" appeared under a cut of Thomas Lawler, manager of the Garfield Arms hotel, in some copies of the first edition of the Friday TRIBUNE. The mistake was corrected almost immediately and did not appear in other copies of the first edition, or in any other edition. Mr. Lawler was not connected in any way with any New York arrest and there was nothing conected with the robbery of the hotel, of which he is manager, for which he could be blamed.

COURT AWARDS $1,355,159 TO VANDERBILT KIN

New York, June 13.—[Special.]—The children of Alfred G. Vanderbilt were enriched to the extent of $1,355,159 when the appellate division of the Supreme court today affirmed the decree of Surrogate James A. Foley, holding that the surplus income derived from a trust established in the will of Cornelius Vanderbilt belongs to the estate of the residuary legatee.

After Vanderbilt's death his executors set apart stocks and bonds to create the trust fund for the payment of the annuity and placed these securities in a separate box labeled "annuity." With occasional changes the same securities have been held ever since.

On Oct. 31, 1928, the surplus income amounted to $1,355,159. The trust fund then amounted to $7,522,875, yielding an income of $343,740.

The executors and Alfred G. Vanderbilt's children contended that the accumulated excess net income be declared due and payable to them as residuary legatees.

ESTRANGED HUSBAND KILLS WIFE.

Blytheville, Ark., June 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Annie R. Hodge, 27, was shot to death at the home of her mother here last night by her estranged husband, Fletcher E. Hodge of Memphis, Tenn., and today a posse was searching for him.

SENATE TO VOTE NEXT ON ILLINOIS WATERWAY PLAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—Action on the Illinois waterway before adjournment of congress seemed assured today when the senate made the house rivers and harbors bill the unfinished business following approval of the tariff conference report. Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.], chairman of the commerce committee announced that he would call up the bill on Monday.

Passage of the bill is expected after a debate of two or three days centering chiefly on the Illinois waterway item.

Senator John J. Blaine [Rep., Wis.] introduced today a substitute Illinois waterway provision which is backed by the spokesmen for the lake states which are arrayed against Chicago and Illinois on the water diversion question.

THE GANGLAND JUDGES.

Judicial poise is, of course, a priceless asset to the bench. Still we cannot regard as a virtue the evident enthusiasm with which many of our judges turn loose notorious killers. The tendency in this direction of many of the judges of the Municipal court and some judges of the Circuit and Superior courts is in no small measure responsible for the reign of terror which has culminated in the killing of Mr. Lingle.

The task of catching a gang killer is itself a difficult one. The task of convicting him, if caught, is an even heavier one. The law is framed to give every advantage to the suspect and none to the prosecuting officers. The dice are loaded against society in its effort to protect life and property; and, not content with that, there are judges who will stretch the law in favor of the gangster.

Under the circumstances, it would be remarkable if gang killings did not multiply. It would be astonishing if the gang killers did not reach out of their own circle for victims.

CARL SCHURZ.

The State Historical Society of Wisconsin and its superintendent, Joseph Schafer, have done a great deal of research work to obtain source material bearing upon the life of Carl Schurz. The documents already published, read in conjunction with his own addresses and autobiography, prove that this German expatriate was a figure of real importance in American history. He obtained some fame as a revolutionist statesman, diplomat, civil war divisional commander, editor, author, and cabinet secretary, but his greatest service was rendered in the almost private capacity of a politician seeking votes for Abraham Lincoln. He assumed the task of Americanizing immigrants, and incidentally [or perhaps primarily] getting them to join the Republican party. It is probable that the real fruits of his activities were not gathered until the days of the world war, when the loyalty of the Germanic population of the middle west proved a welcome asset to our government and a shock to the Berlin statesmen.

Seventy years ago this month Carl Schurz, having offered his services to Lincoln, assumed the duty of impressing upon the 1,500,000 German immigrants the necessity of upholding the constitution, supporting the candidacy of Lincoln, and ultimately freeing the slaves. The Germans had been allied with the Democratic party. The German group held the balance of power in Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and perhaps in New York and Missouri. His task seemed almost beyond hope, but Schurz went at it with the untiring energy and optimism of one who was almost a fanatic in his belief in America as the hope of the downtrodden peoples of the world.

From his Wisconsin home he journeyed back and forth across prairies and mountains between New York and St. Louis, between Minneapolis and Louisville, delivering orations, organizing immigrant groups, writing pamphlets and editorials, instructing orators, advising party managers, and always instilling in the minds of every one with whom he came in contact the necessity of strengthening the Union and throttling secession at whatever cost of labor or blood.

His job was completed. Party leaders were astonished at the results. The foreign element followed his leadership everywhere. Lincoln was elected. "Schurz is one of the greatest orators in America," was Lincoln's grateful comment. "He is tremendous." The two were close friends throughout the civil war period.

Afterward Schurz went to Spain as American minister, his special task being to convince the European liberals that slavery was to be abolished in America, and to keep them patiently friendly until the proper moment should arrive for this great consummation. Then back to Washington to assume a military command, winning distinction if not fame as a soldier. After the war, as a presidential emissary, he drew up a report upon which was based the congressional system of reconstruction, but he was shocked at the needless oppression of southern states by tactless and cruel northern leaders. Later as a United States senator he battled for a more kindly and liberal attitude toward the south, and his insistence did much to restore civil peace.

Schurz was not an office seeker; he was a lover of liberty and democracy and justice. He fled Germany to escape tyranny, and he gave his heart and energy to preventing the establishment of tyranny in his adopted land, whether it should be promoted by slave holders, capitalists, demagogues, self-styled aristocrats, or what not. He was a true patriot and, while he made many mistakes in judgment, the beneficial effects of his life and work will be felt for generations to come.

Wisconsin may well be proud to honor this adopted son.

COLOR IN NEWSPAPERS.

Color, like red dawn, has flashed across the gray sheets of the daily newspaper. On the black print presses of THE TRIBUNE color processes have been in use for some time. The colored newspaper is here. It is THE TRIBUNE. From one color to two colors on to four colors the development will go. As inevitably as the morning, color will spread from the weekly feature sections to the page of every day. Its era will expand and be long lasting.

What black and white will do, color will do better. It will complicate the job of making newspapers, but it will make effects at once more powerful and subtle. The carrying power of type and pictures will be much greater.

Color costs work and money to build into a paper, but the results will more than justify the trouble. For every color used there must be a duplication, almost entire, of workers and equipment. More men must be employed. More materials, machinery and space must be used.

Newspapers in polychrome will impose new craftsmanship and skill on the makers of the printed page. The technique of design and makeup must be restudied. The effective use of color in the newspaper will arouse a new art of news and advertisement.

The American way of building jobs for men is to improve the manufacturing process and product. New machinery and invention, more skilled labor and more wants take up the industrial slack. This is in sharp contrast with the older theory of keeping down machinery to make more jobs. And the American way has worked out best for the worker and consumer.

THE NEW CHAMPION.

Mr. Schmeling of Germany is heavyweight champion of the United States and its overseas possessions, with his title copyrighted in all other countries, including the Scandinavian. Mr. Sharkey, the American sailor of Lithuanian ancestry, knocked Mr. Schmeling into that honorable and profitable estate by hitting him too low in the fourth round of their fight in the Yankee stadium Thursday night. He is the first heavyweight champion who ever had to learn what he was from his manager, seconds and attending physicians and even be persuaded of it.

It will be understandable if Mr. Scott, the English heavyweight, becomes the victim of bitter reflections upon hearing of this incident. He was fouled by Mr. Sharkey extensively and intensively in Florida last winter and got nothing out of it but pain and raillery, whereas Mr. Schmeling gets renown and a bank account. These things make pessimists of prize fighters.

Mr. Sharkey also will view the occurrence gloomily. He evidently had schooled himself carefully against his natural volatility. He was disciplined against weeping, swearing, foul fighting, and mayhem. He was in his best form and was fighting a cool, heady fight when a blow went low and both he and Schmeling were done for in different fashions. It may take some time for America and its pugilistic provinces to accustom themselves to a German heavyweight champion, but the new boy has power, courage and other commendable qualities.

He has yet to prove what he can do in the game at its best when he may have to meet his own manager, the referee and two of the judges, the other fellow's manager, an eye irritant on the other fellow's gloves, a bottle or two or a section of pipe in the corners and something in his barley broth. He may then prove that he is a real champion or he may not. He encountered Mr. Sharkey under the auspices of the milk fund, which was the first agency to put charity in the prize ring and the prize ring in the social register. A fair return is to give the fund the game in its more chivalric forms. Hence the scruples which made Mr. Schmeling champion.

The most engaging prospect is that he may be allowed to meet the huge Italian, Mr. Carnera, soon. America should refuse to take any responsibility for the consequences, but would enjoy seeing what they might be.

Editorials of the Day

COTTON GINNING.

[New York Sun.]

On March 14, 1794, the United States issued to Eli Whitney a patent on a machine to separate cotton fiber from cotton seed—the cotton gin.

On April 21, 1930, the President of the United States approved a bill authorizing the secretary of agriculture to investigate the ginning of cotton, to establish and maintain ginning plants and laboratories, and to make such tests, demonstrations, and experiments and such technical and scientific studies in relation to cotton ginning as he shall deem necessary.

Why?

Because, the Official Record says, "need for improvement in the ginning of the cotton crop has been urged by every branch of the cotton industry," but "in the past efforts to improve the quality of ginning have been handicapped by lack of scientific information and by the number and complexity of the factors both in the seed cotton and in the ginning process."

That is, the congress and the President of the United States believe that in 136 years the cotton industry in all its numerous branches has lacked the enlightened self-interest to study its fundamental problems, the resources with which to inform itself as to the elementary factors in its well being, the enterprise to adapt to betterment of its processes the knowledge accumulated by science of which all other industries have so intelligently made use.

Is this indictment justified by the facts?

UNIVERSAL DRAFT.

[Peoria, Ill., Transcript.]

We have never been particularly avid in support of the universal draft idea—not because we did not think it just, but because we feared it might tend to make an armed camp out of the country and result in complete breakdown of all rules of war now existing regarding noncombatants. Manifestly, if we become a nation of soldiers, we invite the making of war upon all of us. This might be very fair, but it is scarcely wise and chivalrous.

During the administration of Dwight W. Davis and the late James W. Good the war department supported the universal draft idea. Possibly, at this time, it appreciates the logical time to pass emergency measures is at the beginning of the emergency. The plan is for the department regularly to submit to congress a universal draft bill. These bills, however, would not be passed. They would merely be in reserve, ready for passage if needed.

This scheme, we submit, is more logical than the proposal of the American Legion to pass such a measure now and then, possibly, have it outworn by the time it was needed—if ever.

TREATING DRUG ADDICTION.

THE following method of treating morphine addiction, developed by Dr. Cook in coöperation with Warden White and Dr. Bennett, is that used in Leavenworth prison. In this prison there is a total registration of about five thousand, of whom about one-fifth were addicted to morphine or some other preparation of opium. The number under treatment remains rather constantly around one thousand, the admittances about equaling the discharges. No private clinic or hospital has so many cases, nor are their cases under control to the same degree, nor are they under observation for so long a period.

The addict is given one full dose of calomel followed by one, and sometimes two, doses of salt. The very extreme methods of purging used in some cures, Dr. Bennett of Leavenworth does not use. They drain too much water from the tissues, and the tissues of the drug addict are too dry to begin with.

The drug is then withdrawn without any preliminary period of diminishing dosage. During the period of drug hunger a hypodermic injection of 5 minims of adrenalin solution and 1-40th of a grain of strychnine are given to bolster the heart and keep up the blood pressure. Such an injection is given about three times a day or sometimes more often. No bromides or sedatives are given under any circumstances. Their experience indicates that bromides, hyoscyamus, and other sedative drugs increase delirium and do more harm than good.

During the first three days there will not be much appetite and no special effort is made to give any food. Some fruit juices and some water are offered from time to time, but they are not pushed. It is better to add a little salt to the water. A few doses of soda are given in some cases. After about three days the appetite returns and then feeding is begun with the use of a soft diet. Fruits are speedily added. This completes the treatment. Nothing else is given.

The after-care consists in building up the subject's body by feeding fresh fruits and vegetables and good meats and milk, by giving cod liver oil and by exposing him to sunlight. Building up character—the real need—is a more difficult matter.

USE FRUITS AND WATER.

G. P. writes: A recent urinalysis showed excessive acidity [70 degrees], 2 hyaline casts, and uric acid crystals. I am not a heavy eater. Have meat twice a week. I do not know what causes this condition. I am a man, 56 years of age, active, and feel healthy.

REPLY.

I expect you eat freely of crackers, cereals, breads, and pastries. If you want to change the reaction, eat more fruits and vegetables, and drink more water.

PROBABLY IS PRICKLY HEAT.

Mrs. A. S. writes: Why do my legs, arms, and other parts of my body that have not been exposed to the sun before come out in a rash just like prickly heat and get very itchy? I have been like this for the last two summers and it is very annoying.

REPLY.

My guess is prickly heat. The rash results from soaking the skin with sweat. Prompt removal of garments wet with sweat generally is all that is necessary.

PAIN NEAR THE CHEST.

J. W. P. writes: You wrote Mrs. E. R. that pain in the heart region was usually neuralgia or rheumatism of the chest muscles and did not mean heart disease. You are absolutely right. I had such a pain and I thought it was heart disease. My doctor had me put on a porous plaster. Presto! I was well. Since then I use a porous plaster when I get such a pain.

A FIRE AVERTED.

Chicago, June 6.—[Friend of the People.]—The incinerator on top of the building next us on Lake Shore drive lets parts of charred paper and smoke blow about and into the windows of nearby apartments. One night recently flames shot from the incinerator. In case of a high wind this condition might result in a fire. MRS. K.

This complaint has been investigated by this department. Orders were issued to discontinue the practice of burning rubbish and paper in incinerator and abate nuisance complained of.

Subsequent inspections indicate that this nuisance is abated. The complainant also advises the department that an improvement has been noticed.

The premises will be kept under observation so that if at any time in the future it recurs the department can take prompt action to correct the trouble.

FRANK A. CHAMBERS,
Deputy Smoke Inspector.

INFERIOR FUEL.

Chicago, June 6.—[Friend of the People.]—Will you please refer the nuisance caused by the smoke from the boys' club on Orchard street to the proper authorities who will abate such a nuisance? M. R.

Your smoke complaint with reference to nuisance on Orchard street has been investigated and our inspector reports that this is a charitable institution and the coal is donated to them. Low volatile fuel for all their needs would be very expensive. The donor of the coal is in turn urging his friends to donate clean and better coal.

This department will follow up this complaint until the nuisance is entirely abated.

FRANK A. CHAMBERS,

ANOTHER SMOKE COMPLAINT.

Chicago, June 6.—[Friend of the People.]—We live on the second floor of a building and there is a bungalow next door. When the wind is in the right direction it blows the smoke from the bungalow right into our windows, nearly choking us. They will do nothing about raising the chimney. Something should be done. A. E. R.

Your smoke complaint with reference to nuisance on South Throop street has been investigated and an order was sent to "extend stack serving heating boiler to clear roof of two story building north, within ten days, and abate nuisance of smoke to neighborhood, forthwith." This department will follow up this complaint until the nuisance is entirely abated.

FRANK A. CHAMBERS,
Deputy Smoke Inspector.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE GREAT WIDE WORLD!

Well, class of 1930, it's about all over now and you'll be on your way. You've got your diplomas, and you'll go forth, as the baccalaureate speaker has so well said, out into the great wide world. Of course, that was the hooey; you'll go forth into a well kept rooming house (eight dollars per week, strictly in advance), and you'll take your meals at the Eatte Shoppe just around the corner. But the great wide world stuff is always pulled so strong around graduation time that it sounds as though you'd spend the next few months shooting lions in Africa, tigers in India, polar bears at the north pole, grizzlies in the Rockies, and puttering around from New York to London, Paris, Berlin, Moscow, Cairo, Bombay, the island of Bali, pronounced bolly, Three Oaks, Mich., and Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Instead, you'll take a plain, yellow looking street car every morning and give the conductor seven cents, and you'll get off in the loop and wander around looking for a job. At noon you'll hunt up a busy, crowded place and get a cup of coffee and a ham sandwich and maybe a couple of doughnuts. And in the afternoon, when you tire of hunting a job, you'll drop into a movie, and then at evening you'll jam into another street car and hang to a strap and a fat woman will stand on your feet and you'll ride a block past your street before you can fight your way through the rest of the human sardines and get out. And then as you walk back to the place where the tooth brush and pyjamas and the rest of your things are parked you will say to yourself: "So this is the great wide world. Oh, hell!"

'TIS BETTER.

'Tis better, perhaps, never to know
What lies beyond the hill—
For the grasses content in the valley grow
And peace is heavy and still.

'Tis better, if one must dwell inland,
To hold no dreams of the sea,
Nor ever to seek or understand
How beautiful life could be.

HEY, CENSUS ENUMERATOR! Come on back here. We didn't see why it was any particular concern of yours, but we told you we had a radio. Now the darned thing has gone bloole and we've pulled it out and chucked it under the bathtub. So we haven't got a radio any more and we want you to cross it off your list. If it was worth while putting it down in the first place it's worth while finding out that we gave it the gate.

GREAT REJOICING OVER TARIFF BILL

SPONTANEOUS DEMONSTRATIONS occurred all over the country yesterday when the glad news spread around that the Smoot-Hawley-Grundy bill had passed the senate. In Washington park twenty-five thousand people turned out with bands, fireworks, drum corps, flags, and all sorts of things. In the picture you see Mr. Ultimate Consumer just screaming himself hoarse, he was so pleased; and leading the cheering was Mr. Ira Dirt Farmer of Iowa. Clarence Whitecollar (on extreme right) was overcome with joy at the passage of the bill and had to be carried home on a shutter. Scenes similar to the one shown in the picture occurred all over Iowa, Minnesota, the two Dakotas, Nebraska, and the corn, wheat, butter, and egg belt generally.

WE READ in one of the afternoon rags yesterday that congress had just voted twenty-five thousand bucks to uncover the hideous trail of communistic propaganda in these United States, and we got to worrying and worrying about the bright red necktie we were wearing until finally we climbed in a taxi and hurried back home and took the doggoned necktie off and burned it in the oven. You can't be too careful these days.

LOZ ONGLAIZE seems to be horning into the census reports all the time. First that Loz Onglaize is liable to beat out Detroit, and next that Loz Onglaize has just found two hundred thousand more people they didn't know about before, and then that Loz Onglaize has extended its borders to include Denver and Nicaragua. But always Loz Onglaize, Loz Onglaize, Loz Onglaize! What ever became of that town San Francisco that used to be somewhere out there in California, too? Maybe by this time it's the 759th ward of Loz Onglaize.

LAGNIAPPE.

EVERYBODY pooh-poohs Friday the Thirteenth and says that the idea the day is one when the jinx puts all sorts of bad luck on people is a silly superstition. All right, yesterday was Friday the Thirteenth, and the senate passed the tariff bill. Laugh that off!

OH, SURE, there's nothing in Friday the Thirteenth being a hoodoo day! But July wheat came so near to sinking under a dollar a bushel yesterday that the Farm Board almost sent for the firemen to bring the pulmotor. Oh, no, Friday the Thirteenth isn't unlucky; take a look at July wheat—it's trembling yet.

What! You don't know what day this is! Well, take a look. Now, then, what day is it? Right!

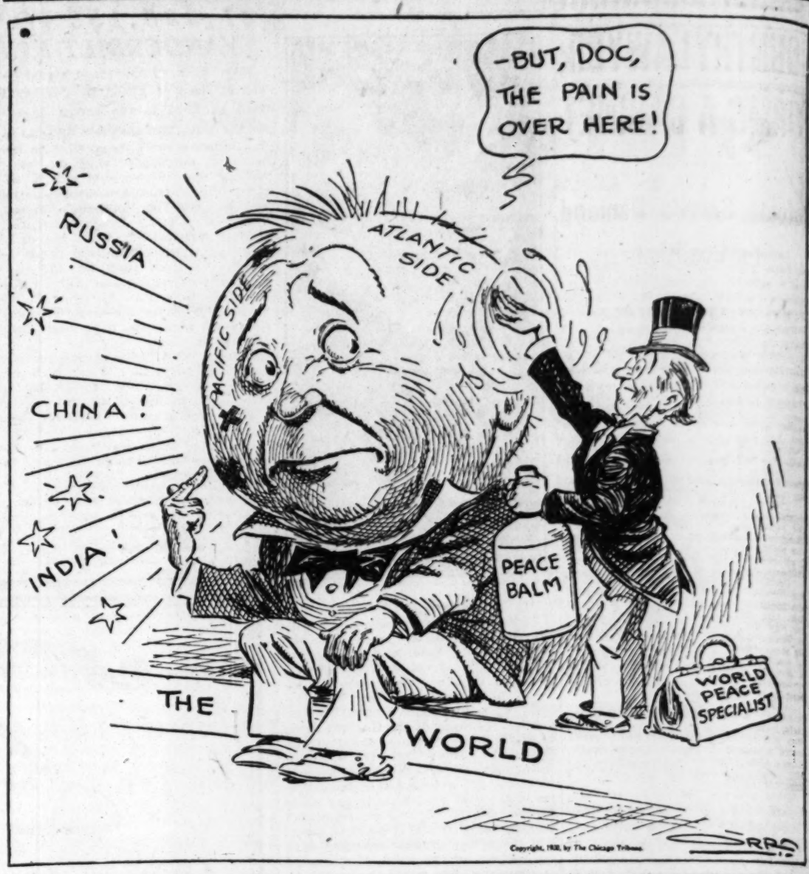
WORKING ON THE WRONG SIDE



FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 14, 1865.

WASHINGTON.—President Johnson issued two proclamations. The first appointed Judge William S. Sharkey of Mississippi provisional governor of that state under stipulations similar to those in the case of North Carolina. The other removes restrictions on trade with the south.

WASHINGTON.—The military commission trying the Lincoln assassination conspirators spent the most of the day's session in hearing evidence on the insanity of Payne. Dr. Charles C. Hall testified that the mind of the prisoner seemed very inert. A commission was named to examine into Payne's alleged insanity.

CHICAGO.—The 88th and 89th Illinois regiments, the former generally known as the Second Board of Trade regiment and the latter as the Railroad regiment, arrived at Camp Douglas. The veterans were given a rousing reception as they marched through the streets. Frank T. Sherman is present colonel of the 88th and Charles T. Hotchkiss of the 89th.

CHICAGO.—Gov. Oglesby and O. M. Hatch came to Chicago to confer with Mrs. Lincoln relative to the location of the monument to be erected in Springfield to the memory of the late President, about which some difficulty exists. Mrs. Lincoln demands that the monument be erected in Oak Ridge cemetery, that the remains of Mr. Lincoln be deposited there, and that the lot shall be used as a burial place for herself, family, and descendants. She sets a time limit for compliance with her demands, and intimates that if they are not acceded to she will accept a proposition to deposit the remains in a crypt at the capitol in Washington which was originally prepared to receive the body.

JUNE 14, 1900.

CHICAGO.—William Jennings Bryan came to town and immediately went into consultation with Senator James K. Jones, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and other party leaders. At the end of the conference Mr. Bryan announced the platform as outlined. Money, imperialism and trusts will be the great issues set up by the Kansas City convention.

CHICAGO.—Edwin G. Cooley, principal of the La Grange school and principal elect of the Chicago Normal school, was chosen by a unanimous vote of the board of education to succeed Dr. E. Benjamin Andrews as superintendent of Chicago schools. The salary was fixed at $7,000 a year.

LONDON.—The Chinese are entrenching outside of Peking to oppose the advance of the international columns. A Tientsin dispatch says it is learned that the Chinese have guns trained on the American mission and the British legation.

LONDON.—Telegraphic communication with Pretoria was reopened, permitting a long message from Lord Roberts to come through. The British attacked Gen. Botha's Boer army on June 11 in a position fifteen miles east of Pretoria and the fight was still on when Lord Roberts, hearing of the interruption of his communications, had to hurry back and make arrangements for reopening the railway.

JUNE 14, 1920.

CHICAGO.—Developments of yesterday banished not only all fears of a split in the Republican party but revealed a state of harmony in support of the Harding and Coolidge ticket in a campaign which will accentuate the issues of Americanism and reduction of the high cost of living.

NEW YORK.—The theory of suicide was virtually abandoned by the police in the mysterious death of Joseph B. Elwell, wealthy turfman and noted whist authority, who was found in his home June 11 with a bullet wound in his head. Insistence of many of his friends that jealousy may have played an important part in the case spurred the twenty-five detectives working on the mystery to tracing his women acquaintances and men with whom he played bridge for high stakes. Two clubmen, both his acquaintances, are being sought. Some of Elwell's friends advanced the theory that he had been murdered by "a father or a husband."

CHICAGO.—Yesterday was the fourth day of the hot wave and the thermometer rose to 91 at 3 p. m.

LESSON IN MUNICIPAL ENTERPRISE.

Chicago, June 12.—Right now, while everybody with a socialistic urge is trying to discredit the traction ordinance and defeat it at the referendum July 1, is an excellent time to make some folks who seldom stop and think get busy and think straight for a few minutes.

Preliminary to this thinking let each one, as an investigator, step into the city hall and the county building, observe the operation of the elevators in those buildings, size up the personnel while making a few trips on those elevators and otherwise get posted on the passenger carrying capacity of a small group under the administration of public officials. Then step across the street in any direction and make the same observations in half a dozen buildings with elevators under private ownership.

Service to passengers is more important to a community than is any bother about the final destination of the profits, if any, in any passenger carrying operation.

Again, in view of the present financial problems which are the direct result of long years of bungling in the handling of public funds, just what would become of any alleged profits growing out of a publicly owned traction system, if they were earned?

GEORGE LANDIS WILSON.

WHERE STREET CARS ARE QUIET.

Chicago, June 5.—In April of this year I spent several days in Geneva, at the Hotel de la Paix, situated on a very busy thoroughfare fronting the lake at the corner of this street with another. The dining room is on the ground floor and my table was at a window overlooking both streets. It was some time before it came to my notice that an active street car service was being carried on over these streets around this corner, so free from noise was its operation. In Chicago there would have been a screeching and roaring and clanging of machinery and pounding of gongs.

Why is street car operation quiet in Geneva? I do not know, but if I had any responsibility for street car operation in Chicago I would try to find out. It may be that the construction of the cars has something to do with it, for when a street car in Chicago takes a dive at a crossing and hits it the crash can be heard for two blocks, and the sounds seem to come from underneath the car. It would be an easy matter to get the specifications of the Geneva cars and learn whether loose construction of the machinery is the cause of the excessive noises at Chicago crossings.

The motorman may be to some extent responsible for the noises. If, instead of going over crossings and around curves at reduced speeds and quietly, he puts on speed and pounds his gong, there is bound to be a racket. This is the fault of the management more than the motorman. W. W. B.

PENITENTIARY STATISTICS.

Mount Morris, Ill., June 4.—At the time of the fire in the Ohio state penitentiary at Columbus an editorial in THE TRIBUNE stated that here was but another illustration of the crowded condition of prisons due to prohibition. Gov. Cooper has given out the following figures, in which the warden concurs, relative to that catastrophe: Prisoners there for liquor violation, 19; murder, 742; burglary, 964, rape, 293; robbers, holdup men, and safe breakers, 1,018; forgery, 296, and larceny, 398. It is now in order for your editor to start a movement for the repeal of those laws that have to do with crime referred to above and which are the ones that really help to fill our prisons.

AN UNPAID CENSUS ENUMERATOR.

Chicago, June 7.—Will we census enumerators be obliged to hire a representative to go to Washington and find out what the government intends to do about paying us for our work? I was not one of the many thousand lucky ones in this city who sought this work and failed to get an appointment. With a light heart I took my assignment [two districts] feeling that with four years of college, fourteen months overseas in the last war, ten years business experience and a physical fitness I could reasonably expect to earn what the government assured us we would earn, a minimum of fifty cents on hour. Certainly I could not be indifferent to such a prospect in these days of Republican prosperity.

We were given a booklet wherein was set forth our many lawful duties with much stress on our obligation to the government and the obligation of the government to us. We read that the enumeration was to begin April 1st and be completed in two weeks; and that when our district was completed and turned in to the supervisor, five days later we would receive a check in payment for the service. As a matter of fact very few districts were completed by April 15. I turned in my first district a week after the fifteenth, thinking to be paid for that, but was told I could not be paid until after the two districts were completed.

Determinedly I worked day and night on the second district as I had done on the first and finished it two weeks later. Then I was told I would not be paid until five days after the whole ward was completed. My ward was completed about a month ago, but still no checks have been sent out as far as I know.

Is this the way the government aids the unemployment situation? I have fifty-six dollars and some cents due me, which is at the rate of about 18 cents on hour—some enumerators confided their rate to be about 11 cents an hour—and the government promises to pay five days after—after what?

RAY O. CHARMAN.

UNSIGHTLY.

Chicago, May 28.—Your editorial "Railroad Front Yards," touched only one sore spot in this city. Why not include our dilapidated looking newsstands and our cheap and dirty looking mail boxes? In Germany newsstands and mail boxes are kept neat and painted and I see no reason why Chicago could not do likewise.

I wonder if our mail boxes could not be better constructed and fastened on to buildings on artistic looking brackets instead of cheap looking concrete posts.

AIR MAIL.

Chicago, June 2.—It would be very interesting to receive from the local postal authorities (air mail division) a plausible explanation why a letter which I mailed at Diversey and Sheffield avenues Wednesday, May 28, at 6:40 p. m. was delivered in St. Paul, Minn., Saturday, May 31, at 2 p. m., as it takes a plane only three hours and 45 minutes to make the trip. SYNOPSIS.

Catherine West of Boston, on her way to Paris, meets Geoffrey Macadam in the Havre to Paris train. Macadam is an Englishman who lives in Paris. Catherine tells him that she is going to visit her cousin's widow, Mme. Belmont Bender. She is a little apprehensive about the coming visit because she had received, just before sailing, a letter from Hermione Cushing, who tells her that Mme. Bender is far from well. Macadam is a lawyer and he tells Catherine that his firm handles Mme. Bender's affairs, but he doesn't know the widow very well. He had heard that she was ill. Arrived in Paris, Catherine is a little disappointed when her cousin's chauffeur is not at the station to meet her. Geoffrey sees her into a taxi, giving her his address and telephone number. He tells her that he will be anxious to know how things are at the Bender apartment and she promises to call him. Arrived at Mme. Bender's apartment, she is treated coldly by the servants, and Jeanne, Mme. Bender's maid, suggests that she go to a hotel. Catherine insists on staying in the apartment, as she is suspicious of the servants. Jeanne tells her that Mme. Bender attempted to commit suicide the night before. The next morning Catherine goes in to see Germaine Bender, who is pathetically glad to see her. She tells Catherine how she had taken poison by mistake.

Geoffrey invites Catherine to dine with him and it is a relief for her to get out of the apartment and to tell him of her vague fears. He is disturbed, too. Geoffrey escorts her back to the apartment.

The next morning Catherine calls on Miss Cushing, who takes her to her milliner, where she sees a man she has noticed hanging around the Bender apartment. Back in the apartment, she finds the gallery open for the first time, and she goes in, only to discover a number of pictures and tapestries missing. She asks Jeanne about them and the maid says they were sold shortly before Mr. Bender's death. Catherine feels she is lying and believes she and Eduardo are thieves. She finds Jeanne is exerting a baneful influence on Mme. Bender. Jeanne denounces Catherine to the invalid.

Geoffrey again takes Catherine out to dinner and she unburdens herself to him. He has already put an investigator on the case. When he takes her back to the Bender apartment he takes her in his arms as he says good-night. Catherine responds to his kiss. He asks her to marry him, but she wants time to be certain of her feelings. On the way to her room she hears Germaine sobbing and goes to her. She retires hurriedly on Jeanne's return. Next morning Catherine is violently ill and the doctor is called in. On recovering, Catherine goes to visit Geoffrey's sister at Fontainebleau.

Geoffrey discovers that Blom, the mysterious person seen around the Bender apartment, is seeking a possible heir to the Bender fortune. Shortly after this discovery Blom's apartment to Mme. Baron, a widow, whose maiden name is the family name of Mme. Bender, is announced.

A fire breaks out in Mme. Bender's apartment early in the morning and she is burned to death. Most of the building is saved. Catherine had returned suddenly to Paris the night before and when Geoffrey hears of the disaster he rushed to find her. The servants deny she came to the apartment. A search of the premises reveals nothing. Geoffrey leaves to telephone and sights Eduardo hurrying into a taxi. He follows the butler to Blom's office, then calls his father, and together they call on the commissariat de police, who assigns Inspector Bazin to hear their case. Geoffrey sends his investigator to shadow Eduardo and Blom.

INSTALLMENT LXVI.

A SUDDEN REALIZATION.

"Is there anything more you wish me to do, monsieur?" queried Bernard when the silence had lengthened to minutes.

Geoffrey roused himself from his revery.

"Not at the moment, but I want you to hold yourself in readiness for the next day or so in case I need you," and in a few words he outlined the theories set forth by the police inspector.

The agent listened with solemn attention.

"Perhaps, monsieur, you will allow me to do a little investigation on my own account. There half an idea in my head . . . nothing may come of it of course. . . . Who knows but the young lady may have had some reason of her own for spending the night away? Even now she may be on her way home."

The same lingering hope was in Geoffrey's mind, though he was afraid to bank upon it. At any moment now the agony of the past few hours might dissolve like a hideous dream. He could hardly wait to get back to the Avenue Henri Martin to end his suspense.

"Have you seen anything yet of Mademoiselle West?" he demanded quickly.

He reached the scene of the fire, and the lift being above floors, started to mount the broad stairway two treads at a time, too keyed up with expectancy to notice a dull shuffle of feet approaching from the entresol. However, rounding the turn, he pulled up abruptly, flattening himself against the wall to avoid a descending cortège—nothing less than a company of stretcher bearers engaged in removing the body of the deceased.

So, he reflected, the commissaire had lost no time in carrying out his intention. The remains would now be taken over by the Institut Medico Legal and the cause of death determined by post-mortem.

From the top step the dapper sergeant superintended the operation. Slowly the sheeted mass went on its way, the men maneuvering the turns cautiously to avoid the balustrade. Geoffrey waited, hat in hand, till the party had crossed the lobby, then cleared the remaining steps at a bound. As he did so, Eduardo came out of the open doorway, started to speak to the police sergeant, then, seeing Geoffrey, checked himself.

The young man accosted him directly.

"Have you seen anything yet of Mademoiselle West?" he demanded quickly.

The Portuguese looked coolly amazed.

"Certainly not, monsieur. Unless you yourself have communicated with her, I should doubt if she has heard the news."

Geoffrey's heart took a sickening plunge. Instinctively he put out a hand towards the lintel of the door to steady himself under this fresh blow. For a second his eyes and the hot brown ones of the butler met in an unwavering stare.

Catherine's letter from the Hardwickes came as a complete surprise. Jim had finished his work at the British museum sooner than he had expected, and the English weather remaining persistently raw and cold he and Clare had decided to set off at once for Rome and Florence. Crossing by the night boat they were due to reach Paris early Saturday morning, and as they would have only a short time between trains Catherine felt she must not miss the opportunity of seeing them to explain in person her reasons for failure to join them. Hence her sudden decision to return to the city over night and sleep at the apartment in order to get an early start.

She was now almost perfectly fit, the hollows in her cheeks filled out, her nerves calmer, and a brightness in her eyes which told of renewed energy. Even since Wednesday the peace and warm sunshine had worked wonders, so that she was a different being now from the flat and unresponsive girl Geoffrey had seen two days ago. She herself had noticed the puzzled disappointment in his eyes, knew that she was erecting a barrier against his advances, but had not been able to do otherwise. Odd to recall how she had deliberately taken refuge in the Baxters' presence, avoiding every chance of intimate converse; odder still to realize, as she now did, that her feelings had completely veered round, so that she was eager to see Geoffrey, to touch his hand, to be alone with him.

All the way back it was of Geoffrey she was thinking, much more than of the Hardwickes she was to see tomorrow, or of the new régime she was burning to establish at the Avenue Henri Martin. In spite of her protests, Elspeth had tried to telephone her brother to meet the train, but he was not at home. Probably he was dining out. She did not know much of his movements, but guessed from hints dropped by Elspeth that he was in considerable demand socially. At the thought a small pang of jealousy shot through her—not a severe stab, only the sort that comes from the knowledge that the thing one has tardily come to value has already been highly esteemed by others.

It was nearing midnight when she arrived at the Gare Fontainebleau-Avron, secured a taxi, and set off towards her own quarter. The night was mild and soft, with a gusty breeze that held a hint of moisture. She leaned back, drowsy and content, feeling a tremendous relief to think that her efforts had been rewarded, and that within a few days, not more than a week, she would be able, unimpeded, to set about altering the whole poisonous atmosphere surrounding Mme. Bender. Little could Jeanne dream that her power was nearly at an end, that even if she tried to return she would find herself displaced by competent and conscientious nurses. How livid with rage she would be if she knew! Or perhaps she did know, and was taking this opportunity to put a good face on her forced withdrawal . . .

In spite of these triumphant reflections it was with a slight feeling of trepidation that she approached the house. She realized suddenly that she was a little nervous at coming home in this unexpected fashion.

With her key ready, she opened the side door and directed the driver to set her bags in the hall. Then very quietly she crept up the stairs, listening at every step.

Thank heaven, the servants were in bed, for she would have hated at this hour to encounter either of them and have to make explanations. She tiptoed into her rather stuffy warm room, turned on the light and, shutting the door, breathed a deep sigh, partly to have reached this safe haven without being heard and partly because the unacknowledged dread that had skulked beneath the surface of her mind till this moment had proved to be without foundation. All was serene; there was no reason to fear anything had gone wrong in her absence.

She began to hum a tune under her breath as slowly and luxuriously she divested herself of her coat and hat and began to take her toilet articles out of her bag. Still humming, she ran the comb through the dark waves of her hair, then stopped as she realized that the tune was the tango she had heard twice with Geoffrey—once that evening at the cinema and again when in the dark hall below she had stood with his strong arms tight around her body and his lips upon hers. Hot blood flooded her face, she paused for a second with hands clasped and eyes shut, as the thrilling memory swept over her. An inner voice whispered that that moment of ecstasy might be hers again for the asking. Until this very day she had not been sure that she dared let herself go, but at last miraculously she knew . . .

Good morning!
Sinned against instead of sinning
Is our William Powell here;
Striveth he throughout the picture
His ma-lign-ed name to clear.
For an act of valor, purely,
Done to help a blonde [N. G.!]
He is tried, convicted, sentenced!
Murderer! they say is he.
Well, he gets out from the Big House
As how, film to you will show
Aided by a loyal cellmate
[Paul Hurst. And he's good, you know,
On the order of George Bancroft;
Stick around and watch him grow!]
As said, es-cape is effected
And our hero craftily
Covers tracks and most completely
Changes his identity.
Always, though, he's on the lookout
For the blonde who ran away
When her story would have saved him
"That's a Jane!" as Paul [Pete in the story] would say.
Pete in time serves out his sentence,
Comes to see his erstwhile pal,
And's despatched, grim, glum, and glowering
To locate the thankless gal.
Does he find her? I would tell you
If I were the telling kind.
But I'm not, so see the picture
Further info' for to find.
Film is interesting, human;
Dialogue is often droll,
And the Messrs. Hurst and Powell
Surely do delight the soul.
[I would have put the star's name first, but you know how it is in poetry . . . ?]
Other players well cast, able,
Perform smoothly and with pep;
Pho-tog-rapher and director
To their bus-i-ness were hep.
—O, it's hot today, alannas,
And no longer can I rhyme.
—But I know you'll like this picture,
So go and see it some time.

QUALITY: Good.
PHOTOGRAPHY: Excellent.
DIRECTION: Not remarkable in any way.
SCENERY: Grand.
ACTING: Average.
STORY: The wistful daughter of a trading post keeper loves a lumber jack. He doesn't know she exists until circumstances forces him to realize that she is a brave and loving woman, and, ultimately, prove to him that she's the only girl for him. The villain of the piece, a fur trap robber and a murderer, desires the fair Marna. If at all familiar with the prowess of that young he-man, George O'Brien, you know just how much chance this sinful egg has of getting his own way.
REMARKS: "Rough Romance" has lots of action, not all of which is convincing—see raging river rescue toward the last. Noel Francis does a bit effectively enough to make you wish you might see more of her. Helen Twelvetrees, who was so marvelous in "The Grand Parade," can be the saddest looking little soul! She's the Mae Marsh of today.

See you tomorrow.

PARIS GEM ARBITERS PUSH MORE COSTLY OF PRECIOUS STONES

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 13.—Bad news for the men folks—costly diamonds and emeralds will be more fashionable than ever, and rubies will not be "in," after all.

This is the dominant impression of the annual jewelry exposition, just opened here, which throws cold water on the efforts of Parisian jewelers to "say it with rubies" this summer. One prominent jeweler recently devoted a whole exposition to rubies.

Everybody expected the exposition to put an official O. K. on the fad, but the husbands, lovers, and other masculine meal tickets who took time off from their afternoon's work to walk around the corner and see the show got a cruel jolt.

For the jewelry arbiters had relegated rubies and other less costly gems to a back shelf and were concentrating on diamonds and carved emeralds. Liveried flunkies ushered visitors through tiny violet draped booths that seemed no larger than jewel cases until they reached the holy of holies, where blazed a whole case of diamonds.

There were pins, brooches, bracelets, and necklaces ranging from $2,000 to $200,000. The reason for the popularity of diamonds, at least with the jewelers, was apparent when an official picked up a glittering platinum pin a little larger than a silver dollar, crusted with diamonds and a great stone in the center.

"Pretty is it not?" he remarked. "It only costs $25,000."

You could by many rubies for that price.

Next to the diamonds was a collection of exotic brooches and pendants of solid carved marble imported from India. The oriental motif was evident and gave the jewels a barbaric but subtle touch. It was explained that the oriental trend was evolved to match the style of sinuous, clinging gowns and long sweeping skirts and other devices for emphasizing femininity.

The oriental touch appears even in vanity and cigaret cases, which are mostly inlaid with jade or turquoise in oriental designs.

Now Southern Woman Will See Grave.

New York, June 13.— (AP) —Mrs. Hetta Rozell of Tripoli, Miss., will sail on the S. S. President Harding tomorrow for France to visit the grave of her son, Corporal Albert H. Rozell of the 58th U. S. infantry, of whose death in the Argonne forest Sept. 26, 1918, she learned only a year ago.

For nearly 11 years Mrs. Rozell lived in uncertainty. Months after the armistice she was informed he had been killed in July, 1918. But she had letters from him written in August, from a hospital saying he was recovering from a minor wound. The war department telegram had him listed in the wrong regiment.

Jack Ernest, now a radio entertainer of Fort Worth, Tex., wandered about from hospital to hospital, recovering from tuberculosis which he contracted after having been gassed in the war. Always in the background of his mind was a haunting memory of his army chum, "The Kid."

One day he wrote to the war department to find out who were the next of kin of "The Kid," who had been killed by his side in the Argonne forest on a September day, now nearly 12 years ago.

One day last fall he told Mrs. Rozell about the death of "The Kid," his chum and her son.

As Mrs. Rozell and 241 other mothers, mostly from Michigan and Wisconsin, were preparing to sail on the President Harding tomorrow others were arriving home today.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

Do you agree with Judge Allegretti that having a girl friend tends to keep a boy out of mischief?

The Answers.

William A. Murphy, Canal and Jackson boulevard, chief clerk, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad — By all all means the judge is right, there is no better way for boys and girls to form a bond of true friendship than that of keeping company. It is a very good means of keeping the boy out of mischief and the influence of a good girl is of inestimable value.

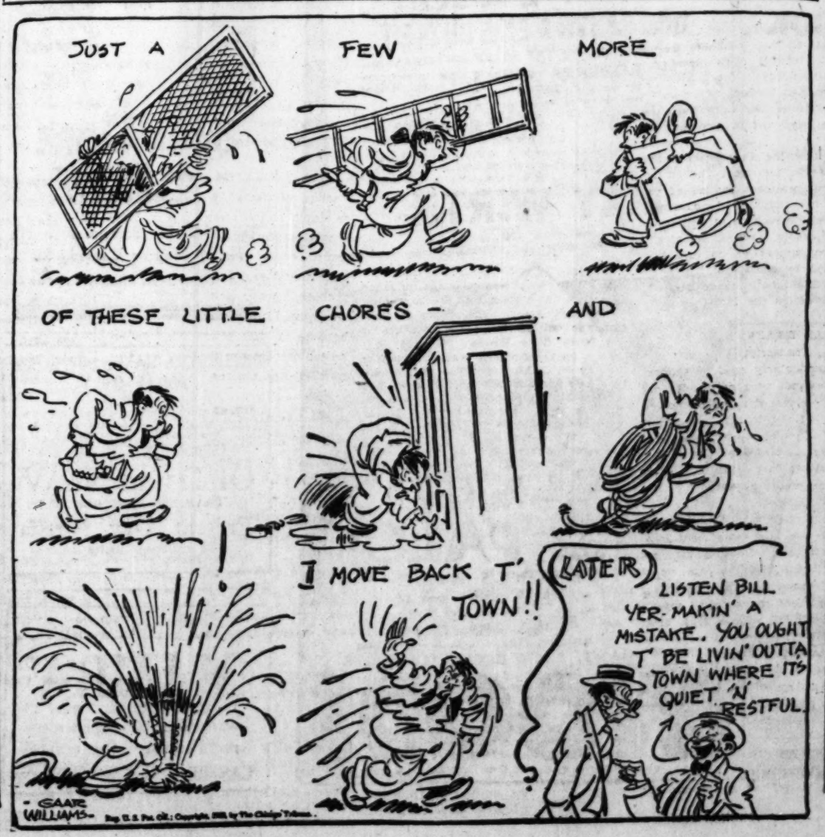
Miss Mary Puters, 3831 North Harding avenue, stenographer—I agree with Judge Allegretti, because if a young man or boy has something to occupy his mind he is not likely to join gangs and mix in with a bunch at the poolroom or on the street corners. I really think it depends entirely on the boy as some boys are just as well off playing baseball or golf.

A. G. Dupuis, 2971 Leland avenue, assistant magazine editor—Certainly keeping company with a nice young woman is an excellent influence for any chap. It causes a realization of proper conduct and serves to keep him from engaging in pursuits detrimental to character.

Miss Alice E. Warren, 3457 Franklin boulevard, secretary—I agree with the judge if the right kind of girl is selected. Many a boy has been led astray because the girl he likes wants him to buy or give her things he can't afford, so he takes the easiest way, either by steling the money or the things wanted. Most girls try to be an inspiration to thei rfriends. A mischievous boy isn't tolerated long in polite society.

J. E. Mayer, 22 West Marquette road, traveling agent—I heartily agree with the judge, although care should be exercised in making a choice. All girls are not necessarily the right kind of company. Fathers and mothers should allow their chilren to entertain friends at home.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS



New Deering Library Building Started Upon Northwestern Campus

Ground was broken yesterday at Northwestern university, Evanston, for the Deering memorial library, $1,000,000 gift of the late Charles Deering and members of his family. Three generations of the Deering family were present. There were Mrs. Charles Deering, her daughter, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, and Mrs. McCormick's son, Roger. Among those on the program were President Walter Dill Scott and John H. Hardin. The entire senior class was present, and made announcement of a gift of $500 with which to start the first book fund for the new library.

The library, to be built on the old site of Heck hall, was made possible through a $500,000 bequest from Mr. Deering, and $500,000 later from members of his family.

Eleven alumni of the university sat around a banquet table at the Orrington hotel last night recalling the old campus, old friends, and incidents of 50 years ago. They were members of the class of 1880.

There were only 121 graduates then. Thirty-five of them still are living. Eleven are back to see the changes and the growth of their alma mater and the graduation on Monday of 1,500 seniors. Among them were the class president and class secretary of 1880, Dr. Nels E. Simonsen and Miss Elizabeth L. Smith, Evanston. President Scott expressed his appreciation for their interest.

Alumni activities will continue today. The baseball team of 1905 will be back to celebrate their 25th anniversary in a three inning game in the afternoon. There will be an alumni parade from the University hall to Patten gymnasium at 12:15, and the classes celebrating their 5th, 15th, 20th, and 25th anniversaries will have floats. Class and fraternity reunions will be at 6 p. m. A general alumni dinner will also be at 6 o'clock at the North Shore hotel. There will be the annual meetings of Phi Beta Kappa and the board of trustees, and the day will be closed with the president's reception from 9 to 11 p. m. in the gymnasium.

Nine Professors of U. of C.'s First Group Still Active There

Although two professors who were members of the first faculty at the University of Chicago will retire this month, nine of the original group who were called to teach in 1891, when the university was only an office at 1212 Chamber of Commerce building, will return this autumn. They will begin their 39th year of teaching and research.

Prof. A. A. Michelson, who has headed the physics department since the first year, becomes professor emeritus at the age of 77 years. He will leave for Santa Ana, Cal., Monday, to recheck his measurement of the speed of light in a vacuum tube one mile long, and will return to his laboratory in Ryerson hall in the fall.

Prof. James H. Tufts, who rose to the head of the philosophy department in 1905, was vice president of the university from 1924 to 1926, and acting president between the administrations of Ernest DeWitt Burton and Max Mason. He will continue on half time service in his department as professor emeritus.

Royalty from Varied Lands Will Visit Britain's Capital

LONDON, June 13.—(AP)—London is about to receive an influx of royalty which will add additional luster to an already brilliant season. Prince Takamatsu, second son of the emperor of Japan, with his bride, is making a return visit for that paid in Tokio by the duke of Gloucester last year. The king and queen of Spain are expected here soon. Former King George of Greece is already in London, and Prince Camrong, uncle of the king of Siam, is renewing acquaintances in London after an absence of 37 years. Another royal visitor is Prince Danil, formerly of Montenegro, who is spending a quiet holiday here with the princess.

Cost of Keeping U.S. Flag Flying Will Be Told

As Chicago Displays That Emblem Today.

Today will be Old Glory's own. The flag flies above Chicago. One hundred and fifty-three years ago the Continental congress adopted the Stars and Stripes for this then new republic, the United States of America.

The speeches at the flag's birthday parties should be kept free from sectarian or partisan topics, that was the request yesterday of Dr. B. J. Clgrand, president of the National Flag Day association. He suggested the history of the flag and "its thrilling story of defense," be stressed. The old as well as the young, he said, need the story of the flag's spirit retold to assure the coming generations what the congress meant when it adopted the national emblem.

The Flag day celebration here will be centralized this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock in Lincoln park. There a program will be held under the auspices of the national association.

A military band will play, Gov. Emmerson's Flag day proclamation will be read, and the objects of the National Flag Day association told. Warren Wright, president of the Lincoln park board, will talk on "Lincoln Park and Patriotism." Dr. Clgrand will give an address on the flag. Representatives of all military and patriotic organizations, soldiers, school children have been invited.

The most spectacular celebration among school children will be the massmeeting of the Junior Citizens' club of the Chicago Historical society. This club of 1,500 pupils of public, private and parochial schools will parade from the Historical society building, arriving at the Drake hotel at 11 a. m. Music for the parade will be furnished by the Lane Technical High school band and an escort will be provided by the police department. Boy Scouts will aid in perfecting the line of parade.

At that meeting William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, will made the address; Charles B. Pike, president of the Historical society, will describe the purpose of the Citizens' club, and Dr. William H. Johnson will tell the story of the flag in an illustrated lecture. Prizes will be awarded also for the best essays written by members of the club on "What the American Flag Means to Me."

In compliance with a proclamation issued by Mayor Thompson, the flag will be displayed from public buildings, places of business, and homes. One of the interesting features of Flag day will be display of old flags with many a historic tale attached at the Historical society.

Strawn Says Scouts Are Best Way to Reduce City Crime

Silas H. Strawn, as chairman of the finance committee of the Boy Scouts of America, yesterday advocated an intensive campaign to train the city's youth to be good citizens. He spoke in the Palmer house at a meeting of the directors of the Scout campaign. They are seeking $1,250,000 for a four year scouting expansion.

"The ultimate solution of Chicago's crime problem depends on the training of its boys," Mr. Strawn declared. "The Scout program offers the best constructive program for directing a boy during his leisure time toward good citizenship. No one differs from this point of view.

"The city's youth must be trained to understand the meaning of good citizenship. The gang idea should be forever obliterated and 'gangs' started doing constructive work. This can only be done through such organizations as the Boy Scouts. We have to halt the spread of crime now, and we will have to make preparations for the future to keep it halted.

"I say to the citizens of Chicago," Mr. Strawn concluded, "let's give the boys a chance and keep them out of gangs."

Barthe Exhibit Reveals Negro Tragedy, Wit

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The exhibition of portraits in color and in sculpture by Richmond Barthé makes interesting seeing. They may be found scattered through the attractive rooms of the Woman's City club on the ninth floor of the Tower building, 6 North Michigan avenue. As likely as not the young artist will be found there, too, delighting to show one the various pieces and expanding upon this and that with the most charming sincerity.

If the exhibit is a revelation so is the personality of Mr. Barthé. He is colored. He was born at Bay St. Louis, Miss. He has retained just enough of the Negro accent to make his speech softly southern and a delight to the northern ear. He is reserved, has poise and balance, simplicity and enough shyness to be attractive. He loses himself in his work and makes the interested onlooker forget him, too. It remains then that the exhibit is the thing.

The "Tortured Negro" is a dramatic figure. The artist shows the man when the torture has stopped for a time and he waits expectant of more pain, heavy with the agony he has been through, but not beaten yet. The "Blackberry Woman" is a clever characterization, beautifully done. The "Boy with a Broom" is clever and amusing; a jolly young colored boy is strumming a whiskbroom as he would a banjo, just for the sport of the silly joke. The "Comedian" is a full length little figure of a colored man in tight formal clothes, a flower in his buttonhole, his hat cocked on his head. The actor is actually performing in town today in a south side theater.

There are so many pieces that are extremely well handled it is impossible to mention each in detail. Among the most forceful or most delightful are "Black Narcissus," "Toussaint L'Ouverture," the "Rev. J. C. Austin," the "Mulattress," "Deviled Crab Man," and the four exquisite little heads of the Ellis children. Among the work in color, which, by the way, is done with crayon and the marvelous results obtained with the use of but two colors besides black and white on various tinted papers, certain portraits stand out. "Charlie" is very fine. The portrait of Mrs. Secor Cunningham is most attractive. The portrait of Giovanni Rosmimi is admirable. The head of Master John Harris, a little boy, is exquisite. The "Myself," "My Mother," and "A'Lelia" are striking pieces of portraiture.

The exhibit will continue through June 20.

You Can Ward Off Two Chins, Big Ankles, by Correct Posture

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Tell a woman that good posture is an asset she could use and she'll agree that it is a good asset if she hears what you said, which she probably didn't, for posture talk isn't met with much enthusiasm. BUT tell her that if she had better posture her ankles wouldn't thicken, her hips wouldn't spread, nor her chin double and she'll listen with both ears. That's something else again.

So, we're telling it. If you wish to prevent big hips, a clumsy gait, a protruding tummy, and a generally not smart look, just slump all over the place. Don't stand well, don't sit right, and don't walk lightly and you'll get what you are asking for.

I am not trying to sell the idea that you can't put on weight if your posture is good. You can—if you eat enough and exercise not enough. But you won't be apt to, once you get the hang of moving about smartly with the kind of posture that establishes a fine feeling of self-respect in you.

It's that self-respect that will keep you from overeating and sitting down on every chair that happens to get in the way. The value of good posture, in my opinion, is ninety-nine per cent psychological. It makes a new man of one, really. Just the simple trick of lifting the head up puts you in a better frame of mind about yourself.

Good posture means, of course, that the stomach has to be held back and the chest lifted. And that means physical improvement. When you get your chest up and your stomach back something happens to your feet so that you do come up and down on them more lightly. You can't walk heavily with the rest of you on the up and up.

When you pull in the stomach and lift the chest, there is a stretch on the hips that draws them into a finer line. The ankles will profit in slenderness because you will want to walk more once you've learned to walk briskly and smartly, as posture requires.

I may have told you about an expensive reducing place where women aren't given any magic baths, pills, tablets, fancy exercise, or food courses. They're taught to walk, move about, sit and stand right, and they're sent on their way and that's what they get for their reducing course money.

Eternal Triangle Presents an Eternal Riddle to Onlooker

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Don't you think it is better for a woman to give a man his freedom, when she knows he loves another woman, than to hold him against his will? The man and woman in this case have been married twenty years and have no children. He has always held a good position and has given her everything she wanted. She has had an easy life, belongs to clubs, has her own car. It is not a case of a wife struggling to help her husband get ahead and then being cast aside.

"The husband is in love with a woman of 35 who has worked with him for ten years. She loves him but will not go out with him. The wife knows about it, but says her husband will have to stand her as long as she lives. Don't you think it is far better to be separated than for the man to wish something would happen to her, so he could marry the women he loves; to hope every time the telephone rings that it is news that something has happened to her?

"He can amply support both women in the event of a divorce. Please answer me. DAISY."

If that question could be answered without bias by each of the two women involved there'd be no problem. It can't be done and so the problem goes on year in and out, times without number.

It takes an extraordinarily fair-minded point of view [rarely possessed by the immediate participants] to see both sides of the case honestly and unprejudicedly. A fair-minded outsider must suffer a twinge for the woman who, though her life may have been easy, nevertheless has served twenty years of it at her husband's side. And who knows, anyway, how easy any woman's life is with any man. Possessions are no criterion. To the outsider looking on they spell happiness more often than is justified.

Again, a woman who has traveled along for twenty years with the man of her choice and has been treated generously by him must have a deep, deep attachment for him, a fact the other woman is rarely willing to admit. She, the latter, can see only the most mercenary motives prompting the wife to hold on to the man. But if the wife loves, and all is fair in love and war, she has as much right to fight for the prize as has the other woman.

"I was a sufferer for weeks from a severe sore on my body which itched and burned intensely. My nights were really impossible. I tried every local remedy I knew as well as prescribed treatments, electricity, etc., but the condition continued to grow worse, and I was about to go to the hospital. Quite by chance I learned of and tried Resinol Ointment. The relief was immediate, and after a few applications the place healed perfectly." (Signed)— Haidee L. Fathers Have an Advantage Over Mothers, It Seems

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

A "Sex Education Booklet" by Mrs. Bevans will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Having written 1,095 daily and Sunday articles on children and fathers and mothers doesn't seem to diminish the things I want to say in this column. So one more thing—to urge fathers to take more part in their children's lives.

And that encouragement is this: Fathers have a great advantage over mothers, if they only knew it. Not that they want an advantage, of course, but they have it just the same—and for this reason. Fathers are so much more away from home, necessarily so much more removed from the humdrum routine, that they are much more a novelty and can be much more of an entertainment to their children—if they want to be. Also, they are much fresher than the mother, who has been home with the children all day.

Fathers go—they're away—they come home at night with things to tell; they have holidays and Sundays for special doings—their comings and goings are an event—while mother is there all the time. They can make all their returns a positive pleasure for the children to look forward to by being the kind of father a child hails with expressed or unexpressed delight. They can even obtain obedience more readily—if they know the real way—because the children don't hear their voice as often.

This is true with both sons and daughters, but especially has a father great latent power with his son. And when I see pr hear of a father who uses this power only to find fault or act as superior officer to his boy, it makes me very sorry. Because a boy is only waiting the chance to worship his father—to make a hero of him and to emulate him in every way. "My dad says this, or "My dad does that" is enough for him.

A father has such a chance to help and enjoy his children if he only will.

Hoover Asks $50,000 for Purchase of U.S. Butterflies

Washington, D. C., June 13.—(AP)—An appropriation of $50,000 to enable the secretary of agriculture to purchase a collection of moths and butterflies owned by the late Dr. William Barnes of Decatur, Ill., for the agriculture department was requested today by President Hoover. The collection, which consists of 473,000 specimens, would be housed in the National museum. Bureau of entomology experts say the Barnes collection is the largest in the world, composed of specimens of the North American species.

Food Talk.

Rarely do we find a person who has no food dislikes. And fortunate from both the social and nutritional point of view is he who has none.

Planning a good diet for finicky folk is most difficult. And cooking and serving food to those who are hard to please is not an enjoyable task.

It is an easy matter, however, to obtain an adequate diet if our food likes are extensive. But it becomes a problem if our tastes are restricted. The omission from the diet of just one important food like milk, fruit or vegetables is almost sure to result in undernutrition. Poorly nourished bodies are more or less subnormal.

And subnormal bodies are always inefficient. A lack of food, then, either in variety or quantity, is a serious matter.

Those whose tastes are limited have a feeling that the disliked food is harmful to their bodies and acts as poison. While it is true that some foods are actually incompatible with our digestive and assimilative organs, more times the distaste can be traced to habits formed during childhood.

Nutritionists who have been trying to get at the root of food dislikes find most of them can be overcome, or, at least, avoided. A little observation of the feeding of children—those who are disciplined and those who are spoiled—shows that most of our likes depend upon the habits formed in the early years.

The start which the child gets toward a well developed healthy body is inseparably linked with the food he eats.

Food of the right kind and in the right amount—an adequate diet—is essential for a strong, healthy body. So the time to lay the health foundation is at the begining of life.

For the first two years of a child's life his diet is usually closely supervised by the family physician. These facts should bring to mothers most forcibly the necessity of proper feeding of the tiny toddlers.

When planning the diet for young children—2, 3, 4, and 5 years—plan the three meals so that each child will get every day: Cooked cereals once, with emphasis on whole grained cereals. [All cereals should be served without sugar.] One fruit and one fruit juice. [Dried fruits such as prunes and apricots may be used the year around to vary the fresh fruits.] Egg or meat. One cooked vegetable. One raw vegetable. Whole grain breads. One quart milk served as a drink or cooked in food. Simple dessert.

RECIPES.

STEWED PRUNES.

2 cups cold water.

Wash prunes quickly in cold water. Cover with 2 cups of water and soak several hours. Cook slowly about 10 minutes in water in which prunes were soaked. Yield: Two cups or 6 servings. One serving: Total, 100 calories; protein, 3 calories; fat, 0 calories; carbohydrates, 97 calories.

SOFT CUSTARD.

⅛ teaspoon salt.
1 pint milk, scalded.

Mix the slightly beaten eggs, sugar, and salt thoroughly. Add hot milk. Stir until sugar is dissolved. Stirring constantly, cook in a double boiler until a coating forms on the spoon. Remove from fire, add flavoring and cool. Almond is a favorite flavoring and 1-3 cup brown sugar may be substituted for the granulated sugar to give a pleasing variation. Delicious served with sliced oranges, with chocolate blanc mange and as a sauce for many other desserts. Yield: Four servings. One serving: Total, 101 calories; protein, 20 calories; fat, 41 calories; carbohydrates, 40 calories.

CREAM ASPARAGUS SOUP.

4 bunches fresh or 2 No. 1 cans asparagus.
1 slice medium onion.
1 tablespoon chopped parsley.
2 tablespoons butter.
4 tablespoons flour.
2 teaspoons salt.
1 quart milk.

Remove scales and tough outside portions from lower end of stalks. Wash and cut off the tips about two inches. Cook stalks, onion, and parsley in enough water to cover until almost done. Add tips and finish cooking, about 10 minutes longer. Remove tips. Press stalks through a sieve or chop fine. [If canned asparagus is used, press stalks through sieve and reserve tips.] There should be 2 2-3 cups pulp and liquid. If not, add water. In the meantime prepare a white sauce of the butter, flour, salt, bouillon cubes and milk. Add pulp and reheat. When ready to serve add asparagus tips. Yield: Eight servings. One serving: Total, 151 calories; protein, 29 calories; fat, 71 calories; carbohydrates, 51 calories.

King to Attend the Races; Inspect Reserve Officers

LONDON, June 13. — (AP) — King George and Queen Mary, who returned to Buckingham palace from Sandringham yesterday, will leave for Windsor on Saturday and attend the races at Ascot next week. Monday King George will inspect the Eton college officers' training corps. He will present that unit with new colors. It will be one of the rare public appearances of the corps, whose first colors were presented by Queen Victoria in 1861, when it was started as a volunteer rifle corps attached to the Buckinghamshire regiment.

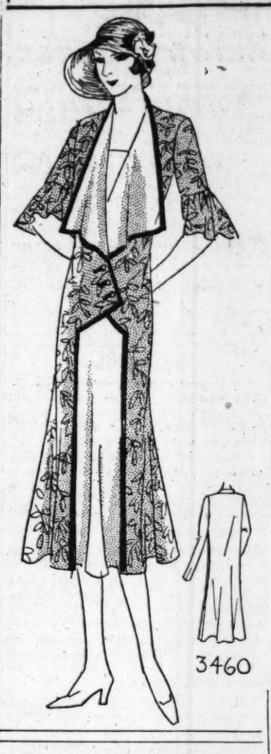
PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]



WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

This lovely princess coat frock expresses the more feminine fashion. The circular flounces of the sleeves are youthful and becoming, while the diagonal closing of the bodice and the collar ending in broad revers are decidedly smart and give an idea of slenderness. Lanvin green printed and plain crêpe silk would be lovely for the dress.

The pattern, 3460, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material with ⅝ yard of 39 inch contrasting and 4¼ yards of binding.

Jewelled Clip-Pin Is an Aid to Variety

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Paris fashions are getting personal about little things, lately. After all, it's the little things that count in the ensemble just as much as in life. An individual way of tying a scarf, of wearing a flower, of arranging her hair has often made—or marred—a woman's reputation for elegance.

One of the most valuable little helpers, in more ways than one, toward achieving that personal touch indispensable to modern chic is the jeweled clip-pin, first designed by Cartier and launched by Worth, that sticks like a burr to whatever point in the style-scape you choose for it.

Our drawing shows a close up of a most smart type of clip-pin in square and rose cut diamonds [of course, they may be semi-precious stones or even strasse or crystals if the budget won't run to diamonds] and six of the innumerable strategic positions it may occupy in the chic campaign.

Upper right, it is seen lending back interest to an Agnes beret. Upper left, it trims the curls of a blonde, who is letting her hair grow and doesn't like it falling into her eyes. Just below, it is seen holding together Suzanne Talbot's asymmetrical Greek shoulder drapery. If you have a pair, you may wear them as epaulettes on both straps of your evening decolletage, or with one you may point a square décolleté in front, while the other does its decorative duty somewhere in the back.

In the center right, the valiant clip is seen replacing a boutonnière on one of Molyneux's looped lapels. A kerchief tied in a pert knot at the back of your neck is pretty when draped and fastened in front with a large clip-pin in the manner sketched in the lower left hand corner of our drawing. The pin forms the sole but elegant trimming of the simple frock at the lower right by forcing its wide satin belt into draped lines in front.

The Mothers' club of Delta chapter of Pi Lambda Sigma sorority will hold a card party this afternoon at the Illinois Women's Athletic club.

Ravinia Opera June 21; Ticket Sale Starts Today

Seats for the Ravinia opera which opens on Saturday night, June 21, will be placed on sale this morning at 10 o'clock, Louis Eckstein, head of the summer opera, announced yesterday. He said that inquiries indicate that the demand for the first week's performances will be heavier than ever before. The Ravinia box office will be open daily from 9:30 to 10 p. m. A special telephone line from Chicago has been installed to provide service without the usual toll charge. FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

Early carrots which show rusty furrows when used during the summer, and late carrots, which look alright when dug and then seem to disentegrate later, probably have been attacked during their growing period by the larva of the carrot rust fly which also likes parsnips and celery, according to recent information gained by a study of these pests.

Home grown carrots can be protected by a tightly constructed screen of 24 to 30 mesh cheesecloth if the larva is too persistent. First attacks are from May 20 to June 1, with another brood appearing in the last part of July.

Poisoning is accomplished by a larvae control more simple to apply than constructing the covered plant bed. One suggestion is to make a suspension by thoroughly mixing one ounce of mercuric chloride or calomel and about two and one-half gallons of water. Keep the mixture shaken or stirred and pour it about the young plants, using about a gallon for every 30 to 40 feet in a row. A second application is advised a week later and then a wait until the late brood makes its a attack. Dusting with a powder consisting of 96 per cent gypsum and four per cent mercurous chloride also is effective.

BODY FOUND

PETER GRIBAS.

The body of Peter Gribas, 15 year old Tilden High school student, was found in the Marquette park lagoon yesterday. He is believed to have drowned while diving for lost golf balls. The youth sold newspapers mornings and evenings and when he failed to return home Thursday night, his father, Peter Gribas, a painter living at 6127 South Maplewood avenue, went to Chicago Lawn police and asked their aid.

City Acts to Grant Calumet Permit.

The Ford company will build a dock 750 feet long in the Calumet river in front of its property on Torrence avenue, south of 130th street. This is said to forecast the shipment of autos from Detroit by water. It is planned to complete the dock early next winter.

The necessary preliminary for this construction was signed yesterday by Commissioner of Public Works Richard W. Wolfe. Agencies interested in getting work for the unemployed in the Calumet district have been complaining because this necessary authority was not granted more quickly.

Aldermen Speed Action.

The Ford agents, it is reported, have been trying to get the department of public works to establish a dock line for about a month. They were represented as ready to start construction on any line which the city asserted was correct, but they failed to obtain the certification.

Because of the delay, Ald. Rowan, Nance, Govier, and Meyering, representatives of the Tenth, Seventh, Ninth, and Eighth wards respectively, at the last city council meeting presented an order which was adopted by the council at the last meeting commanding the commissioner to make a survey and fix the dock line.

At Commissioner Wolfe's office yesterday it was announced that he had taken the action ordered by the city council. It was explained that years ago a dock line had been established and that the delay was caused by a rechecking to ascertain whether it still amply protects public interests. Commissioner Wolfe has been away on a vacation and just returned a few days ago.

Rowan Tells Views.

The Ford assembling plant is located in Ald. Rowan's ward. "I am pleased," he said, "that the preliminary steps have been taken to get the work started. Not only do we need the work, but the dock should provide more employment in the assembling plant.

"In addition, the fact that Ford will build this dock wipes out the only substantial argument against a harbor in Lake Calumet. Ford makes few mistakes. The argument that bridge interference mitigated against the Lake Calumet harbor has been exploded by his plan to build this dock."

Nearly 20,000 Rotarians, representing virtually every civilized country in the world, will assemble in Chicago on June 23 to celebrate the silver anniversary of the Chicago chapter, it was announced yesterday by M. Eugene Newsom of Durham, N. C., president of Rotary International, upon opening a preliminary meeting here of the international directors of the organization. The convention will be held at the Stevens hotel. It will continue through June 27.

A principal guest of honor and speaker at the convention will be Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, head of the Japanese house of peers since 1903, and father of Iyemasa Tokugawa, Japanese minister to Canada. Prince Tokugawa represented Japan at the 1921 naval conference, and is expected to discuss the recent London armament conference.

Other Rotary International directors at yesterday's meeting were: Dr. Edouard Willems, Brussels, Belgium; Charles W. Ackley, Vineland, N. J.; Visconde de Cass Aguilar, Madrid, Spain, physician to King Alfonso of Spain; David Clark, Charlotte, N. C.; Clyde L. Hulsizer, Des Moines, Ia.; D. W. Ohern, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Roy Ronald, Mitchell, S. D.; I. B. Sutton, Tampico, Mexico, and Chesley R. Perry, Chicago.

Thrilling Tale of Chemistry Told for Laity

From Weird Alchemists to Latest Discovery.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Crucibles," by Bernard Jaffe. (Simon & Schuster.)

A year or more ago Simon & Schuster, publishers of "The Story of Philosophy," and the Forum magazine made a joint offer of $7,500 for a book on the humanizing of knowledge, to be known as the Francis Bacon award. The volume receiving that award has just come from the press. "Crucibles," it is called, and it is by Bernard Jaffe, 34 years old, a teacher of chemistry in Jamaica High school, Jamaica, N. Y. Those facts are all stated because the book is written not as any teacher of chemistry that I ever had talked to, but as perhaps the most fascinating teacher who ever touched my life, Dr. Edwin Herbert Lewis, talked—richly, humanly, engrossingly—of all things, weaving them into whatever pattern his teaching of the moment demanded.

"Crucibles" is the story of chemistry told in precisely the same fashion as Will Durant told his "Story of Philosophy" or as Paul de Kruif told his tales of "Microbe Hunters." It is the history of the science reflected in the lives of its most outstanding practitioners. It is a series of biographies of ideas as well as of people. If the world at large thinks that there is no romance in a man's passion for a molecule it will soon be disillusioned by Mr. Jaffe. He has succeeded in making "Crucibles" a fascinating book.

He begins with Bernard Trevisan, who spent his fortune and his life trying to find the philosopher's stone, hoping with it to turn base metals into gold. Paracelsus, who preached the first news of the new medical theories and decried another panacea, the fountain of youth, follows. Then comes the story of Becher, who was a general man about the world, and a scientist only with his left hand, but who promulgated the theory of phlogiston which sounded so logical that it confounded scientists for two hundred years.

After that came Priestley, who discovered oxygen; Cavendish, who was the richest wise man of them all and who acted with the world at large like Sweet Alice when her Ben Bolt gave her a frown, but who discovered that water is the famous H-two-O, although it was not until Berzelius' time that simple system of symbols was used.

Lavoisier follows Cavendish and his great contribution was the discovery of the real nature of burning. Dalton comes next with his atomic theory, then Berzelius, and after him his pupil Woehler, who created a new world of compounds out of stones, and then Mendeleeff, whose tabulation of atomic weights gave the world "blueprints of its structure"; Arrhenius, who fought for the recognition of ions, and then the classic story of the Curies and their discovery of radium, told with fire and thrill.

Scientists of the last two decades or so, Thomson, Moseley, Langmuir, Prince de Broglie, and others concerned with affairs so delicately complex as to seem far more remote from us than the earlier gropers.

The saga is exciting and Mr. Jaffe has told it with distinction. "Crucibles" certainly does "humanize" the knowledge of chemistry.

Herr Zweig Succeeds at Some Biographical Work

"Three Masters," by Stefan Zweig [Viking] already has had a great popularity in German [from which it is translated by Eden and Cedar Paul]. It was the first volume of a series which Herr Zweig called "Master Builders," of which a later volume previously has appeared in translation: "Adepts in Self-Portraiture: Casanova, Stendhal, Tolstoi." Herr Zweig has a brilliant hand in mixing the ingredients of biography and criticism. The short critical biographies which eventuate are charming alike as stories of the lives of the human beings who are his heroes and keen criticism of the creatures of their creative minds.

About Black Sheep.

"Black Sheep," by Jessie Bancroft Payne [Macrae Smith], is a novel about that most up to date of the professions, the publicity business. Miss Payne is herself a crackerjack publicity woman—she has managed all sorts of national campaigns and she ought to know what she is writing about. It's a hectic business, according to the author of "Black Sheep." "Black Sheep" certainly classes with the sheep and not the goats of the spring fiction.

Harriet Henry Tells Lively New York Story in Her Novel

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Harriet Henry, author of that new lively novel of New York background, "Jackdaws Strut," argues that writers absorb quality from the countries in which they live and work . . . that in the light of older countries they acquire, as it were, a richer coat of tan. In our ladylike way, we intimated this was theoretical applesauce . . . and the luncheon became riotous enough to hearten H. L. Mencken, who, in this month's Mercury, features a plea for pick and shovel discussions in an article entitled "The Embattled Literati."

HARRIET HENRY. [From drawing by Geoffrey Norman.]

The party was a complete success and Miss Henry is committed to a test case of acquiring sunburn in England whence, by the way, came her ancestors.

The publishing house of Farrar & Rhinehart was one year old on Tuesday . . . celebrated the fact on Thursday with a tea party to which some one sent a birthday cake decorated with the firm's trademark surrounded with American swastikas . . . dollar signs.

Esther Forbes has deserted Manhattan, where she has lived for the last two years, and gone back to her native New England. She is summering on a farm in Needham, Mass., working on the successor to "O Genteel Lady," and "A Mirror for Witches." . . . Having caught Broadway fever, she has written a play on which, like all playwrights, she is doing a bit of rewriting. . . . Wallace Irwin has transported the typewriter that recently turned out "The Days of Her Life," from his apartment house eyrie to the fastnesses of Long island. . . . Sam Hoffenstein is testing Long Island breezes as inspiration to poets. Horace Kallen, author of "Freedom of the Modern World," is seeking it in the hills near Danbury, Conn.

Fans of Eugene O'Neill are asked to do their bit by Barrett H. Clarke and Ralph Sanborn, who are compiling a complete biography. Information as to any of O'Neill's writings not contained in the regular lists of his works will be greatly appreciated, also information of critical articles in magazines or book form by O'Neill or about him. Mr. Clark says that communications should be addressed to Ralph Sanborn, 37 Arlington street, Cambridge, Mass.

Two new books which look like grand summer reading are Ossendowski's "The Life Story of a Little Monkey," and Agnes Carr Vaughan's "Lucian Goes a Voyaging." They are both illustrated, the former by Kurt Wiese and the latter by Harrie Wood. . . . Yes, we know that they are both announced as juveniles . . . but that's the kind of reading we feel up to in July . . . and we'll be two up on our Christmas list for nephews and nieces.

Popular Priced Books, All Classics, Reach Sale of 25 Millions

That the world knows and loves its Everyman's Library is attested by the fact that the 25,000,000 mark has been passed in their sales. Those figures are said to attest to the fact, too, that the world loves its classics. Over a million copies of the Everyman series are sold yearly. The fastest selling titles from one representative shop were "Shakespeare's Tragedies," "David Copperfield," "Shakespeare's Comedies," "Don Quixote," and Plato's "Republic" in the order given.

No book is published in the series for which a sale of less than 10,000 is anticipated. Richard Byrd, wanderer, took a complete set with him. And finally an unabridged edition of Rabelais, in two volumes, has just been released by the United States government after a residence of a year in the customs.

Gen. Smuts Asserts Public Opinion Created League

"Africa and Some World Problems," by Gen. J. C. Smuts (Oxford University Press) contains six important addresses dealing with Africa, its future, and its problems, and world peace and the league of nations. It is said that Gen. Smuts, Woodrow Wilson, and Lord Robert Cecil had more to do with the creation of the league of nations than any others. Gen. Smuts in this volume, however, says the league of nations was not the work of any particular individuals, but was brought about by public opinion.

Europe's Story, Nature's Magic in New Books

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.

"Green Magic," by Julie Kenley. (Appleton.)

"The Wolf Tracker," by Zane Grey. (Harper's.)

Among the new books for young people are many which are particularly suited for vacation reading. For the boy or girl who has been to Europe or is going there, or for the little travel lover whose actual trip must be postponed some years, there is Cornelia S. Parker's "Watching Europe Grow."

That is a fascinatingly written, fully illustrated travel-history, in which an uncle takes his young nephew and niece flying over Europe. They "grow" with the countries as they go, putting themselves back into the life of the various ages. The story is chronologically presented from the days of early Rome to those of the world war. There is a good bibliography for further reading on the countries covered, and the book might conceivably become the nucleus of a profitable and enjoyable summer's reading program.

Another book which should find its way into vacation kit or trunk is Julie C. Kenley's "Green Magic," a story of plant life which will open the whole world of field and forest to the young vacationist.

The stories of the plant babies starting out to do their part, of the pirate and robber plants, and of the various roots which find their way to us as food are all told in a way which will hold both younger and older child. It is an exceptionally fine book for any nature or botany list.

The lover of ships, whether boy or girl, will spend many a happy hour with Peter Gimmage's "Picture Book of Ships," if he is fortunate enough to take it along. It not only pictures the various types of boats and ships, but also gives concise information on each.

Girl readers who like to read of other girls will find much to think about in Margaret Raymond's "Linnet on the Threshold." It is a story of a 15 year old girl who, because of her father's disability, is forced to leave school and become breadwinner for the family, and of her efforts to rise above her difficulties. It is not a pleasant story, with its wrangling parents, family deception, and poverty, but it is a realistic story of modern life as it confronts many young people today. As such, it is not to be overlooked.

A good story for reading aloud around the campfire or in the family group of an evening is Zane Grey's "The Wolf Tracker." It is a story of courage and indomitable will in man and beast, and of the tribute which true nobility of spirit ever pays to its like in conqueror or conquered.

CHICAGOAN HELD IN MILWAUKEE AS GIRL'S KILLER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., June 13.—[Special.]—Donald Allison, 319 North Kedzie avenue, Chicago, interior decorator, was nameh in a first degree murder warrant late today in the poison death of Ursula Lang, 19, German immigrant girl.

After an investigation of the case and two hour questioning of Allison, District Attorney George L. Bowman asked life imprisonment for Allison, who told the police he entered into a suicide pact with the girl, but failed to keep his end of the bargain. Allison will be taken into District court tomorrow.

Calls Case Strong.

"I think we have a fairly strong case against Allison," the district attorney said. "Circumstances leading up to the death certainly confirm the state's contention."

Mr. Bowman contended the case was identical with another in which a woman asked to be shot by her lover, he being charged with first degree murder. The district attorney believes Allison came to Milwaukee last Saturday with the avowed intention of breaking off his romance with the girl and never intended to fulfill his part of the suicide pact.

Tells Two Stories.

Allison has given two versions of the circumstances leading up to the girl's death. After several hours of questioning last night he admitted having entered a suicide pact, after first insisting he had no part in the girl's action. Authorities contend he came here with the express purpose of ridding himself of Ursula, who he says was madly infatuated with him; that he purchased the chloroform; uncorked the bottle containing the poison and placed it between them in their Schroeder hotel bed and that he had no intention of killing himself.

The district attorney declared Allison's letter addressed to his wife after he had left Milwaukee Sunday for his father's residence in White Cloud, Mich., indicates he might not be as innocent in the death as he maintains.

In this letter Allison expressed horror of dying in the electric chair at the same time he protested his innocence to his wife and asked her forgiveness. Authorities regard his fear of execution as significant. Life imprisonment is the maximum penalty in Wisconsin.

Allison's wife, Katherine, and his brother, Robert, have remained in Milwaukee since they surrendered the decorator to police yesterday. Allison has become noncommital since his retention of an attorney. He is the father of two boys.

U. S. ENVOY URGES STIMSON TO MOVE PEIPING LEGATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEIPING, June 13.—Six hundred Americans here are anxiously awaiting Washington's decision upon the recommendation of Minister Nelson Johnson that the legation be moved to Shanghai immediately, and that the marine guard, which has been kept at Peiping since the boxer rebellion days, be withdrawn.

If this recommendation is adopted, 500 marines would evacuate China and 100 legation employes would be sent to Shanghai. Although the recommendation was made a fortnight ago, Secretary of State Stimson has not yet replied. It is believed the civil warfare which it is claimed here now favors the northerners, may affect his decision.

Mr. Johnson argued that Shanghai is now the political center of China, although not the capital, and therefore it is the logical place for the legation. Nanking is the capital. He asserted that contacts with the Chinese are easier there.

Military and naval officers are opposed to the recommendation, arguing that the present condition is extremely chaotic, and that drastic action is not desirable until the situation is settled. It is reliably understood that many consular and diplomatic officials are also opposed to the proposal.

The Shanghai consulate has rented the Calee hotel, where offices are available for the legation staff if the removal is decided upon.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 13.—Gabby Hartnett twice stepped into the breach today when Guy Bush was staggering around trying to protect a slim lead in the closing innings. The peppery catcher ripped loose a homer in the eighth and another in the ninth with a runner on base. The pair of round trip contributions served to elevate the Cubs to a 7 to 5 victory and an even break in the four day series with the purposeless Phillies.

When Hartnett swung himself into action in the eighth, the champions were out in front by 4 to 2, but Bush had been involved in so many close calls that the lead didn't look impressive. Gabby increased it by selecting the first ball pitched by relief hurler Elliott, and driving it into the seats in left.

Gabby Does It Again.

When the ninth opened Koupal was the Phils' pitcher, and he started in such impressive fashion that scoring possibilities appeared slim. He set down both Wilson and Stephenson on feebly hit balls. Then Grimm singled to right and Hartnett strolled up again to make use of the first ball pitched to him. He whacked this one over the high barrier in right, giving the champions an advantage of 7 to 4, and the two runs picked up by Gabby's second wallop were needed, because before the Phils subsided in the home final O'Doul sent a four baser over the wall.

The Giants will be met tomorrow and Pat Malone will face them. Donohue may labor for McGraw.

A little of everything contributed toward the scoring of the Phillies' two runs in the first inning. Southern singled to left on Bush's first pitch. Sherlock singled to right. O'Doul bounced to Blair and Sherlock was forced at second, but in attempting a double play Beck threw wild to first, Southern scoring from third and O'Doul going to second. O'Doul strolled over to third on a wild pitch and across the plate on a long sacrifice fly into Stephenson's territory by Klein.

Cubs Tie Score.

The Cubs tied it in the third. Blair led off against Benge with a whistler over third, but Whitney leaped up and caught it. English, however, made amends for this robbery by caroming a single off Whitney's shin bone. Cuyler doubled down the right field line, English halting at third. Wilson was unable to produce in this crisis, his best being a popup to Friberg. Stephenson stepped in with a single which bounced off the right field wall, English and Cuyler scoring the runs that brought about a 2 and 2 count.

Four singles and a pass were used by the Chicago troops for a two run advance in the sixth. The first was a hit by Grimm. The hit and run play was put on, but it was such a bad pitch Gabby didn't swing and Capt. Charley was nailed going to second. Gabby then walked, Beck popped out, and Bush singled to right. Blair lined a single over short, Hartnett scoring. English hit to center, scoring Bush and moving Blair to third. The rally subsided on Cuyler's force of English at second. The next Cub outbreak was Hartnett's first homer in the eighth, giving them a 5 to 2 lead.

Friberg's double with one out in the home eighth started the rally that brought the Phils dangerously close to a tie. Thevenow followed with a fly to short right and it fell for a single, Friberg going to third. He scored while McCurdy, batting for Davis, was forcing Thevenow. Sigman batted for Elliott and singled to right. Cuyler picked up the ball and made an unnecessary throw to third. The peg bounced into the seats, letting McCurdy score and putting Sigman on third with the tying run. Beck threw out Southern to close the inning. Hartnett's second homer took care of the situation after this.

Bush Trades Harris for Barnes of Washington.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Ad Liska, a young fellow who insists upon throwing an outdoor baseball as normal athletes throw an indoor baseball, made Donie Bush's boys dizzy yesterday afternoon trying to catch up with his underhand tossing antics. The Sox executed a total of four hits and lost the final against the Washington Senators with great grace and ease, the score being 6 to 2.

The swell blistering would be most distressing to the Comiskeys but for the fact the lowly Red Sox arrive in town today, thus leading the home gentry to concentrate on the prospect of the most luscious four days they've had since they were beating the New York Giants during the spring training season. Old Red Faber again will try to improve his record, which is 8 lost and 1 won, and he probably will be opposed by Ed Morris, who always likes to throw to our batters.

Trade Harris for Barnes.

In addition to the beaming optimism occasioned by the impending Boston series, there was some happiness over the revelation that Manager Bush has been able to establish trading relations with a club other than the Red Sox. It was announced that Sheriff Dave Harris had been swapped for Emile [Red] Barnes, for three years one of the Washington outfielders. Barnes had his best year in 1928, when he batted .305 in 414 games. He is 25 years old and specializes in center field in preference to the wing territory.

The game yesterday might have been different, despite young Liska's odd talents, if the Sox could have mustered a little punch in two innings when opportunity rapped noisily at their portal—the first inning and the sixth.

Kerr opened the meager Sox offensive with a single and went to third on Watwood's double to right. The bases were full with none out when Jolley drew a pass. Reynolds sent a sacrifice fly to Rice, which enabled Kerr to score, but Watwood escaped being doubled at third only because Bluege dropped Rice's throw. The fadeout continued when Cissell flied to Myer and Clancy tapped to Hayes.

Senators Score in 3 Rounds.

The other Sox flurry was in the sixth when J. Smead Jolley gave some 12,000 spectators a chance to yell by knocking a triple with two out. He came in on the Sox's fourth and last hit, Reynolds' single to center. Cissell then walked and the bases were full when Clancy was hit by a pitched ball. Metzler was rushed in as a pinch batter and lived up to the consistent record established by White Sox pinch batters—he popped a foul to Bluege.

The Senators did their scoring in three innings—the first, the fifth and the ninth. They made two in the first on a walk, a stolen base, Cronin's single and a triple by Myer.

In the fifth they chased Bob Weiland. A walk, a double by Rice, and singles by Cronin and Bluege accomplished two runs and another single by Hayes off Walsh drove in the third run of the inning. A single, a walk and another single produced the sixth Senator run in the last inning.

SEGRAVE KILLED AS SPEED BOAT BREAKS RECORD

WINDERMERE, England, June 13.—Sir Henry O. D. Segrave, world famous British speed wizard, today paid with his life for the honor of having traveled faster than any human being on water as well as on land.

The great racer received fatal injuries and his mechanic was drowned when Segrave's $125,000 mystery speed boat Miss England II. plunged to the bottom of Lake Windermere a few minutes after hurtling across the water at 101.11 miles per hour.

Dies 2 Hours Later.

Sir Henry died in a hospital two hours after the accident from a punctured lung, caused by a broken rib. Both arms and one leg were broken. The body of E. Halliwell, mechanic, has not been found, while J. Willcocks, the engineer and third occupant of the boat, received a broken thigh and severe head injuries.

Miss England II. made two speed bursts across Lake Windermere this afternoon and was gaining speed for a third attempt when suddenly it swerved dizzily and plunged under the surface.

The hull of the boat, upside down, later appeared on the surface, a jagged hole torn in the bottom. Spectators who were stationed near the course in small craft immediately set out for the scene of the disaster, searching for the three occupants of the boat. Segrave was the first to appear, floating unconscious on the surface. He and Willcocks were rushed to a hospital where Sir Henry regained consciousness for a brief period.

His best run reached an official speed of 101.11 miles an hour—nearly nine miles per hour faster than Gar Wood's record run. Not satisfied that the boat had yet done its best, Segrave set out on a third run.

Wife Witnesses Crash.

Lady Segrave, who witnessed the accident, was at the side of her husband when he died. Sir Henry was 34 years old. He served in the Royal Air Force during the war and was wounded three times. In 1917 he became private secretary to the chief of the air staff, and the following year went on a British aviation mission to Washington.

In recent years he has devoted his energies to the development of high speed automobiles and motor boats, gaining his first great triumph at Daytona Beach in 1929 when he drove his Golden Arrow at the record speed of 231.36 miles an hour.

Princeton Polo Team Whips Pennsylvania Military, 10-7

WHAT'S IT WORTH? SCHMELING ASKS THE CAMERA MEN

Posing Before and After Fight Is Different.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, June 13.—The question whether the name of Max Schmeling will be given space on the shaft of the Muldoon-Tunney monument, which purported to be the trophy of the heavyweight championship of the world, seems to be of little interest to any one but the members of the committee charged with the solemn responsibility of deciding the matter.

Max Schmeling won the championship on a foul from a man who was beating him handily up to the moment of the foul, and he is now preparing to take to the road for an exhibition tour to sell the by-product of the title.

He is rich now, by the standards of his fatherland, and not a pauper by the standards of the United States, but he will be much more wealthy by the time he takes to the ring again one year from now. In the work of sweating the championship, Herr Schmeling today made an auspicious beginning. A news sheet photographer called on him at the Commodore hotel wishing to shoot a little footage of him, accompanied by a few words of salutation to his public in his Weber and Fields dialect.

And How Much Is Offered.

"Sure," Herr Schmeling said. "I'm glad to do this. But," and just here his accent cleared and he spoke in very precise English, "how much am I offered for this service?"

"Every inch a champion," exclaimed the news reel gentleman, folding away his gear. "A worthy successor to Willard, Dempsey and Tunney."

The change came suddenly, as it always does. As recently as Wednesday night Herr Schmeling was most obliging, just as Mr. Tunney had been before he won the title in a loose alliance with Mr. Max Boo Boo Hoff, the celebrated sinister character of Philadelphia. Two months ago, in the same room at the Commodore, as the photographers apologized for imposing on his patience, Schmeling exclaimed: "O! Ziss iss quite all righdt. Ze more pactures you make ze more money I make."

Similarly, Mr. Tunney once posed beside a brewery steed in Cleveland, wearing a polo uniform and leaning jauntily on an overdeveloped croquet mallet, before he won the championship, and I do believe that in those days he would have posed wiping dishes, so eager was he for publicity.

Assumes Dignified Rôle.

But on the morning after he had won the heavyweight championship of the world, with the sinister Mr. Hoff sitting not far back from the ringside, singing in the rain and cherishing to his bosom a contract signed "Eugene Tunney," a change came over him. That morning, as the late Tex Rickard paid him off in the Bellevue Stratford in Philadelphia, one of the photographers asked him to sit on the arm of Mr. Rickard's chair and "both of you be looking at the check and smiling."

"No," Mr. Tunney said, with a startling access of dignity, "that would be undignified and absurd."

And don't I recall that Mr. Willard had gone moping around the country grateful for any trifling mention of his name in the papers before he won the title in Havana? And don't I also recall that day a few months later when he knocked a photographer into a snowdrift in Central park for trying to take his picture?

Certified Checks Appear.

Herr Schmeling takes the championship with less credit than any other prize fighter that ever held it, not even excepting Mr. Tunney, whose numerous explanations of his dealings with the celebrated sinister character, Hoff, never have explained the contract quite away. Tunney, at least, had beat-

BY FRENCH LANE.

This is American Derby day at Washington Park, where the famous turf fixture will be run for the twenty-second time at about 5 o'clock this afternoon.

There will not be a championship at stake, for the crown wearer, Gallant Fox, declined the issue. But fourteen other 3 year olds were named overnight for the $50,000 struggle. Most of them have trailed Gallant Fox home at one time or another, and that is their best recommendation.

Early last night, five bandits riding in the front and rumble seats of a bright red coupe, held up and robbed two agents of the Washington Park track of 6,600 general admission tickets valued at $21,120 and $1,964 in money.

The track men were Charles Hanhauser of Crete, Ill., and O. W. Kunkle of the Bismarck hotel. They were driving from the track to deliver the tickets at the Park Row station for sale on today's race track special trains.

C. W. Hay, general manager of the track, announced that he has a record of the numbers on the stolen tickets and issued a warning for Derby day visitors to purchase tickets only from the uniformed track salesmen.

Gallant Knight Favorite.

As 40,000 Chicagoans and a few thousand visitors prepared to wend their way to the Derby scene, Gallant Knight loomed up as the possible favorite. Yet Kentuckians were mustering their support behind Tannery, the east was backing Walter J. Salmon's Snowflake, while Michigan Boy, Ned O., Reveille Boy, Alcibiades, and Plucky Play all had their followers.

Any of them might be the post time favorite but in the betting last night Gallant Knight was the choice by a narrow margin and was quoted at 7 to 2 and 4 to 1 where Derby fans gathered and wagered their money.

The race will be worth $50,225 to the winner's owner.

While it is not beyond the possibilities of horse racing that one of these American Derby starters will reach greatness and some day show his or her heels to Gallant Fox, the most interesting angle of the Derby is the meeting between Snowflake, the eastern 3 year old filly champion, and Alcibiades, the western 3 year old filly champion.

Filly vs. Filly.

This battle alone would attract wide attention any place where the thoroughbred sport is a bit more familiar to the new race going generation than it is in Chicago. It is a struggle that Saratoga looked forward to and a performance that might find either proclaimed the filly champion of the year. That is if one of the proud fillies should win the Derby.

There will be a tallyho on hand just as a reminder of old time days at the American Derby. There will also be a great crowd present, the largest, perhaps, that has ever visited new Washington Park. This crowd naturally would like to see Gallant Fox go into action. But if it can't see him it is willing to try and pick a winner at long odds.

In the overnight field of fourteen only two horses were named that do not seem to have a ghost of a chance to win. They are General Jackson, a colt that has been running in claiming races lately, and Portmanteau, which has never beaten any sort of horse but a plater.

The Nut Wins.

There was a huge pre-Derby crowd present yesterday to see The Nut, racing in the Warm Stable silks, gallop to victory in the White City handicap at a mile. The winner of last fall's Latonia championship was ridden by Willie Fronk, and Fronk rated him back of Star O' Morn for the first six furlongs, then came up on the outside and won handily by half a length. There had been a great plunge on Martie Flynn and Martie ran a good race, but wasn't quite good enough to conquer these horses. Stars and Bars, which also had a big betting public, finished fourth in the four horse race, but was running fast near the end.

In the Cherry Hill golf purse, Camp Boss led from start to finish, but had to put everything he had into the battle to shake off Hypoluxo and Culloden in the run down the stretch.

The first race this afternoon will be run at 2 o'clock. There are other races on the program that should be just as interesting as the $50,000 combat between the 3 year olds.

Collect 15 Blows from Walberg, Rommel.

Cleveland, O., June 13.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians dealt the Athletics a 15 to 2 beating today and replaced them in first place in the American league. They drove their southpaw nemesis, George Walberg, to cover. Eddie Rommel, who followed Walberg, was also unsuccessful. Connie Mack sent in five substitutes in an effort to stop the onslaught.

Tomorrow's First Day for Black Bass

BY BOB BECKER.

Beginning tomorrow morning all the Illinois regulations on fishing are wide open, because tomorrow sees the opening of the black bass season. Inasmuch as the opening date falls on a Sunday, the fishing army in this state will be increased by many thousands of bass fans, who do not consider that the season is officially on until it is legal to catch this scrappy species. The Illinois statutes prescribe a limit of ten bass per day and don't forget to buy a fishing license before you start throwing your lures around.

Wisconsin will offer its bass fishing beginning next Friday morning. There is just one exception to this opening date. Green lake in Green Lake county is not open to the bass fishermen until July 1.

Although the number of black bass in our central states lakes is far below the population figure of ten or fifteen years ago because states are behind on their restocking programs, it still is possible to get some pretty fair fishing if a fellow is willing to work.

Probably the easiest and most sporting fishing is found during the first weeks of the open season, when the bass are in fairly shallow water, especially along the shores. It is then that a fellow may use artificial lures on either a fly or bait rod. Later you'll find the fish retreating to deep water and in many of the northern lakes it is necessary to turn to live bait to get them. We have found exceptions to this fishing method during July and August by picking on a dark, cool, rainy day, or fishing around and after sundown.

For example, two years ago we visited Cisco lake, just across the boundary in Michigan and due north of Big and West Bay lakes on the Wisconsin-Michigan line. It was a rainy, cool day. The large and small mouth bass had come out of their retreats in weed beds and holes, and were along the shore line so that we were able to use artificial lures and get our limit.

BRITISH WOMEN TAKE 2-1 LEAD IN TENNIS CUP PLAY

BY EUGENE SPECK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 13.—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, queen of tennis, was the only one of four American women tennis players who was able to withstand the British attack in the opening matches of the Wightman cup play at Wimbledon today, and the English team was leading at the close of the day's play, two matches to one.

Mrs. Moody beat Miss Joan Fry, number two British player, 6-1, 6-1. She was once again the world's best woman player, firing at the baseline with unruffled poise and deadly aim, but the play of the other American girls was not so impressive.

Miss Helen Jacobs, the second Californian on the American team, lost to Mrs. P. C. Holcroft-Watson in three sets, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4. Miss Fry then teamed with Miss Ermintrude Harvey to defeat Miss Edith Cross and Miss Sarah Palfrey also in three sets. The scores again were 2-6, 6-2, and 6-4.

The day's results gave the British a strong lead in the attempt to take the cup won by America at Forest Hills, New York, last year. There are four matches for tomorrow, three singles and one doubles, and the British need only two of these to win the trophy. United States has to win three out of four.

Mrs. Moody defeated Miss Fry by long drives to alternate corners of the court, tiring her oppo ent by occasional trips to the net or by rapid change of pace. The only game that Miss Fry won in the first set was the third, which she took after a grim struggle during which deuce was called eight times. Helen never allowed her to leave the far corners of the court thereafter.

In tomorrow's games Miss Jacobs will play Miss Fry, and Mrs. Moody will meet Mrs. Holcroft-Watson. Miss Phyllis Mudford will oppose Miss Palfrey in singles. In doubles Mrs. Moody and Miss Jacobs are paired against Mrs. Watson and Mrs. L. A. Godfree.

40 AND 8 GOLFERS LAY BARRAGE ON BIG OAKS COURSE

Klein Goes Over the Top with 81.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Herbert H. Klein proved himself the best golfer of the Forty and Eight by shooting 18 holes in 81 to win low gross in the spring tournament of that organization yesterday at Big Oaks. J. H. Sullivan's 96—24—72 was low net.

This lodge, which is made up of soldiers and sailors who fought in the world war, turned out in force to attack par with the same determination with which they once attacked enemy trenches, though with somewhat less success.

Judge Helander Plays.

There was Jack Morris Jr., who was wounded five times, won the Croix de Guerre and the Italian Royal cross during his 23 months of service with the marines. There was Judge William Helander, who fought in the Argonne and Belleau Woods, where he also was presented with the Croix de Guerre.

There was William W. Keating, sniper and scout, who was shot down twice in the Argonne and St. Mihiel, but who wouldn't stay down. There was Ed Barrett, who campaigned for 13 months with the 33d division until he was wounded and gassed.

Elmer Taylor, present chef de gare of the organization, and George Sugarman, chef de gare elect, were on hand, and one mustn't forget P. J. Mitchell, who describes himself as just an ordinary gob, though his comrades insist that he is an extraordinary one.

O'Shea Scores 85.

This lodge takes its name from the famous legend "40 hommes et 8 chevaux" which was painted on the sides of railroad cars during the war to indicate that their capacity was 40 men and 8 horses.

The other prizes were distributed as follows: Second low gross, George O'Shea, 41—44—85; second low net, C. R. Marshall, 88—14—74; high gross, D. A. Sullivan, 58—69—127; best on short holes, Frank Charleston, 19; best on five long holes, G. B. Higgins, 26.

AUTO PILOTS TO QUALIFY TODAY FOR ROBY RACE

The field of sixteen starters for the 100 mile western dirt track auto race championship at Roby speedway, 108th and Indianapolis avenue, tomorrow will be chosen by trials starting this afternoon. Twenty-seven entries have been received and a half dozen more are expected before the qualifying trials open.

Carl Young, Chicago, made a last minute entry of the Lencki Special with which he set a new state record for one lap at Urbana last week. Harry Lewis, Walter Martins and Cliff Henderson are the leading Chicago drivers expected to stand off the invasion of the out of town drivers.

CITY CLUB GROUP FIGHTS PROPOSED AIRPORT LEASE

Says Acre Rental Is Not Sufficient.

The educational committee of the City club went on record yesterday as being unanimously opposed to the leasing of Clearing school fund property to the city for expansion of the municipal airport under the terms of the lease submitted to the members of the board of education.

The lease, approved by members of the building and grounds committee of the board, the Aero commission, the Association of Commerce, the city council, officers of the air corps, and a disinterested firm of lawyers, is objected to on the grounds that the rental is insufficient.

Terms Made on Lease.

The lease provides for a yearly rental of $25 per acre for the first ten years, $27.50 per acre for the next five years, and $30 per acre for the next five. A reappraisal clause provides for a new rental calculation at the end of the first twenty years. The lease is for fifty years and may be cancelled by mutual consent at the end of the first twenty years.

A resolution presented by the City club committee states the value of the land as determined by Harry S. Cutmore, director of appraisals for Cook county, is $5,000 per acre. A fair return upon such a valuation is $300 per acre, it is asserted.

The resolution further states that rumors have been circulated that the city does not intend to use the land for an airport but is merely using the airport issue as a pretext. A clause in the lease provides that the land may be used for other purposes by mutual consent. If the board of education is serious in desiring the lease, it is charged, it would deal directly with aviation companies and not with the city.

Board to Vote Monday.

The lease will be voted upon by the board of education at a special meeting Monday. Sentiment of the board, as indicated at the regular meeting last Wednesday, is favorable to the lease. President Caldwell expressed himself as confident the lease would be accepted.

THREE REPRIEVED AS 2 OTHERS PAY DEATH PENALTY

Eddyville, Ky., June 13.—(AP)—Three men who had sat through the long night awaiting death in the electric chair were granted stays of execution here today after they had heard the deadly whir of an electric motor that sent two others to death.

J. L. Hughett, state pardon commissioner, read Gov. Sampson's indefinite stay of execution for the three Negroes, Lloyd Williams, 24; John Keller, 27; and James Grigsby, 38, immediately after Ballard E. Ratcliffe, 35, a white man, and Richard Edmonds, 36, a Negro, had been executed.

There was no demonstration from the three reprieved men as Warden E. R. Gumm told each one his life was saved for a time at least.

"Glory be," said Williams, who later added: "It sounded good to me, but I was ready to meet my God." Keller said quietly, "I feel all right," to which Grigsby added, "You know I feel good; I had trusted in God."

Why the reprieves were not announced earlier was not explained by the pardon commissioner, who arrived late last night, but it was believed that the recent statement by Edmonds taking the blame for slaying Harry S. Long, a Louisville night watchman, and exonerating Keller and Grigsby, had saved their lives.

PLAN 6½ HR. AIR ROUTE BETWEEN CHICAGO, NEWARK

New Plane Service to Start Sept. 1.

New York, June 13.—[Special.]—Several changes in the operations schedule of the National Air Transport, operators of the eastern half of the Transcontinental Air Mail service, were announced today, in addition to setting Sept. 1 as the date of the opening of the proposed six and a half hour passenger service between Newark and Chicago.

R. W. Ireland, commercial manager of the line, said that the eastern terminus of the air mail would be officially moved from Hadley field to Newark airports. The change in the air terminal wil save a full hour in the delivery of mails from the west, he said.

With regard to the opening of passenger service, he announced that single engined planes of six and eight passenger capacity would be used on the flight over the Alleghenies to Chicago, with stops at Cleveland and Toledo, O. A rate of 140 miles an hour, the highest ever aspired to by a passenger air line, will be attempted. Planes will leave each end of the line daily at noon, scheduled to arrive at the other end for early dinner.

Such service will provide a regular schedule from coast to coast of twenty-eight and a half hours, he said. In addition a full half business day will be saved in the delivery of air mails from the southwest which arrive in Chicago over the Chicago-Dallas line of the same company. The passenger planes will carry regular mails, he said, but in the event of full passenger loads a second section mail plane will be used.

DENSE FOG BANK IN NEW YORK BAY TIES UP SHIPPING

New York, June 13.—(AP)—Fog lay so low and heavy off shore and in the lower harbor today that liners crept in and out like snails or dropped their anchors and waited for hours. One boat went aground, two others collided, and an airplane crashed when the pilot could not find the field he sought.

OFFICER ORDERS STATE TO CEASE TRUCK ARRESTS

Walter L. Moody, chief of the Illinois state highway police, in behalf of Secretary of State Stratton yesterday assured the Chicago Motor club that truck owners and drivers will not be arrested in the state for alleged violation of section 9 of the vehicle code. The section provides additional license fees for each 100 pounds of gross weight of trucks and load.

Attorney Joseph H. Braun, representing the club, protested against arrests in the Chicago area on the ground that trucks carrying perishable products were stopped and held until bail was furnished. He pointed out that the state police were invading Chicago when the local police are capable of enforcing regulations.

A test case is to be made by Attorney General Carlstrom to determine whether the section can be enforced through civil action. The case is to be carried to the Supreme court for a final ruling.

HARD-SOFT LARGE-SMALL CORNS

Out To Stay Out—Roots and All
Magic Oxygen Salts Bath Never Fails.
No More Burning, Aching Feet.

No matter how many corns you have or how painful they are—soak your feet for 15 minutes in a delightfully soothing and revitalizing Radox footbath for 3 or 4 nights—then lift corn and callouses right out—roots and all, and they won't come back, either, unless you wear shoes again which aggravate your feet.

No cutting or digging is required because Radox liberates oxygen which softens hard outer layers of corns, each night penetrating the pores further and further, carrying the salts right to roots of corns which are so loosened they can be lifted out bodily.

Your feet are made strong—healthy—vigorous—hard skin on heels and toes goes also.

All good drug stores are stocked with Radox—if they aren't, insist upon their ordering it if you want to experience great foot-joy and comfort.

REFRIGERATOR BILL OPPOSED BY DR. KEGEL

Charges that the boiler inspection department's ordinance for the regulation of artificial refrigerators will place the responsibility for illness or death from leaks of gases used as refrigerants upon building owners instead of upon the manufacturer of the refrigerator were made yesterday by Health Commissioner Kegel.

"The boiler department's ordinance," said Dr. Kegel, "states that a multiple system, containing between 100 and 300 pounds of refrigerant can be installed in a building used for human habitation providing that the installation has constant supervision. That means that the building owners will have to hire men to continually watch the system. If a system isn't continually watched and a leak occurs with subsequent illness or death the building owners will be held responsible."

Dr. Kegel declared that this provision will switch votes to his ordinance when the refrigeration matter comes up for final disposition at next Wednesday's council meeting. The council health committee recommended the boiler department ordinance and a minority report approved Kegel's ordinance.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN
Improved in Texture and Taste

HEALTH PROBLEM IS SOLVED FOR MANY

They Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Daily

Constipation is the most common menace to health today. It is extremely dangerous in itself and is the source of many other complicating elements. There is no permanent relief in pills and drugs. Many of them are dangerous.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is positively guaranteed to relieve and to prevent both temporary and recurring constipation. If it does not, money will be refunded.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is roughage. And roughage in food helps eliminate the possibility of constipation. Most modern foods do not contain roughage. Two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily is the proper amount. In recurring cases ALL-BRAN should be eaten with each meal. It is an essential in any reducing diet. In addition, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains iron, the blood builder. It is the original ALL-BRAN, proved effective by millions.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has an appetizing flavor. Eat it with milk or cream, in cereals and fruit juices, in soups and in cooked foods. Your grocer has ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

SURVEY NOTES ORE CHEERFUL RADE OUTLOOK

t New Tariff Bill Arouses Concern.

BY O. A. MATHER.

body really expects trade and in- try to whoop it up during the mer. Therefore no one should be appointed that normal conditions vail. And this is about the current se of things, according to the ily mercantile reviews and mid- ith surveys.

"Although statistical reports show a actual improvement," according the June survey of THE TRIBUNE, siness news during the last month brought a more cheerful note into outlook and change in viewpoint be instrumental in stimulating recovery. The seasonal decline steel ingot output has cut the oper- ng ratios a few points and price ness in the steel industry contin- s to be a drawback to forward book- s.

The automobile industry made a e in output during April but con- ed to produce at a substantially er rate than a year ago. Building tracts continue sluggish in spite of large volume of public construc- projects that have been started. proportion of residential building improved somewhat since the first the year but continues below nor- l."

Voice Opinions Freely.

ews that the senate had passed tariff bill was received in commer- and financial circles in New York terday with mingled feelings of r of the tariff's effect on our for- trade and of relief that so trou- some a question was nearing final position.

Word of the action on the tariff did reach Wall street until after the k market had closed. It was re- ved philosophically by financial ers, but among importers and ex- ters the opinion was freely voiced t the new act, if signed by the sident, would deal a severe blow this country's foreign trade.

dging by the sharp reduction in volume of trading on the New k Stock Exchange, speculative in- sts were disposed to mark time ll after the vote in the senate.

General Index Lower.

The latest general trade indicators e weakened along with commodity es and the stock market, the Busi- Week says. The index of the eral volume of trade and produc- declined to 90.5 per cent this k, compared with 92.7 per cent last k and 108.9 per cent a year ago.

The sooner business stops waiting and for more automatic or political acles and buckles down bravely to ll of head work on its own again," concludes, "the better everybody l feel. It takes brains to hold a r by the tail."

With summer near at hand a fur- r deferment of expansion in most s is indicated and receding manu- turing operations, where they ap- r now, are in keeping with the al seasonal tendency," Dun's re- w says. "Naturally, restrictive in- ences are intensified in the present of transition, with the persistent line of commodity prices still being e of the principal restraining forces. The obstacles to business recovery e been both numerous and varied character, yet some definite gain been made in strengthening un- lying conditions, and this is a nec- ary preliminary to subsequent ad- ce. Thus far, the barometric sta- ical records have failed to disclose marked reversal of trend."

Restricts Sales.

Reports from wholesale and retail rchandisers are mainly on the quiet e, according to Bradstreet's review, ich points out that cooler weather tricted sale of summer fabrics and advance of the season dulled olesale re-orders.

Exceptions to the generally quiet ed are most conspicuous in the n and steel trade, where orders for e and oil tanks make for good buy- of plates and for increased speed output of gas and oil equipment," continues. "Industries noting sus- ned or increased quiet are furni- e, hosiery, cotton goods, carpet, d lumber manufacturing. As re- rds new buying at retail, best re- rts come from women's wear lines, pecially the lighter forms of cotton d silk."

A relatively high level of failures in e United States is being maintained, ilures this week numbering 489, at total is only four more than the olvencies reported last week, but is ty-three in excess of the 426 fail- es a year ago.

Despite the larger number of de- ults this week, those having liabili- s of more than $50,000 in each case reased to 278 from 304 last week. year ago such insolvencies num- ed 261.

Farm Equipment Business Makes Rapid Progress

BY SCRUTATOR.

The manufacture of farm equipment has grown in importance in the last few years. Few, if any, specialized divisions of business can show so great an increase in the three year period, 1927 to 1929, inclusive.

According to the bureau of the census, the wholesale value of the products made for equipping farms amounted to 461 million dollars in 1927, to 524 millions in 1928, and to 603 millions last year. Indications are that the farmer in this period has mechanized his processes to a greater degree than he ever did in the past.

In modern life the cheapening of manufacturing has followed closely the adoption of labor saving devices. It is difficult to see how, if this tendency to more and more machinery on American acres continues, agriculturists can hope to keep their prices up to what they would be if more primitive and costly methods were in use.

Tractors Show Big Gain.

Leaving aside the smaller items in the list of farm equipments, such as windmills, water pumps, domestic water systems, electric plants, and horse drawn wagons—only about 40,000 wagons for farm use were made last year—and coming to the big items, tractors alone furnished 227 million dollars of the total. This was a gain of more than seventy-eight millions over 1927.

Harvesting machinery valued at eighty-seven millions was manufactured last year, a gain of about thirty millions over the total two years previous. Plows and listers made a gain of twelve millions in the same time, planting machinery a gain of more than six millions, and only the machines classified as used in preparing crops for market or use, corn shellers and ensilage cutters, for instance, showed any loss.

Illinois is the center of the agricultural machinery industry. Its supremacy traces back to 1847, the year that Cyrus H. McCormick established his first reaper plant on the Chicago river and John Deere located his plow works at Moline. The influence of the reaper and the steel plow were marked in the conquering of the west. William H. Seward once claimed that the McCormick reaper extended the American frontiers at the rate of thirty miles a year.

Illinois Dominant.

Segregated figures for the states are not yet available. In previous years, however, Illinois and Indiana combined furnished about 40 per cent of the tractors made in the country, and important agricultural machinery works are located almost within the Chicago metropolitan area in the latter state. The two states are kept together in census figures on tractors to protect trade secrets of individual companies.

More than half the plows, harrows, and other tillage instruments are made in Illinois alone. So far as harvesting machinery is concerned, Illinois has a long lead over any other state. The industries plants in the middle west, particularly those in and near the Chicago metropolitan area, had a large business during the last winter and early spring when other lines were dull.

COMMON, PREFERRED CASH DIVIDENDS ARE PASSED BY H. O. STONE

H. O. Stone & Co. directors have voted to pass the regular cash dividends on their common and preferred stocks. A stock dividend of 5 per cent will be paid on the common shares July 1, to holders of record June 16.

The Central Manufacturing District bank has authorized an extra dividend of 2½ per cent, in addition to its regular quarterly disbursement.

Directors of H. M. Byllesby & Co. have declared a special dividend of 50 cents a share on the class "B" stock in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of 50 cents.

Kaybee Stores, Inc., have declared an initial quarterly dividend of 15 cents a share on the common stock, placing that issue on an annual basis of 60 cents a share.

General Baking corporation has declared a dividend of 75 cents a share on its $6 cumulative preferred stock, payable July 1, of record June 19. This is the same dividend which was declared three months ago, at which time the dividend was reduced to 75 cents from $1.50.

General Electric company, Ltd., of Great Britain, declared an extra bonus of 4 per cent on common shares as well as the regular 10 per cent dividend. Preliminary statement for the year ended March 31 shows profits of £1,179,007, against £1,084,077 in the previous year.

Sees Loss of $29,000,000 in Failure of Foshay Firms

Washington, D. C., June 13.—(AP)—Ernest R. Lucas, federal trade commission accountant, reported in the commission's utilities financing investigation today, "It seems doubtful if anything will be realized" on $29,000,000 worth of securities issued by the W. B. Foshay companies of Delaware and Minnesota in 1927, 1928, and 1929. The firms were organized by W. B. Foshay, Minneapolis magnate.

W. B. FOSHAY.

Lucas said the companies went into receivership in 1929. The Foshay group supplied utilities service in 14 states, Canada, Mexico, Honduras, and Nicaragua.

Paid "Liberal" Salaries.

His report showed that when the Delaware company, which had obtained all business and assets of the Minnesota firm, went into receivership it had outstanding liabilities of $19,000,000. That did not include liabilities of affiliated companies, which also went into receivership.

The witness said Foshay company securities were not listed on any stock exchange, and salaries paid to officers were "quite liberal." He said dividends were paid out of capital.

"The uncertain financial condition of the Foshay organization was evidenced by the fact," Lucas said, "that on Aug. 12, 1929, in order to purchase a piece of real estate for $395,231 and negotiate a loan for $500,000, making a total of $895,231, Foshay securities amounting to $5,102,985 were pledged as collateral."

Operated by Receivers.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 13.—(AP)—Three Foshay companies, the W. B. Foshay Holding company, the W. B. Foshay Building corporation, and the Public Utilities Consolidated corporation, went into voluntary receivership in November, 1929.

Since then all three concerns have been operated by receivers under the direction of the federal court, one receiver acting for the W. B. Foshay company, the parent holding concern, and another for the building and the utilities corporations.

Officials of the companies at the time the receivership petition was filed declared the companies were solvent and that investors would lose nothing. No listing of assets or liabilities was made at that time, but financial circles estimated the amount involved in the three concerns at upwards of $25,000,000.

In a report filed in federal court yesterday Joseph Chapman, receiver for the utilities company, said claims filed in the proceedings since last fall now total $11,000,000. His report pointed out that the majority of the properties which were wholly owned by the concern are now being operated.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 13.—They got Wall street's thunder beaten stock market propped up and going once more today after a fashion. True, the job was nothing to crow about, the patches showing here and there and the underpinning being a bit wabbly in spots, but in comparison with the rickety appearance it has been presenting for these last several days it looked pretty good to the naked Wall street eye.

The pivotals, at least, were securely braced and bolstered. A long line of specialties and group notables of lesser caliber were able to stand alone for the first time in days.

Professional Turnout.

It appeared to be a professional turnout pure and simple with, however, the public still sticking securely to their old storm cellars. This was emphasized by the big drop in the total of transactions to 2,221,900, or only about half what they have been for the last week or more.

Bold spirits there were who were willing to buy when they sensed moderate short covering, but the orders were spotty and highly selective and

FRANCE ELATED AT SUCCESS OF ANNUITIES ISSUE

PARIS, June 13.—(AP)—Political and financial circles today expressed great satisfaction at the success achieved by the Young plan annuities issue, the first slice of which has been oversubscribed in the principal European markets as well as in neutral countries where it was offered.

Two important consequences of the success of the loan, it is felt here, are that it definitely takes the reparations question out of politics and places it in the financial field as the Young plan sought. At the same time it will release for other purposes in a short space of time considerable sums of money which were withdrawn from general circulation pending the launching of the loan.

For instance, France's share in the proceeds, exceeding 3,364,000,000 francs, will be used to retire government bonds, thus making that amount available for current needs while cutting about 170,000,000 francs on the annual interest charge.

The rapidity with which the public took all that was offered and its apparent eagerness for more were regarded as an excellent augury for the success of other issues of the annuities bonds which will be marketed later.

French subscriptions exceeded the $100,000,000 allotted to Paris before noon while reports from Berlin indicated subscriptions of double the $9,000,000 Germany was to take. The $60,000,000 apportioned to London was all subscribed before 1 o'clock when the list was closed.

The American portion of $98,000,000 which was offered in New York was oversubscribed before noon.

Copper Price Cut Again in Search for Buying Level

New York, June 13.—(AP)—Custom smelters sought a buying level for domestic copper today by reducing the price to 12 and 12¼ cents delivered. The large producers held their price at 12¾ and 13 cents delivered. Custom smelters cut another quarter of a cent from the domestic price this morning, bringing the level to 12¼ cents delivered.

Liberty Mutual Declares 20% Dividend on Policies

Dividends of 20 per cent of each yearly premium declared on all policies expiring in August by the directors of the Liberty Mutual Insurance company. Sales volume of the Liberty Mutual for the first five months was 15 per cent ahead of the same period in 1929, it was announced.

PREDICT TERMS IN MERGER OF OHIO OIL CO.

New York, June 13.—(AP)—Reports were current in Wall street today that announcement would be made next Monday of the terms by which Ohio Oil company would absorb Transcontinental Oil company, on the probable basis of one share of Ohio for each 3½ shares of Transcontinental. Negotiations have been going on for some time.

Producing properties in the Yates field, Pecos county, Tex., with potential daily output exceeding 2,900,000 barrels, or about half of the field's total output, are controlled jointly by Transcontinental Oil, and Mid-Kansas Oil and Gas, a subsidiary of Ohio Oil.

Production of the two companies, it is said, has been limited to around 63,000 barrels daily, due to proration agreements and scarcity of pipe line facilities, which, however, may be developed when conditions in the industry warrant it, as Ohio Oil controls the Illinois Pipe Line.

James L. Madden, vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, has been elected a member of the board of directors of the American Motorists Insurance company, according to an announcement made by President James S. Kemper.

President Kemper also announced the election of W. J. B. Janisch and John A. Mills as assistant secretaries of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company.

The forthcoming coupon payment, together with the June and December 1929 coupon payments, aggregate the sum of $3.26 per Corporate Trust Share, equal to an average annual rate of 18% on the average price of the trust shares for the period. These figures represent actual trust operation.

Investors who purchase Corporate Trust Shares now will receive the benefit of "rights", exercisable during July, 1930, whereby additional Corporate Trust Shares may be purchased at a discount under current offering price.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES STEADY; TRADING LAGS

Public Service Co. Asks Bond Issue Permit.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The stream of liquidation which has been playing havoc in the stock market in the last week let up yesterday and prices on the Chicago exchange rallied. Trading was not heavy, as has been during the recent sessions, transactions amounted to 262,800 shares, exclusive of 257,700 shares of Public Service rights which were included in.

Sales in Middle West Utilities, Geography Grunow, and Majestic Household, which usually lead in point of volume, were in each case nearly 50 per cent below Thursday's transactions. Approximately 18,000 shares of Middle West changed hands, as the issue moved within a narrow range and finished a fraction above its previous close. Other Insull issues showed little significant change.

Follows Other Applications.

Public Service Company of Northern Illinois has made application to the Illinois commerce commission for authority to issue $15,000,000 principal amount of its first lien and refunding mortgage 4½ per cent bonds, series E. The action follows closely the application of the Commonwealth Edison for authority to issue $12,000,000 in bonds and the marketing of a $60,000,000 issue of short term notes by Middle West Utilities.

The final quotations on Cities Service rights was 3-16 and ¼ on a cash basis. Trading in Cities Service common was comparatively light and the price down a fraction at the end of the session.

Foote Gear was conspicuous among the accessory and motor shares with a gain around 2 points. Bates Manufacturing company, subsidiary of which, has reached an agreement with Caterpillar Tractor company whereby it will be granted a license to manufacture track type tractors under Caterpillar patents. R. C. Force, president of Caterpillar Tractor, made the announcement. The suit which was brought by the latter against Bates for patent infringement has been dismissed as a result of the agreement.

Electric Bond and Share.

Reports that Electric Bond and Share might be listed by the exchange caused some comment in La Salle street yesterday. The issue which has constituted the bulk of the securities trading on the board of trade recently while not actually listed, has been included in the unlisted department. The theory that listing of the issue by the exchange might cause a reveral of hostilities between the two bodies was scouted by some who say that the company intends to apply for listing on the big board. There was no official comment on the reported listing by representatives of either the board of trade or the exchange.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

Wisconsin—Partly cloudy and slightly cooler, preceded by showers in east and south portions Saturday; Sunday partly cloudy, scattered showers.

Lower Michigan — Partly cloudy, scattered showers Sunday and in west and north portions Saturday; somewhat cooler in south portion Sunday.

WHEAT PLUNGES DOWN TO NEW LOW FOR CROP

Further Northwest Rains Influence in Break.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Semi-demoralization prevailed yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, July wheat plunging doward 2¾c to $1.00½, a new low on the crop, and the lowest figure at which it sold with the exception of a brief period last year since July, 1923. All deliveries of oats and rye sold at a new low for the crop year, with July oats touching 36¾c, a drop of 1¾c from Thursday's finish, and nearly 15c under the high point of the year.

July rye declined 3¼c. The nominal cash price was the lowest since January, 1904, when sales were made as low as 51c.

The break in all grains was due more to lack of aggressive buying than to heavy selling, and the effect of the curtailment in speculative interest in the markets has been decidedly marked during the last few days.

Reports of beneficial rains in the Canadian northwest were a bearish influence in wheat, which closed 2@2½c lower, with July $1.01@1.01¾, while September was $1.03⅝@1.03¾. Winnipeg was oq 2@2¼c for the day and Liverpool was ¼d lower to ⅛d higher, the latter rallying in the face of reports of pressure to sell American hard winters.

Export Sales Ignored.

While indications are that the wheat crop in the United States will fall short of last year, the trade generally looks for this to be more than offset by increased production in Canada despite the lack of subsoil in the prairie provinces. A detailed survey of conditions in the latter showed that 50 per cent of the 20,000,000 acres seeded were in good condition due to rains in the last few days, while 25 per cent more will need moisture shortly and 25 per cent is still dry.

The break in the grain markets occasions little surprise, and the low price of wheat, according to the June review of the agricultural situation made by the bureau of agricultural economics of the department of agriculture, is a reflection of a world-wide condition of declining commodity prices, large stocks, business recession, unemployment and reduced purchasing power."

As a result of the decline in wheat prices Europe came in as a heavy buyer of cash grain, taking hard winters, durums and Manitobas, the day's business in all positions being estimated at up ward of 2,000,000 bu. Around 1¼c over Chicago July was quoted for No. 2 hard at the gulf, which, it is figure, was equal to 85¾c in store at Kansas City, based on the closing figures on futures in Chicago.

Argentine Corn to Canada.

Corn market showed considerable resistance to pressure, and while higher early, weakened later with wheat, and closed ½@⅞c lower, with July 79¾@ 79¼c, and September 79¾c. Buying of corn to close spreads with rye had some effect on the former.

A very weak corn situation is seen by some of the leading cash handlers. Argentine corn has greatly curtailed the demand for American grain in the Maritime proyinces in Canada, and distillers and industries in that country are understood to be using the South American grain. Exports of 413,000 bu Argentine corn were made to Canada during the week ending June 5.

Liquidation was on in oats, with stop loss orders uncovered, while buying was mainly by cash interests on resting orders. The finish was ¾@ ⅞c lower, with July, 37¾c, and September 37⅞c. At the inside July sold at the lowest figure at this season of the year since 1926.

Buying of rye by spreaders who were taking losses against sales of corn made some time ago, with buying here against sales at Winnipeg, gave rye support at times, but general liquidation was on in the July, which sold down to 54¼c, about the lowest figure in 26 years. The finish was at the bottom, with net losses of 2⅞@ 3¼c, July being 54¾c and September 59¼c.

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP)—Cotton goods markets were again quiet today, with a easy tendency on some gray goods priced on the downward movement of raw cotton. Top yesterday, $12.25; average, $11.25
Estimated receipts at Chicago today, 300 cattle, 6,000 hogs, and 4,000 sheep.

Declines on hogs earlier in the week resulted in curtailing the run later, so yesterday's small supply sold on a strong to 25c higher basis. The upturn in prices was scored on a forced basis, being due principally to activity shown on the part of small killers and order buyers. Big packers bought sparingly.

There were 11,000 hogs on the market, including 3,300 directs. At the close only 2,000 were left. The day's price advanced to $10.35, although a spread of $9.75@10.25 bought the bulk of all weights. Heavy packing sows ranged down to $9.00@9.50 mostly.

As in cattle and sheep, the market on hogs this week has been depressed by dull and lower dressed markets. Pork demand has been slow, largely as the result of rather warm weather over most of the consuming centers. Stocks of pork and lard are small and show material reductions from a year ago.

Beef Demand Is Narrow.

Very little activity was evident in the cattle market. Supplies were small at 1,500 head, but demand was extremely narrow. Dull dressed beef trade here, as well as in the east, has had a curtailed demand for live cattle for the last ten days.

Prices have declined on virtually all classes and grades of bovine stock, with a general downturn being noted on all beef steers, fat yearlings and butcher cows and heifers. In the butcher stock trade, instances of as much as $2.00 has been noted during the last two weeks. The general decline for the last two weeks on steers was $1.00@1.50. Few steers yesterday sold above $10.50, although a small lot of prime yearlings brought $12.25.

Beef cows sold largely at $6.25@7.25 and not many heifers were eligible to bids of more than $10.00. Bulls were slow at $7.00 down and veal calves were steady with the week's $1.00 decline at $9.50@10.50 mostly.

Sheep Supply Small.

The sheep market was a short lived affair. The supply was small at 5,000 head and around 3,500 of them were shipped direct to packers from outside points. A few of the best fat lambs sold up to $12.25, with the bulk going at $12.444 down. Culls were sorted out of load lots at $7.00@8.00 mostly.

Few fat sheep were on sale and a spread of $3.00@3.50 embraced most offerings of fair to good grades. Common culls ranged downward from $2.50 and thin canner ewes sold at $1.25, down to 50c per cwt.

Demand for sheep and lambs has reflected the dull and sharply lower market on dressed lamb and mutton. Packers claim that the coolers are loaded with mutton and lamb and about the only grade that is avoiding sharp declines is strictly choice dressed lamb.

COTTON WEAKENS

Cotton prices were on the down grade yesterday from the start, with reports that the stabilization corporation would make no effort to stabilize cotton being construed as bearish, and more than offset unfavorable crop comments from parts of Texas. While the finish was on a rally from the inside figures, Chicago closed 24@27 points lower, with New York off 23@28 points, and New Orleans, ¢24@27 points. Spot prices dropped 30 points at New York to 14.50c; with New Orleans 25 lower at 13.65c, Galveston, 13.85c, and Houston, 13.65c. Liverpool had a holiday. Prices follow:

Kansas Gas and Electric.

What is your opinion of first mortgage bonds of Kansas Gas and Electric company?—B. B. H.

Kansas Gas and Electric company's $16,000,000 first mortgage 4½s, dated June 1, 1930, and due June 1, 1980, are secured by a first mortgage on all of the plants and other physical properties now owned, except certain transmission lines located outside of Kansas, with an estimated value of approximately $100,000. Additional bonds may be issued under certain restrictions.

The purpose of this issue is to provide funds for the retirement on Sept. 1, 1930, of the company's first sinking fund 6s, series A.

Net earnings in the twelve months ended April 30, 1930, were $2,445,011. Annual interest requirements, including this issue, amount to $720,000. In addition, annual interest requirements on the company's debenture 6s amount to $180,000.

The first mortgage bonds are regarded as a sound investment.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Spot butter and egg prices showed little change. Live hens declined 1@2c with leghorn hens 1c lower. Receipts by freight, 4 cars. Warm weather and a slow demand resulted in receivers being forced to shade potato prices in order to effect sales. Receipts 66 cars with 306 cars on team track.

Schulte Retail Stores.

Schulte Retail Stores corporation was formed in 1919 as a holding company. Through its subsidiaries it operates a tobacco chain store system that is exceeded in size only by the United Cigar Stores chain. At the end of 1928 it controlled more than 300 cigar stores.

Keen competition in the retail cigaret business resulted in a decided drop in the company's profits for 1929, net profits, available for dividends, was $1,072,211, according to the income account given out by the company. After dividends on the preferred and payments on the common up to March, 1929, there was a deficit for the year of $671,015. Earnings were equal to 28 cents per share on 1,138,711 common shares. This does not include the company's equity in undistributed earnings of Schulte Real Estate company, Inc., amounting to $657,782, equal to an additional 58 cents per share on the common.

Net income in 1928 was $4,360,321, or $3.18 per share on the common, against $6,225,902 in 1927 and $6,143,960 in 1926.

At the end of last year current assets of $8,349,775 and current liabilities of $2,088,848 were indicated. This would leave a net working capital of $6,260,927, against $8,894,460 a year before.

During 1929 surplus declined from $6,319,430 to $4,111,668. Cash on Dec. 31, 1929, was $1,368,462, compared with $5,092,498 a year before.

No dividends on the common have been reported since March, 1929. The preferred stock is medium grade and the common is a speculation.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP)—The action of the senate in passing the Hawley Smoot tariff bill, which increases the duty on Cuban sugar to 2 cents per pound from the prevailing rate of 1.7648 cents, led to increased firmness in the raw sugar market today and prices advanced ¼ of a cent to the basis of 3.33 cents delivered. Raw futures were firmer on increased covering and some outside buying promoted by the better showing of London and the steadier spot market. Prices closed at the best and from 3 to 5 points above the previous close. Approximate sales, 31,750 tons. Prices follow:
